WITH MITĀKṢARĀ

THE LAW OF INHERITANCE.

CHAPTER I. Sec. I.

प्रमाणं मानुषं दैवमिति भेदेन वर्णितम् । अधुना वर्ण्यते दायविभागोयोगमूर्तिना ॥

प्रमाणम् pramāṇam, evidence ; मानुषम् māṇusam, human ; दैवम् daivam, divine ; इति iti, thus, with these ; भेदेन bhedena, with distinctions ; वर्णितम् varṇitam, has been explained ; अधुना adhunā, now ; वर्ण्यते varṇyate, is propounded ; दायविभागः dāya-vibhāgah, partition (विभाग) of heritage (दाय) ; योगमूर्तिना yoga mūrtinā, by the image of holiness (i. e. by Yājñavalkya).

1. Evidence, human and divine, has been thus explained with (its various) distinctions ; the partition of heritage is now propounded by the image of holiness.

Bālambhatta's Gloss.

1—The Scholiast explains the relevancy by a verse ; he has explained two kinds of evidence under two heads. The image of holiness refers to Yājñavalkya. While describing the different parts of law, the portion relating to evidence intervened on the occasion. He now proceeds after a digression to explain the law of partition of heritage being most important of the remaining topics to be discussed.

तत्र दायशब्देन यद्धमं स्वामिसंबन्धादेव निमित्तादन्प्रस्य स्वं भवति तदुच्यते ॥

तत्र tatra, there ; दायशब्देन dāya-śabdena, by the term (शब्द) heritage (दाय) ; यद्धम् yad, which ; धनम् dhanam, wealth, स्वामि-सम्बन्धाद् swāmi-saṁ.

bandhāt, by the relation to the owner; एव eva, solely; निमित्ताद् nimittād, by reason; अन्यस्य anyasya, of another; स्वम् svam, property; भवति bhavati, becomes; तद् tad, that; उच्यते uchyate, is called, is named, is signified.

2. Here the term heritage (dāya) signifies that wealth, which becomes the property of another, solely by reason of relation to the owner.

स च द्विविधः । अप्रतिबन्धः सप्रतिबन्धश्च । तत्र पुत्राणां पौत्राणां च पुत्रत्वेन पौत्रत्वेन च पितृधनं पितामहधनं च स्वं भवतीत्यप्रतिबन्धोदायः । पितृव्यभ्रातारीमां तु पुत्राभावे स्वाम्यभावे च स्वं भवतीति पुत्रसद्भावः स्वामिसद्भावश्चप्रतिबन्धस्तदभावे पितृव्यत्वेन भ्रातृत्वेन च स्वं भवतीति सप्रतिबन्धो दायः । एवं तत्पुत्रादिष्वप्युहनीयः ।

सः sah, it; च cha, and; द्विविधः dvi-vidhāḥ, of two sorts; अप्रतिबन्धः apratibandha, unobstructed; सप्रतिबन्धः sapratibandha, liable to obstruction; च cha, and; तत्र tatra, there; पुत्राणाम् putrāṇām, of sons; पौत्राणाम् paotrāṇām, of grandsons; च cha, and; पुत्रत्वेन putratvena, by virtue of being sons; पौत्रत्वेन paotravena, by right of being grandsons; च cha, and, पितृ-धनम् pitṛi-dhanam, the wealth of the father; पितामह-धनम् pitā-maha dhanam, the wealth of the grandfather; च cha, and; स्वम् svam, one's own property; भवति bhavati, becomes; इति iti, so; अप्रतिबन्धः apratibandhaḥ, not liable to obstruction; दायः dāyah, heritage; प्रितृव्य-भ्रातारीमां pitṛivya bhātrivyaśādīnām, of uncles and brothers and the rest; तु tu, but; पुत्राभावे putra-abhāve, in the absence of male issue; स्वाम्यभावे svāmy-abhāve, in the absence of the owner; च cha, and; स्वम् svam, property; भवति bhavati, becomes; इति iti, thus; पुत्रसद्भावः putra-sad-bhāvah, the actual (सत्) existence (भावः) of a son (पुत्र); स्वामिसद्भावः svāmi-sad bhāvah, the actual existence or servival of the owner; च cha, and; प्रतिबन्धः pratibandhaḥ, impediment, तदभावे tad-abhāve, on their ceasing; पितृव्यत्वेन pitṛivya-tvēna, in right of being uncle, भ्रातृत्वेन bhrātritvēna, in right of being a brother; च cha, and, स्वम् svam, property (his own); भवति bhavati, becomes; इति iti, thus; सप्रतिबन्धः sapratibandhaḥ, liable to obstruction, subject to obstruction; दायः dāyah, heritage; एवम् evam, thus; तत्पुत्रादिषु तत-putra-ādiṣu, in respect of their sons and other (descendants); अपि api, also; ऊहनीयः uhaniyah, is to be reasoned or to be inferred, to be taken as holding good.

3. It is of two sorts: unobstructed (apratibandha) or liable to obstruction (sapratibandha). The wealth of the father or of the paternal grandfather, becomes the property of his sons or of his grandsons in right of their being his sons or grandsons:

and that is an inheritance not liable to obstruction. But property devolves on parents (or uncles) brothers and the rest, upon the demise of the owner, if there be no male issue; and thus the actual existence of a son and the survival of the owner are impediments to the succession, and, on their ceasing, the property devolves on the successor in the right of his being uncle or brother. This is an inheritance subject to obstruction. The same holds good in respect of their sons and other (descendants):

Bālambhatta's Gloss.

2, 3.—He explains the term 'heritage'. 'Here' means while dealing with the 'partition of heritage.' It excludes the popular idea of acquisition by sale etc., 'Relation' means the connection of the progeny with the proprietor i. e., of the sons with the owner of the property &c. That the word 'heritage' is conventionally used when the property, of the former owner on the cessation of his ownership passes to another, as said previously, is refuted; because it contravenes the text 'if partition is effected.....' (II.114) which presupposes the ownership with birth. This kind of heritage is called 'unobstructed'; it is a Vahubriha, compound. He explained the first kind; 'tatra' means 'of the two.' Under text 'the land' of the 'grand father.....' (II. 121.) the grandsons have equal rights in the property with their father by reason of their birth without any other means of acquisition. It is unobstructed heritage.

He proceeds to describe the second kind of heritage which is liable to obstruction. 'Of the uncle and brother and the rest' in the text means the uncle, brother and others. Out of honour he is mentioned first; the uncle being entitled to the property is described already. Here the object in mentioning uncle is by way of illustration but not to indicate 'order'. There is another reading 'father and brother &c.'; this indicates the order and means parents and brother &c.,

'Upon the demise of the owner, if there be no male issue' contemplates the absence of both (the prepositus and the lineal descendants). 'In respect of their sons and other' means the sons &c. of the uncle &c., because when those who are entitled to the property of the deceased by reason of the unobstructed line come under the first category and those who are obstructed (by the presence of such lineal descendants) come under the second category.

विभागो नाम द्रव्यसमुदायविषयाणामतेकस्वाम्यानां तदेकदेशेषु द्रव्यस्य व्यवस्थापनम्।

विभागो नाम Vibhāgah-nāma, partition is (means); द्रव्य-समुदाय-विषयाणाम् dravya-samudāya-viṣayaṇām, of the objects of the whole of the wealth; अतेक स्वाम्यानां aneka-svāmīyānān, of divers rights; तदेकदेशेषु tad-ekadēśeṣu, on particular portions of the aggregate; द्रव्यस्य dravyasya, of the (whole).

wealth; व्यवस्थापनम् vyasthāpanam, adjustment.

4. Partitions (vibhaga) is the adjustment of divers rights regarding the whole, by distributing them on particular portions of the aggregate.

Balambhatta's Gloss.

4. Having explained the meaning of the term 'heritage', he explains the meaning of the term 'partition'. The separate allotment of the shares in the joint property of those who are not divided as of sons who have equal ownership therein is denoted by the term 'partition'.

एतदेवाभिप्रेत्योक्तं नारदेन ॥ विभागोऽर्थस्य पित्र्यस्य तनयैयंश्च कल्प्यते । दाय-
भागदृति प्रोक्तं व्यवहारपदं बुधैरिति । पित्र्यस्येति स्वत्वनिमित्संबन्धन्योपलक्षणम् ।
तनयैरित्यपि प्रत्यासन्नोपलक्षणम् ।

एतद् Etad this; एव eva, very, the same opinion; अभिप्रेत्य abhipretya, meaning, intending, referring, supporting; उक्तम् uktam, it is said; नारदेन nārdena, by Nārad; विभागः vibhāgah, division; अर्थस्य arthasya, of the estate; पित्र्यस्य pitryasya, of the paternal; तनयैः tanayaiḥ, by the sons; यत्र yatra, where; कल्प्यते kalpyate, is instituted; दाय-भागः dāya-bhāgah, partition of heritage; इति iti, as; प्रोक्तम् proktam, called; व्यवहार-पदम् vyaya-hāra-padam, topic of litigation; बुधैः budhaiḥ, by the wise; इति iti, so, thus; पित्र्यस्य pitryasya, "of the paternal"; इति iti, means; स्वत्वं svatva, of property; निमित्तं nimitta, the cause (which is); सम्बन्धोपलक्षणम् sambandha-upalakṣaṇam, something that implies the relation; तनयैः tanyaiḥ, 'by sons'; इति iti, this; अपि api, too; प्रत्यासन्नोपलक्षणम् pratyāsanna-upalakṣaṇam, is) something that implies propinquity.

5. Entertaining the same opinion, Narada says, "Where a division of the paternal estate is instituted by sons, that becomes a topic of litigation called by the wise partition of heritage". "Paternal" here implies any relation, which is a cause of property. "By sons" indicates propinquity in general.

Balambhatta's Gloss.

5. He supports the above view from a quotation from Nārada. Paitrasya (paternal) is formed by adding 'an' according to the rule enunciated by Panini ('His it.' IV. 3. 120. See for further explanation Panini's Grammar of the Panini Office, at page 792); while 'pitryasya' which is the reading of Kalpataru is not correct, because it is read in connection with the rights of the deities. Yatra in the text of Nārada means 'in litigation'. There is another reading 'तद्विवादपदं बुधैः' (topic of dispute); here tat qualifies the thing described.

In order to avoid the defect, he explains one's said wealth passing to another. 'Paternal' in the text which means the relation with the owner by virtue of which ownership in the property arises is by way of illustration. It includes the property of the grandfather also. He therefore says 'sons'; 'propinquity' means unobstructed relation. The previously said division of the undivided land, gold etc, in which there is a right by birth, in the absence of the conclusive proof of title by reason of their being incapable of special mode of transfer by casting lots, is set aside. By reason of the general nature of the relationship causing the ownership and by reason of the absence of the conclusive proof of title in keeping the property intact, it is very difficult to say; otherwise then also, there will be freedom of action and mutual hostility.

इदमिह निरूपणीयम् । कस्मिन्काले कस्य कथं कैश्च विभागः कर्तव्यादृति । तत्र कस्मिन्काले कथं कैश्चेति तत्र तत्र श्लोकव्याख्यानरव वद्यते । कस्यविभागादृत्ये तावदिहचिन्त्यते ।

इदम् idam, this, these points; हह iha, here, under this head ; निरूपणीयम् nirūpanīyam, to be explained, कस्मिन् kasmin, at what ; काले kale, (at) time ; कस्य kasya, of what ; कथम् katham, how ; कैः kaiḥ, by whom ; च cha, and ; विभागः vibhāgah, a partition ; कर्तव्यः kartavyah, is to be made ; इति iti, so, thus, then, now ; तत्र tatram, there ; कस्मिन् kasmin, at what ; काले kale, time ; कथम् katham, how ; कैः kaiḥ, by whom ; च cha, and ; इति iti, all these ; तत्र तत्र tatram, in those various places, and respectively ; श्लोक-व्याख्याने śloka-vyākhāne, in the course of interpreting stanzas ; एव eva, very, indeed ; वद्यते vakṣyate, will be explained ; कस्य kasya, of what ; विभागः vibhāgah, the partition ; इति iti, thus ; एतावद् etāvad, this much, so much ; हह iha, here ; चिन्त्यते chintyate, is considered.

6. The points to be explained under this (head of inheritance) are, at what time, how, and by whom, a partition is to be made, of what. The time, the manner, and the persons, when, in which, and by whom it may be made, will be explained in the course of interpreting stanzas on those subjects respectively. What that is, of which a partition takes place is here considered.

किं विभागात्स्वत्वमुत्त स्वस्य सतोविभागादृति । तत्रस्वत्वमेव तावद्विस्तृप्यते । किंशाश्वैकसमधिगम्यं स्वत्वमुत्त प्रमाणान्तरसमधिगम्यमिति ।

किम् kim, what, whether, it (to be taken as showing the interrogative form); विभागात् vibhāgāt, from partition ; स्वत्वम् svatvam, property ; उत् ut, or ; स्वस्य svasya, of property ; सतः sataḥ, which is pre-existent ; विभागः vibhāgah, property ; इति iti, so, thus ; तत्र tatram, under this ; स्वत्वम् svatvam, proprietary right¹; एव eva, the same, itself ; तावद् tayad, wholly, necessarily.

ly, निरूप्यते nirūpyate, is explained ; किम् kim, whether ; श्रमणैक astra-eka, from the sacred institutes alone ; समधिगम्यम् samadhibigamyam, is to be deduced ; स्वत्वम् svatvam, property ; उत् uta, or , प्रमाणान्तर pramāṇa-antara, from other proof ; समधिगम्यम् samadhibigamyam, to be deduced ; इति iti, such (is the question).

7. Does property arise from partition ? or does partition of pre-existent property take place ? Under this (head of discussion) proprietary right is itself necessarily explained : (and the question is) : Whether property be deduced from the sacred institutes alone, or from other (and temporal) proof.

Balambhatta's Gloss.

6 & 7. Having explained the relevancy, in order to make a determination and to come to the subject of partition, at the outset he says 'idam' (this); 'iha' (here) means 'under this subject of partition'. Here 'kasya' (whose) points to the property; 'katham' (how) means 'the mode' and 'kaśchha' (by whom) means the agents, the actors, 'Tatra' (there) means 'amongst the four'; 'iha' (here) means 'first' because of its being the original cause and useful in the subject of hertiage.

There is two fold determination; the first point to be determined is the property to be partitioned. The question is, does partition create a title in one who has no property ? because by partition there is separate property but not before it; or does birth alone create a title but not partition ? because thereby arises in one a right to get the property partitioned. This is therefore one point. He says 'does property arise from partition ?' 'Swam' (property) means 'one's own'; 'swasya' (of the property) 'of one's own pre-existing'; 'tatra' (there) means in the above said determination; 'eva' (only) indicates the impossibility without the determination thereof. 'That it is so, will be manifest later on; here in this determination there is the topic of the property. Then he puts a question 'whether...from the sacred institutes alone'; it means 'that alone'; 'from other proof' means 'temporal'.

प्रयम् शास्त्र-eka-samudhigamynam, to be deduced from holy institutes alone ; स्वत्वम् svatvam, property ; इति iti, so, thus.

8. (It is alleged, tha) the inferring of property from the saered code alone is right, on account of the text of Gautama ; "An owner is by inheritance, purchase, partition, seizure, or finding. Acceptance is for a Brahmana an additional mode; conquest for a Cshatriya, gain for a Vaisya, or Sudra". For, if property were deducible from other proof, this text would not be pertinent. So the precept ("A Bramana, who seeks to obtain anything, even by sacrificing or by instructing from the hand of a man, who had taken what was not given to him, is considered precisely as a theif ;) which directs the punishment of such as obtain valuables, by officiating at religious rites, or by other similar means, from a wrongdoer who has taken what was not given to him, would be irrelevant if property were temporal. Moreover, were property a worldly matter, one could not say, "My property has been wrongfully taken by him " for it would belong to the taker. Or, (if it be objected that) the property of another was seized by this man, and it therefore does not become the property of the usurper ; (the answer is) then no doubt could exist, whether it appertain to one or to the other, any more than in regard to the species, whether gold, silver or the like. Therefore property is a result of holy institutes exclusively.

Bālambhātta's Gloss.

8. He proceeds to explain the first view ; 'tatra' means 'of these two' He explains the same ; 'owner' has been explained already ; it will be clear at every step in the original. He explains the source of its acquisition ; 'other proof' means temporal. This is Gantama's text. There is no use in repetition ; he shows the contradiction with another text. 'So' (tatha) 'if property were temporal' should be connected with what follows ; 'from a wrong doer who has taken what was not given to him' is in the genitive case and means connected with the hand : taking the property from the hand of a thief who has acquired the property of another who has not given it. Subsequently, he explains the result ; 'Yajana' (officiating at religious rites) is a dwanda compound : 'api' (even) means 'the different modes of acquisition'. Comparison with theft is with a view to inflict punishment.

He gives a reason in support of the property being non-temporal. 'Moreover', 'property' ; 'that' is understood ; he gives a reason, 'it would belong to the taker' because we see it in his possession. In order to avoid this difficulty, he raises a special doubt. 'Athā', he proceeds to remove it; 'similarly then' (evam tarhi) on the property being temporal and on its being seized upon by another, if the owner complains, 'my property has been taken away by him'; there arises no such doubt in the mind of the hearing members of the assembly (judges of the court or the jury). Just as in the worldly affair on examining gold or silver, there is no doubt left whether it is gold etc. or not, similarly there will be none in the case of the property. By reason of the existence of the millions of credentials from the people, a doubt, however, arises and it can not be said 'the property, therefore, does not belong to the seizer.' Or in the alternative, the complainant (or the plaintiff) should be asked 'there is no conviction (certainty) that the property does not belong to the usurper.' 'Similarly then'; just as on the conviction arising that it is gold or silver, there is no doubt left as to gold etc., so it is in the present case; but not so in the second case, because it can not be said that the property does not belong to the usurper, on conviction not arising. In this way he sums up, 'therefore...'

but as in the form of fire etc ; इह iha, here ; तु tu, but ; सुवर्णदिरुणे॑ suvarṇādi-rūpeṇa, through the form of gold etc ; न na, not ; क्रयादि krayādi, the purchase etc ; साधनत्वम् sādhanatvam, the virtue of being the means of effecting ; अपि api, indeed ; तु tu, but ; स्वत्वेन svatvena, by virtue of its being property ; एव eva, only ; न na, not ; हि hi, because ; यस्य yasya, whose, of a person ; यत् yat, which ; स्वम् svam, property ; न na, not ; भवति bhavati, becomes . तत् tat, that ; तस्य tasya, his ; क्रयादि krayādi, by sale &c. ; अर्थ-क्रिया॑ artha-kriyām, transfer of a thing ; साध्यति sādhyati, does not give effect ; अपि च api-cha, even and ; प्रत्यान्तवासिनाम् pratyāanta-vāsinām, of the inhabitants of the barbarous countries ; अपि api, even ; अद्युपश्यवहाराणाम् adṛiṣṭaśāstravyaya hārāṇām, who are unacquainted with the practices in the sacred code ; स्वत्वद्यवहारः svatva-vyavahāraḥ, use of the property ; दृश्यते dṛiṣyatे, is seen ; क्रय-विक्रयादि-दर्शनात् kraya-vikrayādi-darśanāt, by seeing purchase-sale &c.

9. To this the answer is, property is temporal only, for it effects transactions relative to worldly purposes, just as rice or similar substances do: but the consecrated fire, and the like, deducible from the sacred institutes, do not give effect to actions relative to secular purposes. (It is asked) does not a consecrated fire effect the boiling of food, and so, of the rest? (The answer is) No; for it is not as such, that the consecrated flame operates the boiling of food ; but, as a fire perceptible to the senses: and so, in other cases. But, here, it is not through its visible form, either gold or the like, that the purchase of a thing is effected, but through property only. That, which is not a person's property in a thing, does not give effect to his transfer of it by sale or the like. Besides, the use of property is seen also among inhabitants of barbarous countries, who are unacquainted with the practices directed in the sacred code; for purchase, sale, and similar transactions are observed among them.

Bālambhattā's gloss.

9. Here is the author's view ; 'to this the answer is etc.' : he proceeds to prove the property to be temporal by syllogistic reasoning (inference). 'Property' is the minor term, 'temporal purpose' is the major term and 'secular purpose' is the middle term (reason). He gives the 'example' in the affirmative and negative forms ; 'just as rice or similar substances.' Accordingly,

I.

Property is temporal

∴ It is a means to transact temporal purpose.

1.—1. Whatever is a means to transact temporal purpose is temporal, as for example rice &c.

2. It is so ; (property is a means to transact temporal purpose).

3 ∴ property is temporal

II.—1. Whatever is not temporal is (also) not a means to transact temporal purpose, as for example, the consecrated fire &c. It is an example of negation. 'Of the consecrated fire and the res.', 'hi', because. He proceeds to show the defect in the pervasion by suggesting that if it were possible, the inference not manifest from negation is not reliable. 'Does not a consecrated fire &c' ? means that though it was non-temporal, yet being used in cooking for temporal purpose the negative inference is defective ; 'also' refers to rice &c. He proceeds to answer it ; 'not so' : though the consecrated fire has two-fold form, its use for cooking is not from the scriptural texts, since the resorting to the cooking purpose is on account of the form of the temporal fire inferior to the form of the non-temporal consecrated fire. It can not be done by means of the form of the non-temporal consecrated fire ; similarly if it were so, there will be no cooking by means of the temporal fire which is inferior in form to the non-temporal consecrated fire. The same (result) does not happen everywhere by means of the general form, otherwise by reason of its serving the secular object, the scriptural text would be meaningless ; its being a means to temporal purpose is, therefore, based upon the the result which accrues. There is, therefore, no defect in the pervasion. In the present case also viz the gold &c there should be a means of the worldly transactions of sale and purchase by the mere appearance of gold &c, but not by their being property. How can they be temporal ? He proceeds to meet the objection by 'here &c' ; 'through property only' means 'only by one who is possessed of it.' Harping on the same, he develops the same (argument) ; 'not so' (nahiti). He adduces a reason in support of the view that even the special transaction amongst the people does not establish the non-temporal nature of the property ; 'and also' ; 'pratyantah' means barbarous country : it suggests the per usual way of scriptural knowledge. He explains it ; 'unacquainted with' means 'ignorant of' i. e. the barbarians. Now the use thereof is said to be in conformity with a standard ; but where is the proof of the existence of the standard ? How can you presume it (the proposition) to be proved ? He therefore says, 'purchase'.

10. Moreover, such as are conversant with the science of reasoning, deem regulated means of acquisition a matter of popular recognition. In the third clause of the Lipsa Sūtra, the venerable author has examined and pronounced untenable an objection to it, that, "if restrictions, relative to the acquisition of goods, apply to the religious ceremony, there could be no property; since proprietary right is not temporal" ; (by showing that) "the efficacy of acceptance and other modes of acquisitions in constituting proprietary right, is matter of popular recognition." Does it not follow, "if the mode of acquiring the goods concern the religious ceremony, there can be no right of property, and consequently no celebration of a sacrifice"? (Answer.) "It is a blunder of any one who affirms that acquisition does not produce a proprietary right, since this is a contradiction in terms". Accordingly, the author, having again acknowledged property to be a matter of popular recognition, when he states the demonstrated doctrine, proceeds to explain the purpose of the disquisition in this manner. 'Therefore, a breach of the restriction affects the person, not the religious ceremony:' and the meaning of this passage is thus expounded: 'If restrictions, respecting the acquisition of chattels, regard the religious ceremony, its celebration would be perfect with such property as was acquired consistently with those rules; and not so, if performed with wealth obtained by infringing them; and consequently, according to the objector's opinion, the fault would not affect the man, if he deviated from the rule: but, according to the demonstrated conclusion, since the restriction, regarding acquisition affects the person, the performance of the religious ceremony is complete, even with property acquired by a breach of the rule; and it is only an offence on the part of the man, because he has violated an obligatory rule.' It is consequently acknowledged, that even what is gained by infringing restrictions, is property: because, otherwise, there would be no completion of a religious ceremony.

Balambhatta's gloss.

10. The real nature of the property meets the approval of those who are conversant with the science of reasoning. 'Moreover'; 'regulated means of acquisition' means acceptance of gifts, earning &c., ; 'those who are conversant with the science of reasoning' means they also: how? On this question arising, he gives the said reply by 'as for example' (tathā hi); 'desire' means 'in the sūtra in which the word occurs i. e. Chapter IV. Pāda 1, the second topic (which runs thus) "(puruṣārtha is that) in which there is love of a man and that love is indicated by (a certain) object (which) is inseparably connected (with it)"*

Under the 1st head there is the discussion on the definition of the

* See Pārva Mīmāṃsa p. 199 of S. B. H. vol XXVI

Kratvartha and Puṇṣārtha, under the second head there is a discussion as to whether milk-pail &c., are kratvartha or puṇṣārtha: under the third head there is this discussion—the rules as to the acquisition of wealth from scattered texts—a Brahmana may earn wealth by acceptance of gifts &c., a king by victory &c., a Vaisya by agriculture &c. Doubt arises whether they (earnings) are kratvartha or puṇṣārtha. Here is the objector's view; even on (assuming) their real nature and not accepting them to be for the religious purpose, by reason of the absence of an authorised person, it is proper that the distribution of wealth by means of an agent (to obviate) the meaninglessness of the vidhi, is for the religious purpose. The meaning is, just as in acquiring wealth spent in a religious ceremony, (as for instance) 'he purchases soma' &c., the rule about the acquisition of wealth is for the religious purpose; similarly are the rules relating to the acceptance of gifts &c.: otherwise, the rule relating to the acquisition of wealth by reason of being of no use in effecting transactions and removing hunger &c., will be meaningless. Further there is no context to show that it is for a religious purpose, nor can it be said to be a case of disparity. On the contrary it is proved to be a subsidiary part by the force of the sacrifice dependent on the invisible means and the force of the rule depending on the invisible object. It can be urged that there can be no living, if all the earnings are for a religious purpose, because it can be accomplished with earnings by improper means; or if the sacrificial rite be for one's own interest by reason of the sacrifice being not capable of accomplishment without livelihood, it follows that the wealth acquired by lawful means is for the purpose of living. It is an illustration of earning wealth in the shape of acquisition of wealth. The writer of Tantraratna (Pārthasārthi) has said contrary to the Vārtika and reason; for it should be borne in mind that in the Mimāṃsā, there is investigation of the duties to be performed.

He thus derides, commencing from 'property' and ending with 'raising objection.' On the rules relating to the acquisition of wealth being for the sacrifice, by the property being non-temporal, by the non-production of a temporal reason, by the intervention of the Vedic cause, by the regulated means such as acceptance &c. being for the sacrifice, by being for any other object and by the absence of the production of an effect from no cause on account of the want of the proprietary right by reason of non-accrual of proprietary right, the sacrifice can not be accomplished. The objector's view that rules are with the religious object is untenable. It is the meaning (it is how the matter stands).

He supports it; 'of acquisition of goods': it is connected with the opposite. While discussing, "one should acquire wealth by means of officiating as priest &c.", it has been already explained. Here 'acceptance' (pratigraha) means a 'particular acceptance'; 'earning' means 'acquisition of wealth.' One should therefore, desire wealth 'by officiating as priests &c.', so it is said previously in the smriti: 'One should worship God for acquisition and protection of wealth' I—100.

The original text signifies the means of earning.

"Out of six, three callings are his means" livelihood ; officiating as a priest, teaching and acceptance (of gift) from a pious (man) M. X 76. It follows from Manu. The rules as to acceptance &c., for the acquisition of proprietary right, by means of using wealth in a sacrifice, are for the religious object ; just as the act of threshing which removes the husk by reason of rice being used in a sacrifice becomes a sacrificial object. But old people consider that proprietary right by birth as that of a son like the proprietary right acquired by an acquirer in the thing acquired in the form of the relationship of the proprietary right and the proprietor, is temporal, because it is asserted that the relation of an action and the agent (nominative) slave and except the other cases depends on an action whether scriptural or non-scriptural. The relationship of an agent and action depending on an action as said by (Hari) Hārita is well known among people and does not stand in need of any other proof. On the cessation of the action of earning, the result thereof does not necessarily cease, because the substratum in the shape of relationship exists. On the action of the father ceasing, paternal (relationship) does not come to an end. Though the proprietary right is temporal, yet by accomplishing the sacrificial object, its absence does not follow: this is the essence.

Is it that in acquiring the proprietary right by earning, the above-said rules being for the sacrificial object and the earning being also for the sacrificial and other objects there is no property ? The absence of sacrifice remains in the same state ; the view of the objector is not proved : thus he says. "Does it not (.....) of a sacrifice"; he ridicules it and rejects it ; 'uttered a nonsense'(pralapitam) means that earning does not produce proprietary right is a nonsense uttered by some one, because both are contradictory, or it means that some one has uttered a non-sense ; here is a reason assigned. 'Earning' because &c. ; 'iti vadata' is connected with the 'gurunā' (Prabhākara) : earning is synonymous with the duty of an earner as explained previously and the relationship of the property with its owner. It is two-sided like father and son (correlative), because without a thing earned, for want of earning, the act of earning does not produce proprietary right and like the expression, 'my mother is barren' is self-contradictory.

If the objector's view is erroneous, it can not be the author's view (demonstrated truth); therefore he says in the demonstrated truth also (siddhante api) : it is thus. When a person is entitled and bent on earning wealth, on his acquiring it, it is improper to apply the rules thereof to a sacrifice. When a person is desirous of wealth, he is engaged out of affection but not by rules ; by reason of his engagement in it against the rules, the injunction relating to it does not become meaningless. Moreover, on all sorts of earning being for the sacrificial purpose, the entire earning is for sacrificial purpose ; there being no means of livelihood (left), the whole sacrifice fails. On the contrary, on the inference arising from the texts suggesting both the sacrificial and temporal objects, ordinarily it is not merely for the sacrificial object. The reference to earning of wealth is therefore, not by reason of the sacrifice being for a religious purpose but by reason of its being for a secular purpose. Otherwise, there will be a contradiction with reference to earning of wealth for a sacrifice as mentioned in the sixth chapter "of the first three castes, only person possessed of wealth (is entitled to perform a sacrifice); because accomplishment of an act depends on wealth". (Mimamsa VI-1-39 at p. 310 of vol XXVIII of S. B. H.) There is another aneity "An initiated one begs alms for twelve nights and purchases soma", under which begging of alms &c., by prohibiting earning of wealth is enjoined,* and earning of wealth by other means is considered a sin. It can be said that its result is not the earning of wealth like 'let gold be worn' (see at 130-132 of Jaimini's Mimamsa S. B. H.) It is possible where the result is visible by reason of the unlawfulness of the invisible result. The rules are, therefore, with the temporal object. Though they are laid down there properly, yet like the sacred thread &c., they should be understood with both objects ; therefore "let a twice-born always perform (a sacrifice) with wealth earned lawfully", fits in with the Twentyfour views;† similarly earning also. Therefore livelihood &c., quoted before from Manu (see p. 16) should be considered as relevant. The sum and substance is that it appears to be the siddhānta view that wealth accomplishing all objects is for secular purpose and the rules relating thereto are also with that purpose. 'Disquisition' means the purpose of the disquisition under the topic (adhikarna). He explains the nature of the object of the demonstrated doctrine (siddhānta). "Therefore, a breach of the restriction" means the fault arising therefrom ; therefore he develops it. "The meaning of this" means "of the work full of purpose i. e. the original text"; 'expounded' by the Guru (Prabhākara) is understood. "If...deviated to the rule" means "with the end of the text"; in the objector's view, there is thereby no fault of the man, but by reason of the failure of the sacrifice, the sacrifice is not thereby accomplished. But according to the siddhānta view by reason of a man violating them there is the fault of the man but not the failure of the sacrifice ; it is the purport. 'Eva' is with a view to distinction ; 'in the objector's view' (Pūrvapakṣa) is connected with the previous : 'is' is the reading. But in the view of the objector earning of wealth being a part of a ceremony the wealth which is essential should be acquired before the commencement of the ceremonies, there being no authority of acquiring it at a particular time. There is no sin even on the failure of the ceremony on the non-acquisition of the wealth at that time, because a person of means is entitled to it. On the contrary, in the siddhānta (demonstrated conclusion), a ceremony should be performed with the wealth acquired previously. According to the objector's view the earnings from the acceptance of gifts etc, should be taken for the religious purpose but according to the demonstrated conclusion, it should be accomplished by any means; by this what Rāṇaka (Nyāya-sudhi, the commentary on Tantravārtika by Someswara Bhatta) has said, is refuted. It is like the sin arising on in observance of the restrictive rules by happening of the undesired events to a man, by reason of the fault arising from the misfortune from the hardship undergone for the sacrifice which fails for want of the fruit of the sacrifice obtainable with difficulty. Hence in the topic relating to low castes, it is said 'a

* See Mimamsa at p. 411 of vol. XXVIII of S. B. H.

† Dr. Ganganath Jha informs me that चतुर्विश्विमत् is the name of some work.

Sūdra should not be taught'; on a Sūdra violating the prohibition there is a failure of the sacrifice, and a sin in addition. So it is said by the commentator (Śīvara). It should be accordingly borne in mind.

At the conclusion of the subject under discussion, he gives the result. "Even what is gained by infringing restrictions" means 'and similarly' etc., i. e. by the author holding the siddhānta view; 'even' suggests the Kāṇṭūtīka maxim see p. 9 of vol. XXVIII; P. XXXI of vol. XXIX of S. B. II)* 'Other wise' means there will be no proprietary right in the earnings by violation of the rules. The rules being for the religious object and by the acquisition being for it, the property becomes non-temporal; there being no proprietary right, the livelihood is impossible; from the absence (of livelihood) follows the failure (of the sacrifice).

एवम् Evam, thus ; प्रतिग्रहादि pratigrahādi, by acceptance and any other ; उपायके upāyake, by means such as acceptance etc. ; स्वत्वे svatvē, property : लौकिके laukike, temporal ; स्थिते sthīte, being established ; ब्राह्मणस्य brahmaṇasya, for a brahmaṇa ; प्रतिग्रहादयः pratigrahādayaḥ, acceptance etc. ; उपायः upāyāḥ, means, क्षत्रियस्य kṣatriyasya, for a kṣatriya ; विजितादयः vijitādayaḥ, conquest etc. ; वैश्यस्य vaiśyasya, for a vaiśya ; कृष्णादयः kṛiṣṇādayaḥ, husbandry etc. ; शूद्रस्य śūdrasya, for a śudra ; शुद्रूपादयः śūdrūṣādayaḥ, service and the rest ; हति iti, so ; अद्वृतार्थः adṛiṭārtha, for spiritual purposes ; नियमाः niyamāḥ, restrictions ; रिक्तादयः rikthādayaḥ, inheritance and others ; तु tu, but ; सर्वसाधारणाः sarva-sādhāraṇāḥ, common to all ; स्वामी svāmī, an owner is ; रिक्त्य riktha, inheritance ; क्रया kraya, purchase ; सविभाग savibhāga, partition ; परिग्रहा parigraha, seizure ; अधिगमेषु adhigameṣu, finding ; हति iti; so ; उक्ताः uktāḥ, are stated.

12. Thus, since property, obtained by acceptance or any other (sufficient) means, is established to be temporal, the acceptance of alms, as well as other (prescribed) modes for a Brahmana, conquest and similar means for a Kshatriya, husbandry and the like for a Vaisya, and service and the rest for a Sudra, are propounded as restrictions intended for spiritual purposes ; and inheritance and other modes are stated as means common to all. "An owner is by inheritance, purchase, partition, seizure, or finding".

Balambhatta's gloss.

12 In this way having established the temporal nature of the property, he repels the futility of the uncommon injunction. "Similarly acceptance" etc, (evam prati) ; 'vijita' (conquest) is derived by adding ktah to denote an abstract noun and means victory etc.; 'prescribed modes' should be repeated every where in the following (passage). 'Spiritual' (adṛista) means 'wealth is for spiritual purpose' or in other words the restrictive rules are for spiritual purpose. Even in the absence of the injunctive text, he proceeds to repeat the above mentioned arguments to support the non-secular nature of the property and to show the

Inutility of Gantam's text having complete enumeration (see placitum 8 at p. 8) "Inheritance....." should be referred to. 'All' includes 'mixed race' in order to enumerate them, he says, "an owner."

(काण्ड) kāndas ; तत् तत् तत् tat tat, all that ; असाधारणम् asādhāraṇam, as peculiar ; वेदितव्यम् vedi-tavyam, should be understood.

13. Unobstructed heritage is here denominated "inheritance." "Purchase" is well known. "Partition" means heritage subject to sale or auction. "Occupation" or seizure is the appropriation of water, grass, wood and the like not previously appertaining to any other [person as owner.] "Finding" is the discovery of a hidden treasure or the like. 'If these reasons exist, the person is owner.' If they take place, he becomes proprietor. 'For a Brahmana, that which is obtained by acceptance or the like, is additional ; not common [to all the tribes]. 'Additional' is understood in the subsequent sentence ; 'for a Kshatriya, what is obtained by victory, or by amercement or the like, is peculiar.' In the next sentence, "additional" is again understood : "what is gained or earned by agriculture, keeping of cattle, [traffic,] and so forth, is for a Vaisya peculiar ; and so is, for a Sūdra, that which is earned in the form of wages, by obedience to the regenerate classes and by similar means." Thus likewise, among the various causes of property which are familiar to mankind, whatever has been stated as peculiar to certain mixed classes in the direct or inverse order of the tribes, (as the driving of horses, which is the profession of the sutas, and so forth,) is indicated by the word "earned" (nirvista) : for all such acquisitions assume the form of wages or hire ; and the noun (nirveśa) is explained in the Trikāndi as signifying wages.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

Here (tatra) means 'of those'; 'not previously appertaining to any other' 'of that which is not owned by any one' (res nullius); having explained the categories, he proceeds to explain the meaning of the passage. 'They', is to show the appropriateness of what is laid down ; 'becomes' shows that every thing is with that object. "If these reasons exist, the person is owner" means if these reasons are known (to exist) the owner is known ; by this, the view of the objector is repelled, because there is success with that object. He proceeds to explain the meaning of the succeeding passage. 'For a Brahman', over and above; he says by filling up the ellipsis by reason of its inherent power, being in conformity with another text and being concomitant with it. 'Acceptance'; 'additional' shows 'its excellence' : 'peculiar' i. e. 'conquered' is a figurative expression standing for victory. 'Amercement'; 'additional' is understood: it is the reading. He says with the object of earning for enjoyment ; agriculture etc., include earning by trade etc. In order to remove the anomaly, he applies the said principle elsewhere. 'Thus, likewise'; 'they are peculiar of those which end in the genitive case' should be connected here also ; "among the causes of the proprietary right" means 'of them' : 'all that' means 'of them.'

यद्यपि पत्नी दुहितरश्चेत्यादिस्मरणं तत्रापि स्वामसिम्बन्धितया बहुपु दायविभागितया प्राप्तेषु लोकप्रसिद्धेऽपि स्वत्वे व्यामोहनिवृत्यर्थं स्मरणमिति सर्वमनवद्यम् । १४॥

यद्यपि yadi-api, as ; पत्नी patni, the wife (that has become the widow) ; दुहितरः duhitaraḥ, daughters ; च chha, and ; इत्यादि itiādi, etc स्मरणम् smaraṇam्, the déclarátion, तत्र tatra, there, in that text ; अपि api, too ; स्वामी-सम्बन्धितया svā-nisaiubandhi-tayā, by reason of their affinity to the late owner ; बहुपु bahuṣu, among many persons ; दायविभागितया dāya vibhāgitaya, because they (are supposed to be) entitled to share (विभागि) the heritage (दाय) ; प्राप्तेषु prāpteṣu, being-supposed, when they are supposed to be etc.

लोकप्रसिद्धे loka-prasiddhe, though it is a matter familiar to the world ; अपि api, even ; सत्वे svatvo, the proprietary right ; व्यामोहा vyāmoha, mistake ; निरूप्त्यर्थम् nivṛitti-ar�am, for the purpose of preventing ; स्मरणम् smarṇam, is the declaration ; हृति hṛiti, therefore ; सर्वम् sarvam, the whole ; अनवयम् anyadyam, is unexceptionable.

14. As for the precept respecting the succession of the widow and the daughters, &c., the declaration (of the order of succession,) even in that text is intended to prevent mistake, although the right of property be a matter familiar to the world, where many persons might (but for that declaration).

Balambhatta's gloss.

14. If the property were temporal the text as to 'wife and daughter etc.', (see II. 135) would be contradictory ; because by reason of the absence of the owner the wife etc., have been declared entitled. In order to remove the anomaly arising by the way, though not explained before and stated merely by Goutama, he states. 'Although' etc.; 'there also' means 'in the text' ; 'in their absence' is understood. There is another reading 'order of succession' (krama smarṇam), otherwise 'even there' becomes incongruous. In this way, the semblance of contradiction with other smritis should be removed ; there is then, no contradiction of the texts.

Here it should be borne in mind, what is that proprietary right which is said to be temporal by the siddhānti (propounder) ? It is not an object of the means prohibited by the scripture but of lawful and free modes of transactions of sale and acceptance of gift ; it can not be known by the external organs of sense : it may be said that the special mental cognition of the acceptance etc., being the object of special mental cognition and the statement with the object of its impropriety are nearly explained. Because even after the cessation of the acceptance, there is the accrual of proprietary right by virtue of the transaction, e. g., by gift etc., the proprietary right ceases (in one) and is created (in another) by acceptance etc. If that were not so by reason of accepting the cessation (of the ownership) by gift and its creation by acceptance of a particular thing, even then it is an object of perception by the external organs of sense by reason of the ordinary practice 'I see the property'. It is not an unwarrantable stretch of a rule ; by reason of the knowledge thereof on realisation, it is like the proprietary right residing therein and the unchecked and free use thereof. Therefore on not taking it into possession, on its being used freely according to one's wishes and on its seizure by the exercise of proprietary right wrongfully, there is no possession thereof. From this, the proprietary right is inferred ; on the other hand it is not an object of sensual perception (and one can not say) I see the proprietary right as 'I perceive a smelling sandal'. Thus the view of the opponent is repelled by reason of its being refuted elsewhere.

The gifts are of two kinds; one is of which the fruit is visible and the other of which the fruit is not visible. They are subdivided into two; one with acceptance and the other without it. Although 'gift with acceptance' is mere acceptance, yet (in the passage) 'let a Brahmana earn wealth by acceptance (of gift)' by reason of the prohibition enjoined by the smriti texts as regards the acceptance of gift of horse and sesamum, the word acceptance 'of gift' (pratigraha) means the acceptance of the donation for invisible purpose. On the acceptance of sesamum and horse given as reward, no one is in fault nor is there any breach of rules as regards earning by a warrior. The reward should be said to be for visible object. The word ('dāna) is derived from /d meaning relinquishment of one's proprietary right in order to create it in another.

On the other hand, the creation of the proprietary right in another does not merely depend on the relinquishment of one's proprietary right, but it must be said that it arises in reality by acceptance only. On simply giving up a cow in favour of a Brahmana (saying) 'the cow belongs to the Brahman, it is not mine' even with the full knowledge of the relinquishment by all present, the proprietary right arises by acceptance. Therefore (in cases like) 'let one offer funeral cakes to the manes' there is the illustration of the fourth (gift without acceptance) on the suspension of the proprietary right in the thing offered to the manes by reason of the want of acceptance and by reason of the reality of dedication made to the manes in compliance with the above said meaning of /dā. Under the belief of an owner being abroad, the possession by acceptance of his relinquished property and then on the death of the owner, possession after partition of his property by his sons etc., as inheritance but not by any other are the common occurrences; otherwise there will be no offence in a stranger's taking possession of his wealth like them, as in obtaining forest grass etc. In this way the acceptance of a gift should not be considered to be useless by reason of the text. 'It is eight times meritorious to accept it', because of the accrual of the excessive reward on the gift of such accepted wealth. On the other hand, the word of quantity is with a view to save the non-use of the passage (one gives) in a context where the subject of reunion is discussed and on the creation of the joint property after the extinction of the separate property.

Nor is there no extinction of proprietary right; on obviating the undue stretch of a rule by the extinction of the proprietary right, the word of quantity is useless: there also by assuming the extinction of previous proprietary right by non accrual of it in the proprietor of it. On accepting the exciting force of volition, there is some force; thereby there is no extinction of the proprietary right but mere creation of the proprietary right in another: on the other hand the creation of the proprietary right in one who is possessed of it, by the stimulating force of the volition is refuted. It can not be said that there is wrong in overlooking it; because by not creating proprietary right in an other, there is no applicability of the passage 'he gives'. Similarly it does not apply in the case of sale by reason of its non-creation of proprietary right according to the rules. In such a case to obviate the undue extension of the rule, the proprietary right arises by the previous acceptance of the sale-consideration. In this way, by the word 'gift etc.', the same applies in the case of sale; because the extinction and creation of the right take place in both of them. It should not be said that the right arising from gift etc. is useless and improper. The text is with a view to support the creation of the right arising from it and inferable from the scripture even on its production from the temporal agents and inferable from the evidence thereof.

Similarly by "A Brahman by acceptance of gift etc.,.....owner by inheritance" the acceptance etc., are clearly said to be essential, not by the last clause even on so describing, but by the first; the essential nature arises by earning but not by the proprietary right; earning may be said, as described previously, as constituting profit and loss the means of acquiring wealth. Just like the purport of the text, 'let one who is possessed of wealth by acceptance of gifts etc., appropriate wealth by earning it', it is also acquired by the same means. Therefore 'let wealth be earned by means of sacrifice etc.' means that gift etc. are the means of acquiring proprietary right in earning wealth by acceptance of gift etc., as explained previously. The act of acceptance of gift etc., is therefore, an earning and like it, it is also a means thereof.

There is the following order: in the creation (of a right) in the beginning, there is relinquishment; then acceptance of gift, then earning, then proprietary right. The middle two (constituents) do not exist by (the non-existence of) the first; similarly in other cases. Similarly in 'creation by acceptance of gift', creation is apparently a common factor; etc., include like officiating as a priest, teaching, victory, agriculture, service, relinquishment of like things, inheritance which is common and anything effected by sale. There the real nature of the acceptance of gift etc., and relinquishment and sale is explained and the real nature of the acceptance of gift and finding like them is obvious. By 'inheritance' (riktha) is meant the mere relationship with the owner arising from heritage; by partition is meant the absence of the particular obstruction of that kind; their non-contradictory nature was explained previously, so there is nothing wrong. The partition as described previously does not create proprietary right being a part thereof (compound forming with heritage). This is the reason why Goutama and others have not included it amongst causes. 'By partition arises proprietary right' is the subject for discussion according to others; in the text of Goutama the word 'samvibhāga' (partition) means 'partition'; it is not what was described previously but is well known idea (of partition), which by removing the doubt support the established truth: there is then no contradiction. In this way the proprietary right is inferable from enjoyment etc., perceivable by all visible means of proof, applicable to common and uncommon above-said objects, extinguishable on partition like gift and sale and not arising from partition. This is the purport of the whole and is acceptable by all. It is made clear, by Manjuṣa* etc.; so he says '...all.'

15. As for the remark, that, if property were temporal it could not be said, "My property has been taken away by him, what is not accurate, for a doubt respecting the proprietary right does arise through a doubt concerning the purchase, or other transaction, which is the cause of that right.

Balambhatta's gloss.

15. In this way, having removed all the defects arising from the texts, he removes the remaining third defect arising in the form of the contradictory arguments described previously. 'If.....could not be said' by reason of the proprietary right of the usurper (trespasser); if one says so, there will be no doubt in the mind of the arbitrators (jurymen) just as (one has none) in the form of gold ; iva (like) is understood. 'Cause of the proprietary right' ; in such a case where mere knowledge arises from an informer's statement to the effect that one has deprived another of his property by virtue of the conflict arising from the want of proof in support of it on the complainant stating one thing and the other party stating the contrary, there arises a doubt in the mind of the arbitrators whether the property has been obtained by him (the opposite side) by usurpation or sale ; by reason of the suspicion in the origin of the proprietary right such as sale etc., there is the possibility of a doubt arising about its effect, viz the proprietary right.

16. The purpose of the preceding disquisition is this. A text expresses "When Brahmans have acquired wealth by a blameable act, they are cleared by the abandonment of it, with prayer and rigid austerity. Now, if property be deducible only from sacred ordinances, that, which has been obtained by accepting presents from an improper person, or by other means which are reprobated, would not be property, and consequently would not be partible among sons. But if it be a worldly matter, then even what is obtained by such means, is property and may be divided among heirs, and the atonement above mentioned regards the acquirer only: but sons have the right by inheritance, and therefore no blame attaches to them, since Manu declares, "There are seven virtuous means of acquiring property, viz., inheritance, &c."*

Balambhatta's gloss.

Now in the present discourse, it is not proper to enquire into the real nature of the proprietary right by reason of the non-use of the subdivisions into temporal and non-temporal. He therefore says, 'The purpose of the preceding disquisition etc' : abandonment' means 'giving up'; he says 'not by that alone (but) by prayer' also: he means, by this sanction of abandonment by Manu. He states the view of the apponent; 'from sacred ordinances'; the reprehensible is of two kinds, one that is prohibited and the other that is not laid down. 'Accepting presents from an improper person'; in the established truth, he removes the contradiction of the text. By 'giving it up'; he says by suggesting the distinction by 'only' (eva). 'The sons'; can there be a transmission of sin like inheritance? He therefore says, 'seven'; these are the means to acquire wealth: here the term 'inheritance' includes both inheritance and partition; the word 'acquisition' includes acceptance by gift and finding; 'victory' includes fine; 'trade' includes agriculture etc.; 'employment' includes acceptance of reward; from it, both should be understood.

* The stōka of Manu has not been translated by Colebrooke. I give the translation from Buhler 'There are seven lawful modes of acquiring property, (viz.) inheritance, finding, or friendly donation, purchase, conquest, lending at interest, the performance of work and the acceptance of gift, from virtuous men' S. B. E. XXXV. P. 426.

It is proper to discuss the subject promised according to the promise but not otherwise ; how is it contrary here ? nor is there any other different reason by virtue of its absence. There is no argument based upon series of reasons by virtue of the dependence of the present disquisition on the temporal nature of the proprietary right nor does the maxim of needle and kettle* apply here by reason of proving its temporal nature from many arguments and by seeing (no proof of) any other. If you say that a subject discussed and one to be discussed are both in an unfavourable position, the reply is that it is not so. Like property by the temporal nature of partition, by the non-temporal nature of the rules relating to it and by the temporal nature of birth etc., the temporal nature of the proprietary right in the above said ways has already been proved; there the creation of it from of partition etc., applies but not otherwise : the subject discussed is a reason and the subject to be discussed is, therefore, based on a reason. Its immediate discussion is therefore, proper : it is the substance.

18. Of these (positions), that of property arising from partition is right, since a man, to whom a son is born, is enjoined to maintain a holy fire: for, were property vested by birth alone, the state would be common to the son as soon as born; and the father would not be competent to maintain a sacrificial fire, and perform other religious duties which are accomplished by the use of wealth.

Balambhatta's gloss.

17 and 18. Harping on the same, he says, now (idanim) meaning next; so it should be understood that with the said object the word 'now' is used. 'It is doubted'; he supports the enunciated proposition containing the above-said doubt in the enunciated proposition first. Is it from partition? 'There' (tatra), means 'between two.' 'Born'; he means 'let one who has black hair and to whom a son is born, maintain a holy fire'; there the word 'son' stands for all descendants or it is bahuvrihi according to the rule embodied in Panini I. 2. 64: 'one who has got black hair' shows youth or competency. One who is thus entitled, should consecrate the holy fire; this is the meaning. Even if it is a mandatory text with respect to it, how does proprietary right arise therefrom? He, therefore, gives a reply. 'If by birth'; 'alone' is for contrast. 'Born' means by his becoming an equal owner in the property, it becomes common property. He says, 'the estate'; 'in the maintenance of the holy fire etc' means the ceremonies to be performed by the husband and wife only: 'etc.' include the donations in the necessary funeral and natal ceremonies.

तथा Tathā, like-wise; विभागात् vibhāgāt, separation; प्राक् prāk, before; पितृप्रसाद pitṛi-prasāda, through the liberality (प्रसाद) of the father; लभ्यस्य labdhasya, of what is obtained; विभाग-प्रतियेधः vibhāga-pratiyedhaḥ, the prohibition of a division; च na, not; उपपद्यते upapadyate, would be pertinent; सर्वानुमत्या sarva-anumatyā, by the consent (अनुमति) of all the parties ; दत्तत्वात् dattatvāt because of its being given ; विभागप्राप्ति vibhaga-prapti, of the supposition of partition अभावात् abhāvāt, because of the absence, यथा yathā, as : शाह शा, says ; शौर्य-भार्या-धने saurya-bhārya dhane wealth by valour and wealth of a wife ; च cha, and ; उभे ubhe, both ; पत् yat, which ; च cha, again ; विद्याधनम् vidyādhanam्, wealth acquired by science ; भवेत् bhavet, would be ; त्रीणि trīṇi, three ; एतानि etāni, there ; अविभाज्यानि avibhājyāni, exempt from partition ; प्रसादः prasādaḥ, a favour ; यः yah, which is ; च oha, and ; पैतृकः paitrikah, conferred by a father ; इति iti, so.

19. Likewise the prohibition of a division of that, which is obtained from the liberality of the father previous to separation, would not be pertinent: since no partition of it can be supposed, for it has been given by consent of all parties. But Nārada does propound such a prohibition: "Excepting what is gained by valour, the wealth of a wife, and what is acquired by science, which are three sorts of property exempt from partition ; and any favour conferred by a father."

Balambhatta's gloss.

19. If you say that the right in question arises under a text, then by reason of the antecedent prohibition there can be a partition in case of a donation made by favour; it is not so, so he shows the irrelevancy of the prohibition. 'Likewise'; he says in order to refute the other conflicting reason: 'all', in that case under those circumstances by reason of having both the right of making a gift and accepting it and the subsequent failure of the cause, it fails. It is, therefore irrelevant; and the text is like a sky-flower (impossible). Nārada, therefore, says; 'so he says': in the wealth acquired by valour and the wife; so also before; therefore (the meaning is) what is obtained by valour according to Brihaspati and the gains of science obtained by valour according to Vyāsa also constitute wealth. 'And which', another reading is preferable to 'whose'; 'paternal' in the sense coming from the father is derived by adding उत् as an affix under, 'And यत् after pitri (Panini IV, 3-79)*

* The sutra means यत् will be added after फृत् and उत् will be added in the sense of coming from there.

तथा tathā, so ; भर्त्रः bhartrā, by husband ; प्रितेन pritenā, affectionately ; यद् yad, which ; दत्तम् dattam, is given ; स्त्रियै striyai, to a wife ; तस्मिन् tasmin, on his ; मृते mrite, being deceased, when he is dead ; अपि api, also ; तत् tat, that ; सा sā, she ; यथाकामम् yathākāmam, as she pleases ; अभीयात् aśniyāt, may consume—enjoy ; दद्यात् dadyāt, may give away ; वा vā, or ; स्थावरात् sthāvarāt, immovable property ; अते rite, excepting ; इति iti, this ; प्रतिदानं prtidāna, covering an affectionate gift ; वचनम् vachanam, the text ; न na, not ; उपापद्यते upapadyate, would be pertinent ; तद् tad, that ; जन्मना janmana, by birth ; एव eva, alone ; स्वते svatve, if property were ; न na, not ; च cha, and, nor ; स्थावरात् sthāvarāt, immovable property ; अते rite, excepting ; यद् yad, which ; दत्तम् dattam, is given ; इति iti, so, this, of these terms ; सम्बन्धः sambandhah, connection ; युक्तः yuktaḥ, right ; व्यवहितः vyavahita, of disjointed words ; योजना yojanā, construction ; प्रसङ्गात् prasangāt, there would be an occasion for.....

20. So the text concerning an affectionate gift, (What has been given by an affectionate husband to his wife, she may consume as she pleases, when he is dead, or may give it away, excepting immovable property"); would not be pertinent, if property were vested by birth alone. Nor is it right to connect the words, "excepting immovable property" with the terms "what has been given" (in the text last cited); for that would be a forced construction by connection of disjointed terms.

Blambhatta's gloss.

20. If there is no consent of all, it relates to that subject and there is no fault: he then points out another defect. 'So'; he cites from Vishnu: 'by the husband,' he says so by reason of two kinds of gifts; 'affection,' by common etc. In that case by reason of the incapacity of the recently born infant in giving consent, although he has proprietary right therein, of the incapacity of one to grant by reason of the property being common and thereby the impossibility of any gift out of affection, the text in support of it is contrary. It is the meaning; is it even so when it (prohibition) is connected with the immovable property in the succeeding clause? It is not so there is no conflict of texts but harmony; so he doubts. 'And not'; being not connected with the affectionate gift and the prohibition pertaining to the immovable property, the spirit of law applies there but nowhere else; 'there'; by the birth thereof, the proprietary right is laid down. It is the meaning. 'Disconnected'; on connecting them thus, it would be so; but it is not so, by reason of such connection not arising, because of the intervention of the obstruction. If it is so, even by reading together the two different texts unconnected by reason of the prohibition of the gift of the immovable property, the proprietary right arises by birth but not by partition; with this object he doubts.

21. As for the text "The father is master of the gems, pearls, and corals, and of all (other movable property;) but neither the father, nor the grandfather, is so of the whole immovable estate" ; and this other passage, "By favour of the father, clothes, and ornaments are used, but immovable property may not be consumed, even with the father's indulgence"; which passages forbid a gift of immovable property through favour: they both relate to immovables which have descended from the paternal grand-father, when the grand-father dies, his effects become the common property of the father and sons; but it appears from this text alone, that the gem, pearls and other movables belong exclusively to the father, while the immovable estate remains common.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

21. 'Although'; this means two verses from Narada: 'of corals' it is in the genitive case for singling them out or for being connected by reason of their being of the same category. Though falling under the same category by reason of the same declension, yet the same text does not apply to them by reason of the contrary application of 'the Vedas are authorities'; by the inverted order, eva is to be distinguished; no other than the immovable property but the immovable property only. The entire passage has, therefore, a significance; he says by suggesting an implied and additional sense. 'Immovable property'; he suggests the desired unity; 'of all' in the following passage also. 'By the favour of the father, available'; 'on being' even on being; 'in the affectionate gift'. it is in the locative case to indicate a subject; 'prohibitory text'; it is in singular being applicable to a class; similary in the succeeding. When there is 'co ownership' in the immovable property, the application of the maxim called 'half an aged woman'* 'does not apply in the case of the pearls and corals. Therefore, he says 'when the grandfather dies,' so it is under the rule sanctioned by the text; there is nothing wrong in it.

Mitakṣarā.

तस्मात् जन्मना स्वत्वं किंतु स्वामिनाशाद्विभागाद्वा स्वत्वम् । अतएव पितुरुच्च विभागात्वागद्वयस्त्वस्य प्रहीणत्वादन्येन गृह्यमाणं न निवार्यतेऽति चोद्यस्यानवकाशः । तथैकपुत्रस्यापि पितृप्रयाणादेव पुत्रस्य स्वमिति न विभागमपेक्षत इति ॥२२॥

तस्माद् tasmād, therefore; न na, not; जन्मना janmanā, by birth; स्वत्वम् svatvam, property; किंतु kintu, but; स्वामि-नाशाद् svāmī-nāśād, after the death of the owner; विभागाद् vibhāgād, by a partition; वा vā, or; स्वत्वम् svatvam, property; अतः ataḥ, hence; एव eva, indeed; पितुः pituḥ,

* The maxim applies when you keep a half of a hen for laying down eggs and the other half for cooking. It is impossible to divide a thing into two, so as to keep one part for one purpose and the other for a different object. The maxim, therefore, means that the text can not be broken into two parts so as to apply to different and contrary objects (See also Jacob's Laukika Nyāyāṇjali).

the father ; उर्ध्वम् उर्ध्वम् vibhāgām, after ; विभागात् vibhāgāt, the partition ; प्राक् prāk, before ; द्रव्यः dravyaḥ, of the wealth ; स्व-वस्त्र svatvasya, of the proprietary right ; प्रहीणत्वात् prahīṇatvāt, because of the loss of ; अन्वेत् anyena, by some other person, a stranger ; ग्रीष्माणम् grīṣmāṇam, being snatched away ; न na, not ; निवार्यते nivāryate, is prevented ; इति iti, so, this ; चोद्यस्य chōdyasya, for an objection, supposition ; अनवाकाशः anavakāśaḥ, there is no room for ; तथा tathā, likewise, so ; एकुत्रस्य eka-putrasya, in the case of an only son ; अपि api, also, वित्तप्राप्नद् pitri-prayāṇād, by the demise of the father ; एव eva, only, just ; उपर्युपरस्या, of the son ; स्वम् svam, the property ; इति iti, therefore ; न na, not ; विभागम् vibhāgām, partition ; अपेक्षते apekṣate, does require ; इति iti, so.

22. Therefore property is not by birth, but by demise of the owner, or by partition. Accordingly (since the demise of the owner is a cause of property) there is no room for supposing, that a stranger could not be prevented from taking the effects because the property was vacant, after the death of the father before partition. So likewise, in the case of an only son, the estate becomes the property of the son by the father's decease, and does not require partition.

Balambhatta's gloss.

22 He concludes the purvakṣa (opponent's view); 'therefore': it means this. By acquisition, the property belongs to the acquirer; then it passes to his relatives or sons by partition or on demise of the owner. When the owner is alive, the partition is the cause of the proprietary right.

When the proprietor is dead, his death is the cause of the proprietary right. There is another peculiar feature; when the owner's relative, son or grandson is single and the owner is divided or single there is the cause of the uncommon proprietary right on the death of the owner but when they are many, the property becomes common (of all) on the death of the owner but separate on partition. In this state of the owner on the demise of the grandfather by reason of the absence of the separate property of the father before partition in the grandfather's property, one should not make a gift of the ancestral property out of affection. This prohibition relates to the gift of such immovable, but not to the self-acquired property by reason of the proprietary right arising by birth. Because the death of the owner is also a cause of the proprietary right, therefore on the death of the father before partition, like the property of a stranger, being an object of indifference does not become property; so he says; 'accordingly', means by accepting the death of the father: 'vacant' means in the absence of the owner asserting the right. Having explained its necessity in the case of many sons he shows the necessity thereof in the case of one son, 'so likewise' means like it; by 'decrease' means by death the sentence means that the property of such prepositus who has got only one son, becomes vested in the son on his death only, but does not stand in need of partition. Only (ova) is in antithesis with 'not', (does not require).

अत्र atra, here, as regards this ; उच्यते uchyate, it is said ; लोकप्रसिद्धम् lokaprasiddham, a matter of popular recognition ; एव eva, indeed ; स्वत्वम् svatvam, property ; इति iti, so ; उक्तम् uktam, it is said ; लोके loka, in the world ; च cha, and ; पुत्रादीनाम् putrādinām, of a son etc. ; जन्मना janmanā, by birth ; एव eva, indeed ; स्वत्वम् svatvam, property ; प्रसिद्धतरम् prasiddhataram, better known ; न na, not ; अपहृतम् apahṛavam, denial, contradiction ; अर्हति arhati, deserves ; विभागशब्दः vibhāga-sabdaḥ, the word partition ; च cha, and ; बहु-स्वामिक bahu-svāmika, such as may have many owners ; धन-विषयः dhana-viṣayāḥ, about such wealth as etc. लोक-प्रसिद्धः loka-prasiddhaḥ, very familiar to the world ; न na, not ; अन्यदीय-विषयः anyadīya-viṣayāḥ, pertaining to that which relates to another ; न na, nor ; प्रहीण-विषयः prahīṇa-viṣayāḥ, appertaining to vacant property ; तम् tam, him ; तथा tathā, so ; उत्पत्त्या utpattyā, by birth ; अर्थ-स्वामित्वम् artha-svāmitvam, ownership of wealth ; एव eva, indeed ; लभेत labheta, may reach or may be taken ; इति iti, so, direct, आचार्याः āchāryāḥ, the venerable teachers ; इति iti, so ; गौतमवचनात् Gautam-vachanāt, from the text of Gautama ; च cha, and.

23. To this the answer is : It has been shown, that property is a matter of popular recognition ; and the right of sons and the rest, by birth, is most familiar, to the world, as cannot be denied : but the term partition is generally understood to relate to effects belonging to several owners and does not relate to that which appertains to another, nor to goods vacant, or unowned. For the text of Gautama expresses, "Let ownership of wealth be taken by birth; as the venerable teachers direct."

Bālambhātta's gloss.

23. Having thus explained the purvapakṣa view (of the opponent) he sets forth the siddhānta (established) view. 'To this the answer is etc.' he reiterates the same here to suggest the the reason of the previous established truth. 'Amongst people', he means that it is so recognised by the people; and popular recognition shows the necessity of the reality of the excellence on accepting it. 'No denial'; he gives another reason: 'partition' has, already been explained previously, 'unowned' (वाणि) not also without wealth; 'is generally accepted', is to be repeated. He, cites Gautama's text in support of it; similarly by birth; 'similarity' is to denote conjunction; the meaning is that the teachers hold that the property should be taken by one by reason of the proprietary right in the inheritance from one's birth; there is another reading 'by reason of there being no owner' but there is another reading 'the ownership of the property' which often occurs and is preferable; and 'under the text' (yashashat) is an incorrect reading.

मणि mani, of gems ; मुक्ता muktā, of pearls ; प्रवालानाम् pravālānām, and of corals : इत्यादि iti-ādi, this and the following ; वचनम् vachanam, text ; च cha, again ; जन्मना janmanā being vested by birth ; स्वत्वपक्षे svatva pakṣe, on the supposition of proprietary right ; एव eva, only ; उपात्तो upapadyate, is pertinent ; न na, not ; च cha and ; पितामह pitāmaha, by the grandfather ; उपात्तु upātta, acquired ; स्थावरविषयम् sthāvara-viṣayam, concerning the immovable property ; इति iti, this ; युक्तम् yuktam, is right ; न na, not, neither ; पिता pitā, the father ; न no, not ; पितामह pitāmaha, the grandfather ; इति iti, this ; वचनात् vachanāt, from this text ; पितामहस्य pitāmahaśya, the grandfather's ; हि hi, because ; स्वार्जितम् svārjitam, own acquisition ; अपि api also ; पुत्रे putre, the son ; पौत्रे pautre, the grandson ; च cha, and ; सति sati, being alive, present, living ; अदेयम् adeyam, is not to be given ; इति iti, this, वचनम् vachanam, maxim ; जन्मना janmanā, by birth ; स्वत्वम् svatvam, a proprietary interest ; गमयति gamayati, indicates ; तथा tathā, as ; परमते para-mate, according to the other opinion ; मणि mani, the gems ; मुक्ता muktā, pearls ; वस्त्र vāstra, clothes ; अभर्णादीनाम् abharnādīnām्, ornaments and other effects, वै इहनाम् aitānachānām्, belonging to the grandfather and inherited from him अपि api, though ; पितुः pituḥ, are the father's ; स्वत्वम् svatvam्, property ; वचनात् vachanāt under special provisions of the law ; एवम् evam ; thus ; वस्त्रात् asvānā-mate, according to our opinion ; अपि api, also ; पित्रा pitrā, by his father ; अर्जितम् arjitaṁ, acquired ; अपि api, though ; यतेषाम् etc. sām, these ; पितुः pituḥ, the father's ; दानाधिकारः dānā-adhikārāḥ, the right to give ; वचनात् vachanāt, these being an authority of a text ; इति iti, these words ; अविशेषः aviś ṣ. h, are (of course) common.

24. Moreover, the text above cited, "The father is master of the gems, pearls, &c.", (§21) is pertinent on the supposition of a proprietary right vested by birth. Nor is it right to affirm, that it relates to immovables which have descended from the paternal grandfather : since the text expresses "neither the father, nor the grandfather." The maxim, that the grandfather's own acquisition should not be given away while a son or grandson is living, indicates a proprietary interest by birth. Again, according to the other opinion, the precious stones, pearls, clothes, ornaments, and other effects, though inherited from the grandfather, belong to the father under the special provisions of the law ; so, according to our opinion, the father has power, under the same text, to give away such effects, though acquired by his father. There is no difference.

Bālamāhatta's gloss.

24. (He says that the passage) 'gems, pearls etc.' fits in with the established truth (siddhanta view). 'gem'; by 'etc.' is meant an acceptance of a gift arising from the text. Having thus accomplished the object, he exposes the perverseness of the critic's statement. 'Nor the grandfather,' he gives a reason to show its inappropriateness. 'Neither father', the meaning is that by the accrual of the proprietary right with the death of the prepositus, even on the jointness of the father and son on the death of the grandfather in his property, the gems etc. under the text belong to the father alone but the immovable property is common. If the previously said meaning is clear from the text, the previously laid down rule is applicable. It is not so, if the immovable property is acquired by the grandfather, then during his life time in the self-acquisition, there is no applicability of the fourth passage (gift without acceptance) to suggest the want of ownership. It may be, therefore, said that the statement to the effect that the immoveable property is the common property of all, is not appropriate and does not relate to it. To what subject do those two texts apply, so that they may be relevant under the present discussion? He replies; 'the grandfather'; 'hi means because; the maxim refers to two texts: it means that both the texts point to the proprietary right arising with the birth.

How can there be an affectionate gift of the gems and pearls, if there is common proprietary right with the birth alone? On this question being raised, out of deference he replies, 'as', 'other', means the objector; he says with that object: 'garment' 'According to our opinion' means in the established truth also (siddhānta view); there is another reading 'self-acquired' instead of 'acquired by his father.' He means that in the same way a father is competent to make a gift of self-acquired chattels with the exception of the immovable property even without the validating consent.

25. But the text of Vishnu's (§20), which mentions a gift of immovables bestowed through affection, must be interpreted as relating to property acquired by the father himself and given with the consent of his son and the rest: for, by the passage (above cited, as well as others not quoted, viz) "The father is master of the gems, pearls, &c.," the fitness of any other but immovables for an affectionate gift was certain.

Balambhatta's gloss.

25. Is not the text of Vṛṣṇi similarly against the affectionate gift of the immovable property? He, therefore, replies 'as to...by the husband'; it refers to the gift made by the husband in favour of his wife 'suggesting' (jnā anam) is from व्युट् in the instrumental sense and is used for 'suggester' (jnānaka): at many places the same reading occurs. 'That acquired by himself' means that there is no right of making a gift even of the self acquired immovable property without the consent of the capable members but in other cases it does not stand in need of it. So in the immovable property gifted by the husband, (the wife) can live till her life without making a gift or sale without necessity. Here by using 'husband', it shows the absolute estate in a gift made by the father-in-law. Therefore, Brihaspati says "whatever immoveable and other properties are given to a female by her father in-law, can not be resumed even, by the sons under any circumstance." He assigns a reason to show the appropriateness of Vṛṣṇi's text; 'above-cited' from the plural 'the uncited texts' should be understood; it will be clear subsequently: 'by the passages' is in the 3rd form of declension 'being an instrumental case. There is, therefore, no non-applicability of the compound (saṁśāsa) by reason of the certainty of fitu'ss.

तस्मात् tasmāt, therefore ; पैतृके paitṛike, in the paternal ; पैतामहे paitāmahe, in the ancestral ; च cha, and ; द्रव्ये dravye, (in the) estate ; जन्मना janmanā, by birth ; एव eva, indeed ; स्वत्वम् svatvam, property ; तथापि tathāpi, yet ; पितुः pituḥ, of the father, the father has ; आरप्तकेषु āvāsyakeṣu, for indispensable, necessary ; धर्मकुर्येत् dharma-krityeṣu, acts of duty ; वाचनिकेषु vāchanikeṣu, for purposes prescribed by texts of law ; प्रसाद दानं prasād-dāna, gifts of affection ; खुदुम्ब-भरण kntumb-bharāṇa, support of the family ; आरद्मोक्षादिषु āpad-vimokṣāliṣu, relief from distress and so forth ; च cha, and ; स्यावर-व्यतिरिक्तं sthāvara- vyatirkta, other than immovable ; द्रव्यं dravya, of effects ; विनियोगे viniyoṣe, in the disposal ; स्वातंत्र्यम् svātantrayam, independence ; इति iti, so, this ; स्थितम्, sthitam, a settled point ; स्यावरे sthāvare, in regard to the immovable estate ; तु tu, but ; स्वार्जिते svārjite, acquired by himself ; पित्रादि-प्राप्ते pitrādi-prāpte, inherited from his father ; etc. च cha, and ; पुत्रादि putrādi, of his sons and the rest ; पारतन्त्र्यम् pārtantryam, control, dependence on (his sons etc.) ; एव eva, indeed ; स्थावरम् sthāvaram, immovables ; द्विपदम् dvipadam, bipeds ; च cha, and ; एव eva, indeed ; यद्यपि yad-ipy, though ; स्वयम् svayam, by himself ; अर्जितम् arjitam, acquired ; असंभूय asambhūya, without conveniug. सुतान् satān, sons ; सर्वान् sarvān, all ; न na, neither ; दानम् dānam, a gift ; न च na cha, nor ; विक्रयः vikrayaḥ, a sale ; ये ye, who ; जाताः jātāḥ, are born ; ये ye, who ; अपि api, again ; अजाताः ये ye, who ; च cha, again ; गर्भे garbhe, in the womb ; व्यस्थिताः vyasthitāḥ, are resting, settled, fixed, lying ; वृत्तिम् vṛttim, means of support ; च cha, and ; ते te, they ; अभिकाङ्क्षन्ति abhikāṅṣanti, require ; न na, no ; दानम् dānam, gift ; न च na cha, nor ; विक्रयः vikrayaḥ, any sale (should be made) ; इत्यादि ityādi, such and such, स्माण्यत् smāṇyat, since has been ordained

27. Therefore it is a settled point, that property in the paternal or ancestral estate is by birth, (although) the father have independent power in the disposal of effects other than immovables, for indispensable acts of duty and for purposes prescribed by texts of law, as gifts through affection, support of the family, relief from distress, and so forth but he is subject to the control of his sons and the rest, in regard to the immovable estate, whether acquired by himself or inherited from his father or other predecessor; since it is ordained "Though immovables or bipeds have been acquired by a man himself, gift or sale of them should not be made without convening all the sons. They, who are born, and they who are yet unbegotten, and they who are still in the womb, require the means of support; no gift or sale should, therefore, be made."

Balambhatta' gloss

27. He then makes a particular conclusion; 'therefore'; it is connected with 'settled' (sthitān); 'although' is understood. 'Of the father' is connected with 'independence'; he cites the necessary smṛiti passages. 'For indispensable acts' he assigns reason in the existence of necessity; 'as prescribed by texts of law' means in the funeral ceremonies; it is 'a part of the succeeding passage. 'Immoveable property'; he is independent in disposing of the other kind of property.

Having said elsewhere about immoveable property, he now expresses the established truth; 'immoveable property'; 'but' is in contrast: 'control' (dependence) of the father; he says that, even on reading its meaning as a whole in conformity with reason, the text is an exception. 'Immoveable property'; bipeds' slaves etc.; 'self' even by self; earned, 'although his' is understood. 'Without convening', without asking; 'the son' includes daughter: 'therefore all' is an ekṣeṣa (dvanda) compound as explained previously. Not only these but others also; 'those who are born'; 'unborn' those who will be born: 'require'; 'because', 'therefore' are understood.

अस्यापवादः । एकोपि स्थावरे कुर्याद्दानाधमनविक्रयम् । आपत्काले कुटुम्बार्थे
धर्मार्थे च विशेषत इति । २८ ॥

अस्य asya, to this; अपवाद apavādah, 'an exception'; एकः ekaḥ, a single; अपि api, even; स्थावरे sthāvare, of an 'immovable property'; कुर्यात् kuryāt; should conclude; दान dāna, donation; अधमन् adhamana, a mortgage; विक्रयम् vikrayam, or sale; आपत्काले āpatkāle, during a season of distress ; कुटुम्बर्थे॑ kutumbārtha॒, for the sake of the family ; धर्मर्थे॑ dharmaरtha॒, for pious purposes ; पिशेतः viśeṣataḥ, especially ; इति iti, so.

28. An exception to it follows: "Even a single individual may conclude a donation, mortgage, or sale of immoveable property, during a season of distress, for the sake of the family, and especially for pious purposes."

Bālambhatta's gloss.

28. 'Its' means the exception by the special text to the above-said general rule ; in the immoveable property ; it is in the locative case in the sense of subject ; 'mortage' means hypothecation : It is a compound called 'dwanda by collection'. He gives a special reason ; 'distress', he says in order to accomplish the object only.

Mitakṣara

अस्यार्थः । अग्रसङ्यवहारेषु पुत्रेषु पौत्रेषु वा अनुजादानादावसमर्थेषु भ्रातृषु वा तथाविषेषव्यवहारेषु सकलकुटुम्बव्यापित्यमापदि तत्पोषणे वावशकर्तव्येषु पितृशादादिषु स्यावरस्य दानाधमनविक्रयमेकापि समर्थः कुर्यादिति । २६ ॥

अस्य asya, of this ; अर्थः artha॒, the meaning ; आप्राप्तव्यवहारेषु aprāpta-vyavahāreṣu, minor such as are not capable of dealing in business ; पुत्रेषु putreṣu, if the sons are ; पौत्रेषु pautreṣu, if the grandsons are (so) ; वा vā, or ; अनुजा-दानादौ anujā-dānādānā, of giving consent : असमर्थेषु asa-martheṣu, incapable of ; आप्तुषु bhrātriṣu, if the brothers be ; वा vā, or ; तथाविषेषु tathāvidheṣu, being so ; अविभक्तेषु avibhakteṣu, continue unseparated ; अपि api, even, though ; सकल-कुटुम्बव्यापित्यम् sakal-kutumba-vyā-pinyām, affecting the whole family ; आपदि अपदि, in a calamity ; तत्पोषणे tat-poṣaṇe, in supporting it ; वा vā, or ; अवश्यकर्तव्येषु avaśyam kar-tavyeṣu, in the matter of indispensable duties ; पितृ-शादादिषु pitri-śrāddā-dīṣu, such as the obsequies of the father or the like ; स्यावरस्य sthāvarasya, of the immoveable property ; दान dāna, gift ; अधमन adhamana, hypothecation ; विक्रयम् vikrayam, or sale ; एकः ekah, single ; अपि api, though ; समर्थः samarthaḥ, who is capable ; कुर्यात् kuryāt, may conclude ; इति iti, such is the meaning.

29. The meaning of that text is this: while the sons and grandsons are minors, and incapable or giving their consent to a gift and the like, or while brothers are so, and continue unseparated; even one person, who is capable, may conclude a gift, hypothecation, or sale of immovable property, if a calamity affecting the whole family require it, or the support of the family render it necessary, or indispensable duties, such as the obsequies of the family render it necessary, or indispensable duties, such as the obsequies of the father or the like make it unavoidable.

Balambhatta's gloss.

29. Its meaning; 'in giving their consent' shows the manner of what is to be said on their being capable and is not in conflict; further it shows the consultation of both: by 'api' (also) is meant the reunited; 'especially' is understood everywhere; even then he mentions it specially; 'whole'; 'it' (tat) means the entire family: he gives the result by the locative case in the sense of subject. 'Of the immoveable property'; 'may conclude'; therefore though unity is obtained, he reiterates the unity of purpose: 'capable.'

by obviating ; व्यवहारा vyavahāra, the transaction ; सौकर्याया sankaryāya, to facilitate; सर्वाभ्यनुज्ञा sarvābhyanujñyā, the consent of all ; न na, not ; पुनः punah, again ; एकस्य ekasya, in a single person ; अनीश्वरत्वे anīśvartve, on account of any want of sufficient power; न na, not, without ; अतः atah, consequently ; विभक्तः vibhakta, of separate kinsmen ; अनुमतिः anumati, consent ; व्यतिकरेण्यं vyatikāreṇa, mixing up ; taking up ; अपि api, even ; व्यावहारः vyavahāraḥ, transaction ; भिद्धयति siddhyati, becomes valid ; एव eva, indeed ; इति iti, so, thus ; व्याख्येयम् vyākhyeeyam, must be interpreted.

30. The following passage, "Separated kinsmen, as those who are unseparated, are equal in respect of immovables; for one has not power over the whole, to make a g'f, sale, or mortgage", must be thus interpreted : "among unseparated kinsmen, the consent of all is indispensably requisite because no one is fully empowered to make an alienation, since the estate is in common;" but, among separated kindred, the consent of all tends to the facility of the transaction, by obviating any future doubt, whether they be separate or united, it is not required, on account of any want of sufficient power, in the single owner; and the transaction is consequently valid even without the consent of separated kinsmen.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

30. He reconciles the contradiction which arises from the texts with Manu's text with the above said object. As to the text of Manu ; 'kinsmen' (sapinda) implies 'propinquity'; 'for', means because ; 'over the whole', qualifies the donations etc. 'Although' is connected with 'must be thus interpreted'; 'also' means thus the above said collection of texts of Vishnu; he, therefore, explains it in an inverted order. 'By reason of being in the middle 'means' by being common; 'by reason of being not capable'; to both 'ka' is added in the sense of one's object; in their stead there are मध्यस्थत्वात् and अनीश्वरत्वात् the different readings. "All", means that without the consent of the cosharers (who are not separate) there can not be donation etc. 'For the facility of the transaction' means 'of the donee etc ; 'not again' on the contrary not; he then sums up : 'consequently'. So that is a subject of the consent of those who are not competent; this is the subject of the consent of those who are competent. So there can not be donation etc. and without the consent of those cosharers who are competent; it means that they depend upon it (consent). On the other hand, though the gift is proper without the consent of the separated ones who are competent, yet for the facility of the transactions for the donee etc, they depend upon it (consent), it is its subject: it does not prohibit the gift etc. in all cases. (The text) 'even a single' is an except-tion to it; so there is a contradiction. But Mallana (Madan Pārijāta) says "it prohibits the donation etc. of the standing crops grown in the undivided fields of even those who are divided in a portion of the property, without the consent."

31. In the texts, which expresses, that "Land passes by six formalities; by consent of townsmen, of kinsmen, of neighbours, and of heirs and by gift of gold and of water, consent of townsmen is required for the publicity of the transaction, since it is provided; that "Acceptance of a gift, especially of land, should be public": but the contract is not invalid without their consent. The approbation of neighbours serves to obviate any dispute concerning the boundary, The use of the consent of kinsmen and of heirs has been explained.

Balambhatta's gloss.

31. He now reconciles the contradiction with the text of Manu; 'in that text'; own' (eva) is an adjective of all for a clear meaning by reason of obtaining proximity. On account of hearing it at the end of the dwanda compound, the 'consent' should be repeated every where; the affix 'kta' is added in the sense of 'existence' and should be connected with the following i.e. with the six. Having explained it and shown the applicability in order, he gives the result following the consent of townsmen at first: 'there the consent of the townsmen'; he cites Manu; 'acceptance of gift'; 'not again' means 'but not'; 'consent of kinsman'; the singular is in the sense of a class; 'has been explained' means with the object of the facility of the transaction.

32. (By gift of gold and of water) Since the sale of immovables is forbidden ("In regard to the immovables etc, sale is not allowed;" it may be mortgaged by consent of parties interested; and since donation is praised ("Both he who accepts land, and he who gives it, are performers of a holy deed, and shall go to a region of bliss") if a sale must be made, it should be conducted, for the transfer of immovable property, in the form of a gift, delivering with it gold and water (to ratify the donation).

Balambhatta's gloss.

32. In order to explain the extraordinary use of gold and water he says with an authority; 'gold'; in a case of a gift, their being essential (to validate) the gift, is it improper in the case of a sale by reason of the necessity of the transfer also there, on account of their absence? Therefore he says, both these have, like Manu, authority, as before; by 'api' gift is meant.

Mitakṣera.

पैतृके पैतामहे च धने जन्मनैव स्वत्वेऽपि विशेषं भूर्या पितामहोपासेत्यत्र वक्ष्यामः । ३३ ॥

पैतृके paitrike, to the paternal; पैतामहे paitāmahe, the ancestral; च cha, and; धने dhane, estate; जन्मना janmanā, by birth; एव eva, only, surely; स्वत्वे svatve, though the proprietary right is; अपि api, though; विशेषम् viśeṣam, the distinction; भूः bhuh, land; या yā, that; पितामहोपात्ता pitāmaha upātta, what is acquired by the grandfather; इति iti, that; अत्र atra, here; वक्ष्यामः vaksyāmah, we shall explain.

33. In respect of the right by birth, to the estate paternal or ancestral, we shall mention a distinction under a subsequent text.

Having said generally as regards immoveable property he now says in particular with reference to both. 'Paternal' by this, the death of the father is the cause of the proprietary right ["on the death of the father, let the sons divide the father's property." Narada chap XIII-2.] but not birth ['after the father and mother' (Manu IX-104.)]

"On the death of the father let the sons divide the father's wealth; when the faultless father is alive, they have no ownership." It is in conflict with Devala. It shows dependence like 'wife and son.....' (M. VIII-41 Gharpnre's edition). Then there is no proof of proprietary right; in wife and others from 'whatever they earn' (Manu VIII-417) the proprietary right being proved, it is improper to say that it relates to their dependence, because of the conflict with the text of the Veda by reason of the failure of the Vedic rite to be performed with their own wealth on their having no proprietary right in their own earning. This being so, there can be a partition even against the will of the father. There being no authority in favour of the proprietary right by birth and the smriti having not ordained earning from birth, therefore it is with a view to prohibit partition while the father is alive ;the text of Manu does not lay down independence of proprietary right, but (shows) that there is no ownership while the parents are alive. The above said (proposition) that the ownership arises on death, degradation etc. is refuted for the above reasons.

END OF PREFACE

SECTION II. 1.

Mitakṣṛda.

इदानीयत्र काले येन च यथा विभागः कर्तव्यस्तदर्शमाह
विभागं चेत्पता कुर्यादिक्षया विभजेत्सुतान् ।

इदानीय् idānīm, next, now; यत्र yatra, at what; काले kāle, time; येन yena, by whom; च cha, and; यथा yathā, how; विभागः vibhāgah, partition; कर्तव्यः kartavyah, may be made; तद् tad, that, those points; दर्शयन् darśayan, explaining; आह् āha, the author says; विभागम् vibhāgam, partition; चेत् chet, if; पिता pitā, the father; कुर्यात् kuryāt, may make; इच्छया ichchhayā, at his pleasure; विभजेत् vibhajet, may separate; सुतान् sūtān, sons; ज्येष्ठः jyestham, the eldest; वा vā, either; श्रेष्ठ-भागेन śreṣṭha-bhāgena, by the best share; सर्वे sarve, all; वा vā, or, स्युः syuḥ, may be; समांशिनः samā nāśinah, equal sharers.

1. At what time, by whom, and how, partition may be made, will be next considered. Explaining those points, the author says, "when the father makes a partition, let him separate his sons (from himself) at his pleasure, and either (dismiss) the eldest with the best share, or (if he choose) all may be equal sharers."

Bālambhatta's gloss.

Formerly by 'at what time' etc. (see pl. 6 of sec. 1) the subjects having been set forth there, by 'whom' has been discussed at great length; now he comments on the original text to describe the other shares. 'Now' means after having filled up the uncle! original text which is essentially important in the original; 'these' means the third.

Mitakṣṛda.

यदा विभागं पिता चिकीर्णति तदा इच्छया विभजेत् पुत्रानात्मनः सकाशात्
पुर्वं पुत्रौ पुत्राद् ॥ २ ॥

यदा yadā, when ; विभागम् vibhāgam partition, पिता pitā, father ; चिकिर्षति chikīrṣati, wishes to make ; तदा tadā, then ; इच्छया ichchhayā, at pleasure ; विभजेत् vibhajet, should separate : पुत्रात् putrāt, sons ; आत्मनः ātmānah, himself ; सकाशात् sakāśāt, from (himself) ; पुत्रम् putram, a son ; पुत्रौ putrau, two sons ; पुत्रात् putrāt, sons.

2. When a father wishes to make a partition he may at his pleasure separate his children from himself, whether one, two, or more sons.

Bālambhatta's gloss

2. He now proceeds avoiding the fault of repetition: 'when' means 'if'; 'may make', here imperative is not wanted; it is in the secondary sense of 'wishes to make'. 'Then'; 'with pleasure' means 'at his pleasure'; 'separate' means 'may separate them by allotting them their shares in the inheritance'. He says further in order to accomplish his wish; 'from himself' means that after separation there is indifference on his part whether they continue to live joint or separate from one another. When he says 'sons', it is with a view to remove the doubt to the effect that there is no partition when there are many cosharers 'Son'; it is with a view to explain the ekaśeṣa dwanda samāsa; it is like anudātiānām (of the low accents);

इच्छाया: ichchhayāḥ, of the will ; निरकुशत्वात् nirañkuśatvāt, as it has no restriction ; अनियम् aniyama, no rule ; प्राप्तौ prāptau, being had, seen, नियमार्थम् niyamārtham, by way of restriction ; आह् aha, says (the author); ज्येष्ठम् jyेष्ठam, the eldest ; वा vā, or ; श्रेष्ठभागेन sreṣṭha-bhāgēna, by the best share ; इति iti, the words mean ; ज्येष्ठम् jyेष्ठam, the eldest ; श्रेष्ठभागेन sreṣṭha bhāgēna, by the best share ; मध्यमम् madhyamam, the middle one, मध्यभागेन madya bhāgēna, with a middle share ; कनिष्ठम् kaniṣṭham, the worst ; कनिष्ठ-भागेन kaniṣṭha-bhāgēna, by the worst share ; विभजेत् vibhajet, should separate ; इति iti, this, अनुवर्तते anuvartate, is understood.

3. No rule being suggested (for the will is unrestrained), the author adds, by way of restriction, "he may separate (for this term is again understood) the eldest with the best share," the middle most with a middle share, and the youngest with the worst share.

Balambhatta's gloss.

3. Unrestrained, means 'by reason of being irregular'; 'by way of restriction' as a restrictive rule. He makes the observation to be in conformity with the text of Manu; the 'middlemost', he says out of desirability; 'may separate', it is to suggest respect in the observation (upalakṣana)*

श्रेष्ठादि Śresthādi, of the best etc. ; विभागः vibhāgah, the distribution ; च cha, and ; मनुना manunā, by Manu ; उक्तः uktah, as said, propounded ; ज्येष्ठस्य jyeṣṭhasya, for the eldest ; विंशतिः vinsāh, the twentieth part ; उद्धारः uddhārah, to be deducted ; सर्व-द्रव्यात् sarva-dravyāt, of all the wealth, (heritage), च cha, and, together with ; यद् yad, whatever ; वरम् varam, is the best ; ततः tataḥ, of that ; अर्धम् ardham, half ; मध्यमस्य madhyamasya, of the middle one ; स्यात् syāt, should be ; तुरीयम् turīyam, a quarter ; तु tu, but ; यवीयसः yavīyasaḥ, for the youngest ; इति iti, thus it is to be understood.

4. This distribution of best and other portions is propounded by Manu. "The portion deducted for the eldest is the twentieth part of the heritage, with 'the best of all the chattels ; for the middlemost, half of that : for the youngest, a quarter of it.'

Balambhatta's gloss.

4. 'Best and others.' 'and' (cha) in the sense of 'but' ; its explanation will be clear gradually in the book itself.

वा शब्दः vā sabdah, the word either, or ; वक्यमाणः vakṣyamāṇa, what will be spoken subsequently ; पक्षः pakṣa, alternative ; अपेक्षः apekṣa, relative to ; सर्वे sarve, all ; वा vā or ; स्युः syuḥ, should be ; समाशिनः samāśinah, equal sharers ; इति iti, that is ; सर्वे sarve, all ; वा vā, or ; ज्येष्ठादयः jyeṣṭhādayah, the eldest and others ; समानशाभाजः samānśabhbājah, partakers of equal portions ; कर्तव्यः kartavyah, should be made.

* It is an implication of something that is not expressed.

5. The term 'either' is relative to the subsequent alternative 'or all may equal sharers.' That is, all, namely, the eldest and the rest, should be made partakers of equal portions.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

5. 'The word 'or' in 'or all' of the succeeding part of the verse (4th quatrain), when read with the rule laid down in the first part being useless, is the word 'either' (or) in 'either the eldest' not useless, as it is appropriate to denote the first option? Not so, by reason of sanctioning the unequal division at choice by the first clause; because the unequal division is contradictory to the original texts as will be shown later on. Therefore he says, 'the term either' denotes that it is correlative with the unequal distribution of Manu, less the additional share allotted to be gradually explained; so there is no impropriety in the reality thereof.

He explains the fourth quatrain; 'or all'; in 'equal sharers' the affix 'in' is added in the sense of praise; by bahubrihi compound, it means 'no deprivation of wealth.' 'Partakers of equal portions,' he says, as said previously; 'should be made' by the father is understood. Here by 'when makes a partition' the time of partition is meant; by 'father' is meant by whom partition (is to be made). From the succeeding line of the verse, it should be understood how partition (is to be effected).

अयं च विषमोविभागः स्वार्जितद्रव्यविषयः । पितृक्रमायाते तु समस्वाम्यस्य वद्यमाणत्वान्वेच्छया विषमोविभागोयुक्तः ॥ ६ ॥

अयम् ayam, this ; च cha, and; विषमः viṣamah, unequal, विभागः vibhāgah, distribution ; स्वार्जित-द्रव्य-विषयः svārjita-dravya-viṣayah, has for its subject the property acquired by himself ; पितृ-क्रमायाते pitṛi-kramāyātē, as regards what has descended from the father; तु tu, but; सम-स्वाम्यस्य sama-svāmyasya, equal ownership ; वद्यमाणत्वात् vakṣyamānatvāt, for it will be declared ; न na, not ; इच्छया ichchhayā, at his pleasure ; विषमः viṣamah, an unequal ; विभागः vibhāgah, distribution ; युक्तः yuktah, proper.

6. This unequal distribution supposes property by himself acquired,. But, if the wealth descended to him from his father, an unequal partition at his pleasure is not proper; for equal ownership will be declared.

Balambhatta's gloss

6. He now gives the special (feature); 'this' i. e. the partition made by the father; 'but if descended to him from his father', means 'property'; 'equal ownership' means that it is to be divided equally otherwise by the above-said mode, there will be meaninglessness.

7. One period of partition is when the father desires separation, as expressed in the text "When the father makes a partition."

(1) Another period is while the father lives, but is indifferent to wealth and disinclined to pleasures, and the mother is incapable of bearing more sons; at such a time a partition is admissible, at the option of sons even against the father's wish as is shown by Narada who premises partition subsequent to the demise of both parents. ('Let sons equally divide the wealth when the father is dead';) and adds "Or when the mother is past child-bearing and the sisters are married, or when the father's sensual passions are extinguished." Here the words "Let sons equally divide the wealth" are understood. Gautama likewise, having said, "After the demise of the father, let sons share his estate;" states a second period, "Or when the mother is past child-bearing", and a third, "While the father lives, if he desire separation." So, while the mother is capable of bearing more issue, a partition is allowable at the choice of the sons, though the father be unwilling, if he be addicted to vice or afflicted with a lasting disease. Thus Sankha declares: "Partition of inheritance takes place without the father's wish, if he be old, disturbed in intellect or diseased."

Balambhatta's gloss.

7. 'By desire', (means) 'of the father'; although this equal division relates to the self-acquired property, yet being maintained subsequently and the additional share being not specially described it must be understood as not maintained. Therefore 'let him separate' being appropriate is first; the second is included in it and the other two are common. There are four periods of partition; the first is supported by the original text; he says with authority. 'If partition'; 'when' means 'during his life time.' The second is not mentioned; so he himself supplies it; 'another also', the period is understood. He explains it 'while ... alive'; 'disinclined,' 'not desirous of sexual pleasures'; 'of the father' in the partition is understood. 'Against the father's wish' when there is a desire on the son's part, because in the original, there is no authority, he cites it: 'as by Nārada' is connected with, 'shown.' 'After...', 'of the parents', is understood; 'hence'; here it is connected with the wealth of the father; 'hence subsequently' means after the death of both the parents. "Let brothers convening after the death of the father and mother divide the paternal estate, because they are not independent during their life time," (Manu IX. 104.) It is according to Manu; so he says, 'of both parents'; 'prattasu' means on being married; there is also 'or' as a different reading; 'sexual pleasures' means 'sexual enjoyment, i. e. when that desire has come to an end. Sprihā (desire) relates to wealth; here he gives the result of what is said. 'Here' means when the mother is past childbearing, by this, desirability (of suitable words) is removed. He explains the original Nārada and his own with reference to the said text of Nārada repeating the 1st. 2nd. and 3rd. periods in an inverted order with the quotations from other sages. 'Gautama likewise'; 'third' is connected with 'shown' with repetition. 'After the demise' of the parents is understood; of the father like the preceding, 'or also' in the alternative case; similarly, it should be understood in Nārada's text i. e. 'or desires'. Third'; the period has been shown by Gautama. In the course of the present discussion, it should be considered first; in this way be has stated both the views (periods.)

He then gives the third period; 'so'; but the different reading 'nir' (without) has been explained: with this ends the quotation from Gautama. Having himself given two periods, he gives the third period; 'while the father lives if he desires, and, a third': he means, that the third period is one when the father wishes during his life time and is also addicted to sensual pleasures. He explains it; 'while the mother is capable of bearing more issue': in reality it is first in reading, it is already explained and it should be understood, that it requires a cursory explanation. 'Though the father be unwilling' to the partition etc.; lasting, incurable; 'and' (cha), indicates 'old age'. 'When there is a desire of the son' is understood; he therefore explains it by reason of its not being mentioned in the original text. Thus Sankha declares, 'without the wish' not wishing the separation; 'disturbed in intellect' means being addicted to unrighteousness; in 'rogini' the affix 'in' is added in the sense of excess; 'or' is to indicate option. Similarly it should be understood in the preceding (part) also; by this, there are two periods only (1) at the option of the father and (2) when he dies: there is no third period. The period when the mother is past child-bearing applies to the ancestral property. This clashes with the preceding by reason of the contradiction with Sankha, because there is no authority in support of that alone and there is possibility of truth in its real nature and conflict with the previous. So the third period should be accepted as regards the ancestral property. By this the above said contrary explanation is refuted.

पितुः pituh, by the father's; इच्छया ichchhayā, by the desire or will; विभागः vibhāgah, partition; द्विधा dvidhā, of two sorts; दर्शितः darśitah, has been stated; समः samaḥ, equal; विषमः viṣamah, unequal; च cha, and; तत्र tatra, there; समविभागे sama vibhāge, in the case of equal partition; विशेषम् viśesam, a special rule; आह āha, adds, says; यदि yadi, if; कुर्यात् kuryāt, he make; समान् samān, equal; असान् asān, parts, allotments; पत्न्यः patnyah, wives; कार्यः kāryāh, should be made, rendered; समांशिकाः samānśikāh, partakers of like portions; न वा, not; दत्तम् dattam, given; स्त्रीधनम् stridhanam, the separate property of the wife; यासाम् yāsām, whom; भर्त्रा bhartrā, by the husband, वा, vā, either; श्वसुरेणा, by the father-in-law, वा vā, or.

8. Two sorts of partition at the pleasure of the father have been stated, namely, equal and unequal. The author adds a special rule in the case of equal partition.

"If he make the allotments equal, his wives, to whom no separate property has been given by the husband or the father-in-law, must be rendered partakers of like portions."

Balambhatta's gloss.

8. 'Partition,' the first one; 'stated' by the original writer; he describes it in a reverse order suggesting that the equal partition is the established truth and is sanctioned in the original; 'equal'; 'there' (tatra), between the two.

यदा yadā, when; स्वेच्छया svechchhayā, by his own choice; पिता pitā, father; सर्वान् sarvān, all; एव eva, indeed; सुतान् sntān, sons; समविभागिनः sauna-vibhāginaḥ, partakers of equal shares; करोति karoti, makes, तदा tadā, then; पत्न्यः patnyah, wives; च cha, and; पुत्रसमांशभाजः putra-samānśābjāḥ, participants of shares equal to those of sons; कर्तव्यः kartavyāḥ, should be made; यासाम् yāśām, to which; पत्नीनाम् patnīnām, wives; भत्रा bhartrā, by the husband; श्वशुरेण svaśureṇa, by the father-in-law; या vā or; स्त्री-धनम् strīdhanam, separate property for a woman; न na, not; दत्तम् dattam, given; दत्ते datte, if it be given; स्त्री-धने strīdhane, special property for a woman; अर्धाशम् ardha-amśam, half a share; वक्ष्यति vakṣyati, dictates, directs; दत्ते datte, if anything be given; तु, but; अर्धम् ardham, half; प्रकल्पयेत् prakalpayet, let him assign.

9. When the father, by his own choice, makes all his sons partakers of equal portions, his wives, to whom, peculiar property had not been given by their husband, or by their father-in-law, must be made partakers of shares equal to those of sons. But, if separate property have been given to a woman, the author subsequently directs half a share to be allotted to her: "or if any had been given, let him assign the half."

Balambhatta's gloss.

9. He explains the meaning of 'if' (Y)*, 'when', he gives the result, 'All of them'; with the object of imperative mood, he says 'make'; 'wives', they also; here by the plural number and being included in the word 'wife', the partition amongst the step-mothers of the sons is also suggested; it will be clear later on. 'Equal sharers (समांशिकाः)', here in the unusual expression by the samāsa ending, it appears that by reason of the tap (affix), the absence of 'i' is meant- 'Equal partaker', (M); † there is another reading समांशिका: in which case on account of the option in the absence of क्, the tap being 'for its own' in क्, the object is somehow accomplished, Vishnu also says 'the mothers are also partakers of the shares, in equal proportion with the sons. 'To whom' (yāsām) is in the sixth form of declension according to the rule (in the remaining, the sixth form of declension): so he says 'wives, to whom'; the lord of the devotees (Yājñavalkya) says later on in the chapter dealing with the nuptial gift made at the time of supersession; and it is also proper, so it should be understood everywhere: there the word 'half' does not show the equal divisor but should be understood to mean equal division as far as possible. This text does not apply in the case of unequal partition, on the wife having no share to the allotment of the shares of the husband and wife, like that of the sons for want of proof and impropriety, but applies to the case of the equal partition. The first 'or' (yā) (Y) indicates the mutual option and the second 'or' (Y) indicates the option of the father etc; with this object he says; 'by the husband' (M); 'separate property,' it is apart from the inherited property to be described and sanctioned in reality by the text writer of Manu and others. It so happens if it is not given; so he says, ; 'if given' means that it is a special case..

यदा yadā, if ; तु tu, but ; श्रेष्ठ-भागादिना śreṣṭha bhāgādīnā, by superior allotment ; ज्येष्ठादीन् jyeṣṭhadīn, to the eldest son and the rest ; विभजति

* Y indicates the word from Yajñavalkya Smriti.

† M indicates words from the Mitākṣaṇa.

ribhajati, distributes ; तदा tada, then ; पत्न्यः patnyah, wives ; श्रेष्ठादि भागान् śreṣṭhādi-bhāgān, the superior and similar shares ; न na, not ; उभन्ते labhante, do take, do get ; किंतु kintu, but ; उद्धरेद्द्वारात् uddhṛita-nddhārāt, from which the son's deductions have been subtracted ; समुदायात् samudāyāt, from the aggregate ; समान् samān, equal ; एव eva, indeed ; भागान् amgān, parts ; स्वोद्दारम् sva-uddhāram, their own shares (deducted) ; च cha, and, besides ; यथा yathā, as ; आह नहा, says ; अपस्तम्बः apastambah, Āpastamba ; परिभान्दम् paribhāndam, the furniture ; च cha, and ; गृहे grihe, in the house ; अलङ्कारः alaṅkāraḥ, ornaments ; भाग्याः bhāg्यāḥ, belong to the wife, become the wife's property.

10. But if, he give the superior allotment to the eldest son, and distribute similar unequal shares to the rest, his wives do not take such portions, but receive equal shares of the aggregate from which the son's deductions have been subtracted, besides their own appropriate deductions specified by Āpastamba: "The furniture in the house and her ornaments are the wife's (property.)"

Balambhatta's gloss.

10. With this object in view, he says 'if superior', from the allotted additional share; it is bahubrihi compound and means 'of the sons.' It must be equal being not sanctioned by the text; so he says rightly 'like equal': 'own', wife. There is, therefore, an authority in the latter case; so he says, 'domestic furniture, chair, intensils made of clay and stone etc, ornaments, worn clothes go to the share of the wife'; this is the meaning. According to Haridatta the chariot of the father and the furniture in the house both go to the father, ornaments go to the wife and the gift made by the caste people also go to the wife according to some."

Here by 'if he make', the partition at the option of father but not at the option of the wife is laid down; that is also up to the division of the sons' shares (but) not of their own accord; 'there is no partition between the husband and wife' etc. having been said down by Āpastamba and others as said previously; it is impossible by reason of her being said to be one (with her husband). So says the Śruti "the wife is the other half of the self." It also means according to Manu 'they are not free while they are alive', (Manu IX.104) because she becomes subordinate by reason of the son; but when there are more wives than one, on account of the plural number each wife should be allotted an equal share with the son along with his own. It does not mean that they should be separated by giving them shares; they are, therefore, said to be equal partakers here but not to be separated like sons by giving them equal shares. The rule laid down by Āpastamba does not apply when there is no partition of the property, but what is said has been fully explained previously by the commentator in connection with the subject of 'surety'. In Madanarītī there is also the same thing; in this way just as in the first alternative when the partition is effected while the father is alive, so also in the other two alternatives when it is given, it should be understood that legally there must be maintenance at the option of the son just like the father.

CXVI.

To one who is himself able to earn wealth, and who is not desirous of sharing his father's wealth, anything whatsoever, though not valuable, may be given, and the separation or division may be thus effected by the father, so that the children or other heirs of that son may have no subsequent desire to claim a partition.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

11 and 12. Here is an explanation of 'able' (Y); 'himself' (M) is understood; 'father', it is also explained; 'not desirous,' he says that it is inherent in the word; 'though not valuable,' by 'api' there is conjunction of similar things of the same class (ejusdem generis); he assigns a reason: 'the children of that,' iti means for this reason.

ज्येष्ठम् jyeṣṭham, the oldest; वा vā, either; श्रेष्ठभागेन śreṣṭha-bhāgena, by the best share; इति iti, by this; न्यूनाधिकविभागः nyūna-adhika-vibhāgah, the distribution of greater or less shares; दर्शितः darsītah; is shown, तत्र tatra, in such a case; शास्त्रोक्तः śāstra-ukta, as are cited by the law; उद्धारादि udhdhārāli, by means of deductions; विषय-विभाग व्यतिरेकेण sāma-vibhāga-va-yatirekena, than that which renders the distribution uneven; अन्यथा, anyaththā, by any other mode, विषय-विभाग-निषेधार्थम् sāma-vibhāga-niṣedhārtham, for the sake of forbidding, or to forbid an unequal portion; आह Aha, says; न्यूनाधिक-विभक्तानाम् nyūna-adhika-vibhaktānām, among sons separated with greater or less share; धर्म्यः dharmyah, legal one; पितृकृतः pitṛikṛitah, made by the father; स्मृतः smṛitah, is pronounced valid, is stated in the law.

13. The distribution of greater and less shares has been shown. (§I) To forbid, in such case, an unequal partition made in any other mode than that which renders the distribution uneven by means of deductions, such as are directed by the law, the author adds, "A legal distribution, made by the father among sons separated with greater or less shares, is pronounced valid."

Balambhatta's gloss.

He explains the relevancy of the subsequent (passage), 'either eldest' (Y) 'there' (M) in such a case; there is a compound with the third vibhakti in deduction etc. (uddhāradi): 'otherwise' If it's bhāgens, then etc. 'D. recited by the law' includes that which follows; he says because the prohibition is not clear, it means in support of it. Otherwise 'when the father makes a partition, let him separate his sons at his pleasure' supports the third alternative (period) and clearly renders the Manu's text as to an equal partition without deduction useless. Similarly Vishnu says 'If the father separates his sons, it is at his option in his self acquisition.' Brihaspati says 'One should make a donation and partition of his wealth at his option.' Nārada says 'Let the father, while hale and healthy, separate his sons with the best share to the eldest or at his own wish' (XIII. 4) The text from Nārada supports the commentator's explanation of the original text. From this indicates a partition at the option of each but not a partition with an additional share supporting the view 'let the father separate the sons at his option', the argument of the unwise (Manu) is refuted by reason of its conflict with Vishnu and Nārada etc. and the explanation of Vijnaneswara being doubtful. For this reason though the text of Manu 'he divided the property amongst the sons' is of general application and is said to be in support of the equal partition and against the unequal partition, yet it is set aside by (the rule) 'the experts in the science of logic consider that *uityānuvada is no vidhi and shows the weakness based on the absence of the sutras; its refutation is there clear and has been shown previously. By this it is also refuted that the unequal partition at the option of the father in his self-acquisition is in accordance with the law and also virtuous. The father in the course of the partition during his life shall not give preference to one, nor shall he deprive another of his share capriciously without any cause.

विषयास्तकमानसः । अन्यथाशास्त्रकारी च न विभागे पिता प्रभुरिति । १३ ॥

न्यूनाधिकविभागेन nyūnālhika vibhāgena, by an unequal partition ; विभक्तानाम् vibhaktānām, separated पुत्रानाम् putrānām, among sons ; असौ asau, that न्यूनाधिक-विभागः nyūnālhika-vibhāgaḥ, partition of more or less ; यदि yadi, when धर्मः dharmaḥ, legal. शास्त्राकः śāstra-uktah, as ordained by the law ; भवति bhavati, is ; तदा taddā, then ; असौ asau, that ; पितृकृतः pitṛi kṛitah, made by the father ; कृतः kṛitah, made ; एव eva, finally, completely, already ; न na not ; निवर्तते nivartate, can be set aside ; इति iti, so ; मन्वादिभिः manvādibhiḥ, by Manu and the rest ; स्मृतः smṛitah, ordained, declared, अन्यथा anyathā, otherwise, else. तु tu, but ; पितृकृतः pitṛikṛitah, made by the father ; अपि api, also ; निवर्तते nivartate, can be set aside . इति iti, such is ; अभिप्रायः abhiprāyah, the meaning ; यथा yathā, as ; आह आह, says ; नारदः nāradah, Nārada ; व्याधितः vyādhitah, afflicted by disease ; कृपितः kṛupitah, influenced by wrath ; विषयास्तक-मानसः visyāsakta-mānasah, whose mind is engrossed by a 'beloved' object ; अन्यथा-शास्त्रकारी anyathā-śāstra-kārī, one who acts otherwise than the law permits ; च cha, and ; न ना, not ; विभागे vibhāge, in the distribution (of the estate) ; पिता pitā, the father ; प्रभुः prabhuh, has power ; इति iti, thus.

14. When the 'distribution' of 'more' or 'less' among sons separated by an unequal partition is legal, or such as ordained by the law ; then that division, made by the father, is completely made, and cannot be afterwards set aside : as is declared by Manu and the rest. Else it fails, though made by the father. Such is the meaning ; and in like manner, Nārada declares, "A father, who is afflicted with disease, or influenced by wrath, or whose mind is engrossed by a beloved object, or who acts otherwise than the law permits, has no power in the distribution of the estate."

Balambhatta's gloss.

14. The text of Kātyāyana applies to the case of an innocent son and is, therefore, not contradictory and does not support your view (says an objector). He (the author) says in reply that the words 'more or less' show partition, 'less,' therefore 'The sons should be maintained and guided by the shares—whether equal, less or more—allotted to them by the father' Brihaspati 'Whatever share has been allotted by the father on partition (i.e. the sons), is in accordance with law, because he is master of all' Nārada. XIII. 15 support it. The meaning of 'in accordance with dharma (law)' is, 'as laid down by the Scripture.' Being not connected here and by filling up many ellipsis, it is explained. If the prohibition is not explained, there is shifting of ground ; he, therefore, gives a distinction. 'Else' (anyathā) means 'it is illegal'; there is another reading ayathā śastra (not in accordance with the Śāstra). The meaning is the same as 'anyathā', another reading.

इदानीं विभागस्य कालान्तरं कर्त्रन्तरं प्रकारनियममाह

इदानी॒ नि॒दानी॒, next, now ; विभागस्य vibhagasya, of the partition ; काला॒ न्तरम् कालान्तरम्, another period ; कर्त्रन्तरम् kartrantaram, other persons as making it ; प्रकारनियमं prakāra-niyamam, a rule respecting the mode; आइ॒ अहा॒, propounds ; विभजेरन् vibhajeran, should distribute ; सुतः sutāḥ, sons ; पित्रोः pitroḥ, the parents (two); उर्ध्वं उर्धवम् urdhvam, after ; रिक्ष्यन् riktham, the effects ; रुणम् riṇam, the debts ; समम् samam, equally.

1. The author next propounds another period of partition, other persons as making it, and a rule respecting the mode. "Let sons divide equally both the effects and the debts after (the of demise of) their two parents."

Bālambhātta's gloss.

1. In this way, he has given three periods of partition during the father's life time ; the collection of texts was with the object that the father was alive. Now after his death there is another fourth period; as regards this, he expresses his opinion. 'So he says'; he gives the original in support. 'Now' (M) means after having said all this. In this way, the sage has divided it into two only; one during his life time and the other after his death. There are three alternatives as to the partition during the father's life time. (1) at the option of the father (2) without his wish ; the latter should also be understood two-fold according to the above said rule. By (the passage) "Or all may be equal sharers" (114) it is also shown; both alternatives should be understood to be included in an equal partition. He gives the special feature of the third (distinguishing it; from the former. 'Propounds a rule.'

पित्रोर्मातापित्रोरुद्धवं प्रयाणादिति कालोदर्शितः । सुताइति कर्तारोदर्शिताः सममिति प्रकार नियमः सममेवेति रिक्ष्यमृणं च विभजेरन् । २ ॥

पित्रोः pitroḥ, of the two parents ; मातापित्रोः mātā-pitroḥ, of the mother and the father ; उर्ध्वम् urdhvam, after ; प्रयाणाद् prayāṇād, the demise ; इति iti, so ; कालः kālāḥ, period ; दर्शितः darśitāḥ, is shown ; सुताः sutāḥ, the sons ; इति iti, by these ; कर्तारः kartārah, the persons as making ; दर्शितः darśitāḥ, are shown ; समम् samam, equably ; इति iti, by this ; प्रकार-नियमः prakāra-nyamah, a rule as to the mode ; समम् samam, equally, in equal shares ; एव eva, indeed, only ; इति iti, thus ; रिक्ष्यम् rikṣyam, effects ; ऋणम् ḥiṇam, debts ; विभजेरन् vibhajeran, they should divide.

2. After their two parents] After the demise of the father and mother : here the period of the distribution is shown. The sons.] The persons, who make the distribution, are thus indicated. Equably.] A rule respecting the mode is by this declared in equal shares only, should they divide the effects and debts.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

2. In order to set aside the breakingup of the compound (माता च पिता च) he says 'mother'; he explains the appropriateness of 'after'; 'after the departure (demise)' means after the death. 'Sons' (सुताः) should also be understood ekṣeṣa compound (सुतश्च सुतैः च) like the preceding ; the paternal uncles being prior should be considered first entitled in partition; the daughters being specially dealt with should not be considered first entitled here. How can it be a restrictive rule by this bare statement without 'eva' (only)? He, therefore, gives as its substance in the shape of a restrictive rule. 'Equably,' means 'according to the rule of the (सर्ववाक्यं)'; in order to remove the doubt as to equality and to achieve the object to be stated, he includes debts.'

* The Maxim is (सर्ववाक्यं सावधारणं). It applies when in a sentence there is no word denoting definiteness, the definiteness will be fixed where the sense requires it ; but where there are words such as एव etc. to denote definiteness, the maxim does not apply. See Vāchāśpatya.

3. But Manu, having promised “partition after the death of the father, and the mother” and having declared, “The eldest brother may take the patrimony entire, and the rest may live under him as under their father, has exhibited a distribution with deductions, among brethren separating after the death of their father, and mother:” The portion deducted for the eldest is the twentieth part of the heritage with the best of all the chattels ; for the middlemost, half of that ; for the youngest, a quarter of it." The twentieth part of the whole amount of the property (to be divided and the best of all the chattels, must be given (by way of deduction) to the eldest ; half of that, or a fortieth part, and a middling chattel, should be allotted to the middlemost ; and a quarter of it, or the eightieth part, with the worst chattel, to the youngest. He has also directed an unequal partition, but without deductions, among brethren separating after their parent's decease ; allotting two shares to the eldest, one and a half to the next born, and one apiece to the younger brothers, "If a deduction be thus made, let equal shares of the residue be allotted : but, if there be no deduction, the shares must be distributed in this manner ; let the eldest have double share, and the next born a share and a half, and the younger sons each a share ; thus is the law settled. The author himself has sanctioned an unequal distribution when a division is made during the father's life-time ("Let him either dismiss the eldest with the best share &c"). Hence an unequal partition is admissible in every period. How then is a restriction introduced, requiring that sons should divide only equal shares ?

Bâlambhatta' gloss

3. The first period of the partition during the life time of the father, has been said to be unequal in the original; the same has been said to be applicable to the partition after the death of the parents by Manu and others. When there is option by reason of the validity of both and when the equal and unequal partitions are both in accordance with law it is proper to explain 'equal' to mean 'as equal also' but not 'equal only'. He accordingly doubts the propriety of the explanation while laying down a restrictive rule. From 'after.....' to 'restriction introduced....' 'After' has been already explained and is written (used) with the object to mean 'after their demise'; so also in the succeeding part ; Patrimony (pitryam) means 'come down from the father'; aśeṣah (entire) has tasi affix which is added in all forms of declensions: 'the rest' i. e. other than the eldest brother. 'Live under him,' follow him like their father; it depends on the seniority by birth. So says Manu "The eldest brother like the father may voluntarily support all; or the younger brother, if capable, for the mainstay of the family depends on 'one's capacity' "With the consent of all let the younger brother if capable with the wish of all support others" Nārada XIII-5. It is a subject of consensus of opinion. Thus in Manu the seniority is meant by implication; this he explains; 'of all the chattles' means 'of those to be divided' deduction is understood; वस् is added in accusative; it means 'that which is deducted and is yogarudhi (conventional); it is connected with the succeeding under the rule of मध्यमणि* He says with the inherent power of it; 'all,' although it is connected with 'may be' brought in from elsewhere, yet he gives the result: 'to the eldest' means by those who make partition or strangers or mutually. By 'iti' he means that having said so; in these texts of Manu as indicated by 'iti', it is shown, therefore, to those who make partition; similarly in the following: its meaning is that all should equally divide the rest of the property. He gives the unequal partition mentioned by Manu in a different way; "similarly (tathā).....of those who divide" is connected with 'similarly it is sanctioned'; 'of these' means 'of the eldest'; 'this' (iyam) to be stated; its explanation; 'of the eldest', it is also of the seniority by reason of the subject and the management: he goes on to say further applying it to the subsequent: 'by the parents', is there no unequal partition, as it is not mentioned in the original? He replies to the objection with an illustration. That it does not apply, is refuted by 'while alive' (जीवत्); 'himself' by the text writer: it conveys the meaning to the effect that it is difficult to say that the original text-writer did not wish it anywhere else. The absence thereof can not be easily accounted for by reason of the general nature of the smṛiti texts and the want of proof there; he therefore says 'hence.'

* मध्यमणिन्याय is akin to मध्यदीपिका न्याय which is called the maxim of the central lamp. "The idea is of a lamp in a central position shedding its light on both sides. Akin to this is मध्यमणि न्याय which is explained in the Panhit for Dec. 1867 as referring to the central ruby of a nose ring which casts a lustre on the pearl on each side of it." Jecob's Handful of popular maxims.

अत्र atra, in this question ; उच्यते uchyate, it is said ; सत्यम् satyam, true ; अयम् ayam, this ; विषमः viṣamah, unequal ; विभागः vibhāgah, distribution ; शास्त्रदृष्टः sāstra-dṛṣṭah, found in the sacred ordinances ; तथापि tathāpi, still ; लोकविद्विष्टत्वात् loka-vidviṣṭatvāt, because it is abhorred by the world ; न na, not ; अनुष्टयः anuṣṭheyah, should be practiced ; असार्यम् asvargyam, not securing celestial bliss ; लोकविद्विष्ट loka-vidviṣṭam, abhorred by the world ; धर्म्यम् dharmaṇam, legal, अपि api, even though ; आचरेद् āchareद् ācharet, should practice ; न na, not ; तु tu, but ; इति iti, thus ; निषेधात् niṣedhāt, owing to the prohibition, because of the prohibition, यथा yathā, as ; महोक्षम् mahokṣam a great bullock ; वा vā, either ; महाजम् mahājām, a great goat ; वा vā or ; श्रावियाय श्रोत्रियाया, to a venerable priest ; उपकल्पयेद् upa-kalpayed, should offer ; इति iti, thus ; विधाने-अपि vidhāne-api, though there is this injunction ; लोकविद्विष्टत्वात् loka-vidviṣṭatvāt, on account of popular prejudice ; अनुष्टानम् anuṣṭhānam, non-performance ; यथा yathā, as ; वा vā, or ; मैत्रावरुणीम् maitrāvaraṇīm, consecrated to Mitra and Varuna ; गाम् gām, cow ; वशम् vasām, a victim ; अनुवन्ध्याम् anuvandhyām, a barren ; आलभेत् ālabhet, should slay ; इति iti, so, thus ; गवालम्भन-विधाने-अपि gavālam-bhan-vidhāne-api, though there is an injunction for killing of a cow ; लोकविद्विष्टत्वात् loka-vidviṣṭatvāt, because of the prejudices of the people ; अनुष्टानम् anuṣṭhānam, should not practise.

4. The question is thus answered; True, this unequal partition is found in the sacred ordinances ; but it must not be practised, because it is abhorred by the world ; since that is forbidden by the maxim, "Practice not that which is legal, but is abhorred by the world for it secures not celestial bliss" : as the practice of offering bulls is shunned, on account of popular prejudice, notwithstanding the injunction, "Offer to a venerable priest a bull or a large goat" ; and as the slaying of a cow is for the same reason disused, notwithstanding the precept, "Slay a barren cow as a victim consecrated to Mitra and Varuna."

Balambhatta's gloss.

4. Though by 'true' etc. he accepts its reality and rejects the proof in favour of its unreality, yet he does not accept the validity thereof in practice. 'World', though abhorred by the world, yet sanctioned by the Scripture and the people, how is it not practicable? The reply is 'not conducive to heaven' which means that even a virtuous act if abhorred by the people should not be acted upon because it does not secure heaven. Unheavenliness is the reason for its absence. The meaning is that the Scripture having said so, it should not be acted upon. Here he gives an illustration from the sruti 'as'; it is original. He gives it from the sruti; 'or as', 'let one offer a barren cow consecrated to Mitra and Varuna the twin deities'. The anuvandhyesti (sacrifice of a barren cow) has been laid down by Aśtamba in a soma sacrifice after ulavasāniya (last day). For the present he himself having allowed curd-dish at the same place, it should be understood that the latter is to be practised by the sacrificers.

5. It is expressly declared "As the duty of an appointment (to raise up seed to another,) and as the slaying of a cow for a victim are disused, so is partition with deductions (in favour of elder brothers)".

Balambhatta's gloss

5. Having thus generally stated the desuetude of the unequal partition in the kaliyuga but not before and suggesting that even with the aid of the illustrations explaining the same and laying down the unequal partition with the additional share by deduction, he cites the text of Bhatta prohibiting the unequal partition with the said illustrations. 'And it is said', 'niyogah' (appointment) ceremony; 'just other', other than the Vedic ceremony sanctioned by an injunctive text just like the sacrifice of a great bull etc. should not (be allowed): the 'not' (na) should be connected with both. In the reading 'धर्मेनो' (no duty), it means the duty of appointment नियोगः; it should be understood that the birth of a son from the husband's brother under (the text). "The husband's brother being directed by the elders shall cohabit with the sonless (widow)"...I-68: 'no' नेत्र is in the negative sense. 'Anuvandhyā' means a barren cow; 'also' or in conjunction; 'deduction' means 'additional share in a partition'; 'also' is the second conjunction; 'now' in the Kaliyuga. Māhava therefore quotes from Brahma purāṇa 'the marriage of a married woman (widow marriage?) the additional share to the eldest son, cow slaughter, appointment (dharejâ or karâo) and sanyâsa are prohibited in kaliyuga."

6. Āpastamba, also having delivered his own opinion, "A father, making a partition in his lifetime, should distribute the heritage equally among his sons"; and having stated, as the doctrine of some, the eldest's succession to the whole estate, ("Some hold, that the eldest is heir,") ; and having exhibited, as the notion of others, a distribution with deductions ("In some countries, the gold, the black kine, and the black produce of the earth, belong to the eldest son ; the car appertains to the father ; and the furniture in the house and her ornaments are the wife's; as also the property [received by her] from kinsmen, so some maintain") has expressly forbiden it as contrary to the law, and has himself explained its inconsistency with the sacred codes; "It is recorded in Scripture, without distinction, that Manu distributed his heritage among his sons."

Bālamīkutta's gloss.

6. Apastamba has also disapproved of it; so it is connected. Though he says before, 'While alive', though having consoled the eldest son with an excellent gift, yet it does not lead to the unequal partition but to the giving of consolation to him. Let him then satisfy his eldest son with some chief precious article like a cow etc as explained previously. With this object in view, he says 'his own opinion.' Superseding 'the drunk or intoxicated', in 'the absence of a son, the nearest kinsman (sapinda), in his absence, the preceptor, in his absence the resident student may inherit the property and apply it in pious and religious objects ; or the daughter, in the absence of all, the king may take the whole property: and 'having said so much' is understood. 'The whole estate'; here the claimant is the eldest son alone : it was already explained previously. Gautama also says, "The whole goes to the seniormost who maintains others." 'in countries' etc, in some particular country. Haridatta says "gold, black kine; 'black produce of earth' means black cereals produced from earth as rice and beans; some say, it means iron. All these go as the share of the eldest son. The chariot, the furniture of the house, utensils, stools etc. go to the father. The worn ornaments fall to the share of the wife, others are of opinion that wealth got from the caste-people also go to the share of the wife." 'Contrary' against; 'he himself', Apastamba himself. Manu; it is a quotation from the Taittireya Samhitā (III-1-9-4). There 'among his sons' being in the plural and 'heritage' being in the singular, the inference is that it applies without distinction (generally). It is subsequent; and it is also treated as a solitary text "he separates the eldest son with the wealth"; but the expert logicians do not consider nityānuvāda to be vidhi: so it is said. See Mīmāṃsā introduction vol. XXVIII, p. p. XXIV and XXVII.

Mitāksra.

तस्माद्विप्रमेविभागः शास्त्रद्वेषोऽपि लोकविरोधाद्युतिविरोधाद्य नातुषेयइति

सममेव विभजेरनिति नियम्यते । ७ ॥

तस्माद् tasmād, therefore ; विषमः viṣamah, unequal ; विभागः vibhāgah, distribution ; शास्त्रद्रष्टः sāstradrīṣṭah, noticed by the codes of law ; अपि api, though ; लोकविरोधात् loka-virodhāt, because of its disapproval by the world ; श्रुतिविरोधात् śruti-virodhāt, because of the contrariness to the scripture, because it is against the scriptures ; च cha, and : न na, not ; अनुष्टेयः anuṣṭheyah, should be practised ; इति iti, for this reason ; समम् samam, in equal parts ; एव eva, only, विभजेरन् vibhajeran, should distribute ; इति iti, so ; नियम्यते niyamyate, a rule is made, a restriction is ordained.

7. Therefore, unequal partition, though noticed in codes of law, should not be practised, since it is disapproved by the world and is contrary to Scripture. For this reason, a restriction is ordained, that brethren should divide only in equal shares.

Balambhatta's gloss.

7. He concludes the established truth (siddhānta view) : therefore ; 'scripture' means the sages. 'Equal'. Therefore, this relates to the partition during the lifetime which is set forth as a reply and is also later on maintained ; 'or the eldest' on the contrary relates to some other yuga, like others. "The father while alive should not give preference to one over the others ; nor shall he deprive another of his share capriciously for no cause."

This from Kātyāyana is also in favour. Therefore 'less or more' which has been said above under the text of Nārada does not mean that it should be so acted upon but if a father by chance under the authority of the Scripture without noticing the special text makes an unequal partition in the manner as laid down by the Scripture, it is not to be set aside. This is the purport but the real meaning has already been expressed by the commentator ; it should be borne in mind that there is no contradiction.

Here 'after the father's demise' is said, and Manu has also supported it by 'after the death of the father and mother' (IX-104). So the period after the death of both is obtained i.e. after the death of each of them ; in this view, while the father is alive the partition can be effected after the death of the mother ; similarly when the father is dead but the mother is alive it does not necessarily follow that the desired partition should be effected. But what has been said previously under the text of Gautama 'after the death of the father' and what is to be said hereafter in the original, the principal cause is the father's death, and the mother's death is of secondary importance. So 'the period after the death of the father' by reason of the existence or non-existence of the mother is two-fold ; but it is understood to mean 'atherlessness'.

and is not in conflict with what is to be said hereafter. Just as, in the first division three are included, so in it there are two, therefore the partition during his life and after his death is two-fold and allowed by law but not the third of the motherless. It is not so; according to the text of Manu, 'they are dependent while the parents are alive' (M. VIII-417); the cause arises after the death of both, being in conformity to the unity of a sentence in the original as laid down, how can it be then interpreted that way? Always to avoid the unavoidable contradiction that is to arise, even on the husband and wife having a right to a share according to Āpastamba but she has no such right to become separate like the sons; by reason of being the better half, she is everywhere in a company; the sense has been previously given: she being accordingly placed on an equal level with the sons, possesses the proprietary right like them. The sons have no right to claim partition during the life-time of the mother and have no right to disposal at their will by reason of want of ownership. This is the meaning of Manu. That is also the meaning of the original 'after the death of the parents.' Śamkha also means the same when he says, "Those whose father is alive are dependent, so are they who have mother."

"On the death of the father, let the sons divide the father's property; when the sinless father is alive, they have no ownership," Devala,

Or let 'while the father is alive', be alone: it relates to the self-acquired property. Similarly when the mother is alive it relates to her personal property. Further the result of 'the parents' will be later on explained. By this, the statement of Hardatta (to the effect) that there is no right of partition inter se between the husband and wife by reason of Āpastamba having said nothing about it previously, is refuted. So on the death of the father and even if the mother is alive there arises a right to partition, but not at the option of the mother nor has she a right to claim it. This is to be borne in mind. To sum up: while the father is alive, there are three periods of partition; with the consent of the father, two; 'when', two. In the first, at the instance of the father; in the last two, at the instance of the son. The allotment is equal everywhere. In the first case, the parents have equal shares; similarly in other two cases: but it is when no separate property is given to the mother. If the separate property is given, then her share is half. On the death of the father, there are two periods by reason of the existence or non-existence of the mother at the instance of the sons; the partition is equal. In the first case the mother has also an equal share. The mother's will is never the governing factor, nor does partition take place at her instance. It relates to the movable property, pure self-acquired property and the ancestral mixed with self-acquired property. In the pure ancestral property there is a peculiarity which is to be dealt with later on, there the mother has no share. Thus we have partition of the property that has descended unmixed with the earning of the father, mixed with such earnings and pure earning of the father, on the death of the father. We have also self acquisitions of two kinds (1) ante-nuptial and (2) post-nuptial. In the first case we have the rule relating to it under

In the self acquisitions of the father, the sons are not entitled to claim a partition without the wish of the father; but in the house and land properties which have descended, the father and sons have equal shares: he may not divide his self-acquisitions among his sons without his wish." Gautama. "In the ancestral property whether immoveable or moveable the father and son are declared to possess equal ownership. But the lost ancestral property which the father has recovered with his effort and what he has acquired by his special knowledge or heroism is the exclusive property of the father. Let him make a donation of it at his option and then enjoy what is left out; in his absence, the sons are declared to be equal sharers." In these quotations from Brishaspatti, by suggesting the sole participation of the sons with their father, then in the texts showing the shares of others as for instance 'he makes allotments' II-115 'after the father' (II 123) and laying down the share of the mother, there is nothing which entitles the mother to claim partition. It is proper because the word 'partition' means a separate allotment by virtue of the original right arising from co-ownership with another and a separate share therein to be determined along with that of others who have equal proprietary right. The daughters-in-law etc. have no proprietary right in the property of the father-in-law by birth owing to the absence of the prior relationship. If one says that there will be future relationship, it will be stretching the rule to its extreme limit by reason of the foreign birth. No relationship arises by marriage because after marriage she becomes a companion; nor by the death of her husband, because he is not her progenitor but in reality her right is obstructed by the proprietary right of the son: otherwise by reason of the mutual partition of the property of the sonless among the wives of his uncles or grand-sons, there will be a conflict with (the rule laid down in) the original 'by the different fathers' (II 120). A mother has, therefore, no share in the property acquired by the father before marriage. "Shall take equal share" applies where there is pre-existing ownership by reason of 'take'; but where there is no such pre-existing right, the words 'give' 'acquire' etc are appropriate. According to others, when there are immoveable properties of both kinds, the sons have ownership by reason of the possibility of the confusion to be stated here-aftor.

The post-nuptial earning of the father is also two-fold; moveable and immoveable. As to that, some say that under 'although the mother may take an equal share' both are equally meant, but by reason of the connection of the text 'to whom no separate property has been given' (II-115), it applies to the moveable property only. It follows that it does not depend on the maker and partition but on the relinquishment (donation);* this is the unanimous opinion. So when one is not given any property by the husband or the father-in-law specifically, she may take the share; on saying this, it means that when she is given a share specifically 'by so and so' it becomes her share and she gets no other. If it is equal to the son's share, that which was given before also becomes partible. If it is in excess, the equal is partible and the excess is (considered) gifted one. Hence if it was given without consent by reason of the absence of the power (of gift) on account of the existence of the son's ownership, the adjustment can be made by giving from the equal share of the son but it is not by right. If it is less, in order to avoid unequal division with other mother, it should be equalised from the property to be partitioned. In the passage 'If given (the separate property) half should be given' means that the given property should be made a part of the share so that it may be equalised from the other shares. Similarly in the passage 'the mother should get an equal share', it means that she should be made separate owner along with the son. Here the immovable property being not subject to partition should not form part (of her share) by reason of the commentator's use of such expressions 'at the pleasure of the husband' 'jewels and pearls' 'at the pleasure of the father' 'immovable and bipeds.'

"A female is said to be always at liberty in selling and giving the saudāyika (personal property) even if it is immovable. On the death of her husband a female can spend her husband's inheritance (भर्तृदाय) at her option ; she must protect it while he is alive or otherwise spend it for the family purposes. A sonless widow under the guidance of the elders, keeping the bed of her husband unsullied, should enjoy it while controlling her passions till her death; the revertors shall get it after her." From the passages of Kātyāyana (it follows) that while the sons are alive, just as in the ancestral property so in his self-acquired immovable property, there is no ownership by reason of the right arising in nature ; in such a state there is no possibility of gift and sale. There is lightness (derogation) when it is repeated that there is no gift or sale in such cases ; otherwise the difficulties will arise on breaking the prohibitions laid down.

Gautama says "others also get a share following the share allotted to the sons and the unmarried daughters,..." Here avoiding the term 'similar' which is a synonym of 'equal', using 'just similar' a synonym of 'proportionate' and including the married daughters in the category show this meaning, by reason of the maintenance of the unmarried girls who are in the category of 'just similar' from the movables only. 'Just similar' by being a class of sharers is distinguished. Angirā and Vyāsa say, "In the absence thereof, the mother is an equal sharer with the sons ; their mothers are equal cosharers and the maidens are entitled to a quarter. The sonless wives of the father are said to be equal sharers and the grand-mothers are said to be equally entitled" 'The mother' means one who has given birth (own mother) ; 'the mothers' means childless mothers (step-mothers) ; 'maiden' the unmarried (sisters) get $\frac{1}{2}$ of their brother's share for purificatory ceremony (marriage). Halāyudha, says 'after the father' means in this connection 'the childless mother.' Āpastamīa says 'the wives of the husband do not demand partition from the sons of the mothers', but this is against the present practice.

In this way in passages like 'wives should be allotted.....' by reason of the impossibility of getting a share in the husband's immovable property by the wives along with the sons, the word 'share' means the property other than immovable ; there is no share of the wives in the immovable property. The inherited property from the husband, being the husband's property, is her property; it is of two kinds. After the death of her husband there being no person entitled to it, the proprietary right reside in her ; while the husband is alive, by reason of the relationship with him the proprietary right also resides in her. In the first case, save the immovable property, she may spend the other ; and residing with her elders and keeping her husband's bed unsullied she may pass her time. As to the immovable property, it is said that she was to enjoy it till the end of her life and the reversioners were to get it after her. In the second case it is said, while (her husband is) alive, she is to protect it and obeying her husband's orders concerning expenditure should protect his wealth. The expounder while expounding these views of Kātyāyana follows them. But in reality under (the maxim) 'the whole is impure, by reason of the impurity of the source' an equality is maintained in both which will be clear later on. This is bird's eye view (of the matter),

8. It has been declared that sons may part the effects after the death of their father and mother. The author states an exception, in regard to the mother's separate property ; "The daughters share the residue, of their mother's property, after payment of her debts."

Balambhatta's gloss.

8. He explains the relevancy ; 'the mother', he explains it by repetition.

मातुर्धनं दुहितरोविभजेरन् । ऋणाच्छेन मातृकृतर्णपाकरणावशिष्टं अतश्चयं-

मातुः mātuh, the mother's ; धनम् dhanam, the property ; दुहितः duhitaraḥ, daughters, विभजेरन् vibhajeran, should distribute ; अत्यात् ḥiṇāt, after the debts, शेषम् śesam, what has remained ; मातृकृत-ऋणापाकरणावशिष्टम् mātri-kṛita-ṛipāpākaraṇāvāśiṣṭam, what has remained after paying debts of the mother ; अतः atah, hence ; च cha, and ; अत्यसमम् ḥiṇasamam, equal to her debts ; न्यूनम् nyūnam, less ; वा vā, or ; मातृधनम् mātridhanam, the mother's effects ; सुताः sutiḥ, the sons ; विभजेरन् vibhajeran, may divide ; इति iti, such ; अस्य asya, of this ; विषयः viṣayah, purport.

9. Let the daughters divide their mother's effects remaining over and above the debts ; that is, the residue after the discharge of the debts contracted by the mother. Hence, the purport of the preceding part of the text is, that sons may divide their mother's effects, which are equal to her debts or less than their amount.

Balambhatta's gloss.

9. 'Mothers', he proceeds to explain the subject under discussion ; 'contracted by the mother', by this ; "A son may be youngest of the senior wife and eldest of the junior wife, doubt arises how should there be a partition ? The eldest son gets a bullock as an additional share and others get the shares according to their mothers, after deductions of the bullock allotted to the eldest. The eldest born from the senior wife gets 16 bullocks and the rest get the share according to their mother. It is a settled rule. When the sons are born of the wives of the same class without any speciality, the seniority does not depend on the mother but on the birth. Even of (those born of) a Brahman woman, the seniority is determined by the birth; the seniority of the twins in the womb is also from the birth.' (Manu IX-122...126) "Those who are born of the same caste by one father from different mothers, get the shares through their respective mothers." Vyāsa.

"Those step-sons who are of equal castes but born from one father should be allotted shares according to their mother." Brihaspati.

"Those who are of the same caste though several are entitled to get their respective shares",

All these are said to relate to some other period. The exposition by Vyāsa and others without the additional share, in derogation to the equal partition supporting the unequal division is set aside by it by reason of its perversity, because it arises from the ignorance of the meaning of the smriti.

Then in the exception, 'residue after the payments of debts' is useless; the reply is that taking thereof in the mother's share is not for one's own use, by reason of the unity of the sentence with 'in their default' and being the subject of the daughters' failure there is (ultimate) accomplishment (of possession). He therefore says; 'therefore' means by reason of laying down the special rule. The purport is that in pursuance of the exception in the mother's property after the payment of debts while the daughters are alive, by reason of the advantage of that relationship, even when it is not partible by the sons by the non-applicability of the exception on account of no equal or less remaining after payment of the debts and by reason of no right existing even when the daughters are alive, the general rule alone applies as the remainder after payment of the debts is not partible while the daughters exist; similarly the equal or less is not divisible by reason of its being necessarily payable; so he says.

एतद् etad, this; उक्तम् uktam, meant, said; भवति bhavati, is, मातृद्रुतम् mātrikṛtam, contracted by the mother; क्षुण्णम् kṣṇam, the debts, तुत्रृष्ठः tūtrūṣṭaḥ; पुत्राणां putrāṇām, by the sons; पूर्व eva, only; अपाकरणीयम् apākaraṇīyam, must be discharged ; न na, not ; दुहितृभिः duhitribhīḥ, by the daughters ; अत्यावशिष्टम् riṇāvāś-ṣṭam, remaining above her debts ; तु tu, but ; धनम् dhanam, property, दुहितरः duhitaraḥ, the daughters ; गृहीयुः gṛihīyīḥ, should take ; इति iti, so ; युक्तम् yuktam, fit, proper ; च cha, and ; एतत् etat, this ; पुमान् pumān, the male issue ; पुमः puṁaḥ, of the man ; अधिकेत्युके adhikeśūkṛe, if the seed be more ; स्त्री strī, a female issue ; अधिके adhike, if the contribution be more ; स्त्रियाḥ striyāḥ, of the woman ; इति iti, thus ; स्त्रयवयवानाम् stryavayavānām, the female portions ; दुहित्र्युः duhitriṣu, in the daughters ; बाहुल्यात् bāhulyāt, because they abound ; स्त्रीधनम् strī dhanam, the woman's property ; दुहितानि duhitrī gāmī, goes to the daughters ; पितृधनम् pitṛ dhanam, the father's estate ; पुत्रानि putra-gāmī, goes to the sons ; पित्रवयवानाम् pitravayavānām, portions of the father ; पुत्रेषु putreṣu, in sons ; बाहुल्यात् bāhulyāt, because they abound ; इति iti, so.

10. The meaning is this : A debt, incurred by the mother, must be discharged by her sons, not by her daughters ; but her daughters shall take her property remaining above her debts ; and this is fit, for by the maxim, "A male child is procreated if the seed predominate, but a female if the woman contribute most to the iætus ;" the woman's property goes to her daughters, because portions of her abound in her female children ; and the father's estate goes to his sons, because portions of him abound in his male children.

10. "It" ; the meaning is that they shall take it subject to payment of the debt ; so he supports the textual contradictions with the arguments borrowed from other sūritis 'Fit' ; 'the seed' is connected with both ; by this a doubt that may arise to the contrary etc. is set aside. Just as after the death (of the father) the sons etc. make partition and while he is alive it is effected at their instance ; so while the mother is alive, even on the proprietary right subsisting from the birth, the daughters have no right to claim partition, nor can it be effected at the mother's option by reason of there being no text (to that effect) ; but whatever she gives becomes that of theirs (donees'). He, therefore says, 'by the parents.....to him" (11-123). It was said previously that the wife's property is indivisible, but by the inherent force of the term, it relates to the subject of partition at the instance of the husband ; so there is no conflict.

तत्र tatra, in that subject ; च cha, and ; गौतमेन Gautamena, by Gautama ; विशेषः viśeṣah; a special rule ; दर्शितः darśitah, is propounded ; स्त्रीधनम् strī dhanam, a woman's property ; दुहित्रिनाम् duhitrinām, belongs to the daughters ; अप्रतानाम् aprattānām, that are not given in marriage ; अप्रतिष्ठितानाम् apratiṣṭhitānām, that are not provided for ; च cha, and ; इति iti, so ; अस्य asya, of this ; अर्थः arthah, the meaning ; प्रताऽप्रतासमवाये pratā aprattā-samavāye, in the competition of the married and the unmarried अप्रतानाम् apratiānām, of those that are unmarried ; एव eva, only, indeed ; स्त्रीधनम् strī dhanam, the wife's property ; प्रतासु pratāsu, amongst the married ones ; च cha, and ; अप्रतिष्ठिता-प्रतिष्ठितासमवाये apratiṣṭhitā-pratiṣṭhitā samavāye, in the competition of the unprovided for and the provided for ; अप्रतिष्ठितानाम् apratiṣṭhitānām, of those that are unprovided for ; च cha, and ; इति iti, so, thus ; अप्रतिष्ठितः apratiṣṭhitah, unprovided for ; निर्धनाः nirdhanah, means poor, devoid of wealth, destitute of wealth.

11. On the subject [of daughlers] a special rule is propounded by Gautama : " A woman's property goes to her daughter, unmarried, or unprovided." His meaning is this; if there be competition of married and unmarried daughters, the woman's separate property belongs to such of them as are unmarried; or, among the married, if there be competition of endowed and unendowed daughters, it belongs exclusively to such as are unendowed : and this term signifies 'destitute of wealth.'

Balambhatta's gloss.

11. Keeping this in view he lays down a special rule. 'There' means 'on the subject of the daughters.' 'Of the daughters' being applicable to all generally, it so applies ; the term 'of the unmarried' is useless, how can it be used in a special sense ? 'Its meaning' ; (प्रतिष्ठितः) married ; (प्रतिष्ठितः) unmarried ; (प्रतिष्ठितः) endowed, wealthy ; (अप्रतिष्ठितः) unendowed, poor ; the meaning is that there is no meaninglessness, by reason of denoting the special rule. 'Exclusively' is to be repeated at both places.

ताभ्यः tabhyah, them ; दुहितेणः duhitribhyah, the daughters ; विना vinā, in the absence of ; दुहितेणाम् duhitriṇām, of daughters ; अभावे abhāve, in the absence of ; अन्वयः anvayah, the issue ; पुत्रादि patrādih, sons etc. ; गृहीयात् gṛihīyat, should take ; एतत् etat, this ; च cha, and ; विभजेरन् vibhajeran, should distribute ; सुताः sutāh, the sons ; पित्रः pitrōh, the parents ; उर्ध्वम् urdhvam, after ; इति so, so ; अनेन anena, by this ; एव eva, indeed ; सिद्धम् siddham, was proved right ; स्पष्टार्थम् spastiārtham, expressly ; उक्तम् uktam, has been declared.

13. On failure of daughters, that is, if there be none, the son, or other male offspring, shall take the goods. This, which was right under the first part of the text, ("Let sons divide equally both the effects and the debts;") is here expressly declared for the sake of greater perspicuity.

Balambhatta's gloss.

'Of the daughters', it is already pointed out ; 'and this' ; 'accomplished' (siddham) means 'accomplished from the meaning' ; it means that it also relates to the subject like it.

SECTION IV

पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन यदन्यत्स्वयमर्जितम् ।

 क्रमादभ्यागतं द्रव्यं हृतमप्युद्धरेत् यः ।
 दायादेभ्योन तद्दद्याद्विद्यया लब्धमेव च ॥ १९ ॥

पितृ-द्रव्य-अविरोधेन pitṛi-dravya-avirodhena, without detriment to the father's estate ; यद् yad, whatever ; अन्यत् anyat, else ; स्वयम् svayam, by himself ; अर्जितम् arjitaṁ, earned ; मैत्रम् maitram, as a present from a friend ; औद्राहिकम् audrāhikam, as a nuptial present ; च cha, and ; एव eva, indeed ; दायादानाम् dāyādānām, of the co-heirs ; न na, not ; तद् tad, that ; भवेत् bhavet, should be ; क्रमाद् kramād, through succession ; अभ्यागतम् abhyāgatam, come ; द्रव्यम् dravyam, property . हृतम् hṛitam, taken away ; अपि api, even though ; उद्धरेत् uddharet, would recover ; तु tu, but ; यः yah, who ; दायादेभ्यः dāyādēbhyaḥ, to the pareners ; न na, not ; तद् tad, that ; दद्यात् dadyāt, should give ; विद्यया vidyayā, by learning, by science ; लब्धम् labdham, acquired ; एव eva, indeed ; च cha, and.

1. The author explains what may not be divided. "Whatever else is acquired by the coparcener himself, without detriment to the father's estate, as a present from a friend, or a gift at nuptials, does not appertain to the co-heirs. Nor shall he, who recovers hereditary property, which had been taken away, give it up to the pareners: nor what has been gained by science."

Bālambhatta's gloss

1, 'Not liable to partition', only with a view to strengthen partition there is, therefore, relevancy of the subject ; this is the meaning. Here the words 'or also' are in the sense of 'optional' there are other readings as (chaivaiti) 'and also' and (cha) 'and'. The word 'pitri' (father) is ekaśeṣa for the reason given above.

माता पित्राः mātā-pitṛōḥ, of the father and mother, द्रव्यादिनाशेन dravyā-

2. That which had been acquired by the co-parcener himself without any detriment to the goods of his father or mother ; or which has been received by him from a friend, or obtained by marriage, shall not appertain to the co-heirs or brethren. Any property, which had descended in succession from ancestors, and had been seized by others, and remained unrecovered by the father and the rest through inability or for any other cause, he, among the sons, who recovers it with the acquiescence of the rest, shall not give up to the brethren, or other co-heirs ; the person recovering it shall take such property,

Bālambhatta's gloss.

2. 'Mother'; he contrasts it with 'detriment' ; 'without detriment to the goods' ; 'that' ; whatever is understood by reason of such reading in the original. If there is (anyat) 'other' as the reading in the original, 'other' should be considered as understood. It means the property different from that of the father. He details the different kinds "by.....received from a friend etc", he uses the imperative mood without necessity. 'Shall not appertain' appertains ; similarly in the following passage. 'Descended in succession' is the opening part of the second verse, he now explains; 'why was it not recovered by the elders' ? he replies 'through inability'. If there is no acquiescence, then it is partible. 'Of the rest', he gives the purport ; the recoverer. Similarly in the succeeding passage. He then gives a special rule.

नप्तां तु याभूमिमेकश्चदुद्धरेत्क्रमात् । यथाभागं लभन्तेऽन्ये दत्वांशं तु तुरीयक-
मिति । ३ ॥

तत्र tatra, there ; क्षेत्रे kṣetre, if it be land ; तुरीयांशम् tarīyāṁśam, the fourth part ; उद्धर्ता uddhārtā, the recoverer ; लभते labhate, obtain ; शेषम् śeṣam, the remaining ; तु tu, but ; सर्वेषां sarveṣām, of all ; समम् samam, equally ; एव eva, indeed ; यथा yathā, as ; आह ाha, says ; शाह śaṅkhāḥ, Śaṅkha ; पूर्वम् pūrvam, formerly ; नाशम् naśām, lost ; तु tu, but ; यः yah, who ; भूमिम् bhūmim, land ; एकः ekah, a single one ; चेत् ched, if ; उद्धरत् uddharet, would recover ; क्रमात् kramāt, in succession ; यथाभागम् yathābhāgam, according to his due allotment ; लभन्ते labhante, obtain ; अन्ये anye, others ; दत्वा datvā, giving ; अशां अशां aśām, part ; तुरीयकम् turiyakam, fourth ; इति iti, so.

14. If it be land, he takes the fourth part, and the remainder is equally shared among all the brethren. So Śankha ordains "Land, (inherited) in regular succession, but which had been formerly lost and which a single (heir) shall recover solely by his own labour, the rest may divide according to their due allotments, having first given him a fourth part."

Bālambhatta's gloss.

3. 'And in the land'; here 'and' is in the sense of 'but'; the proper reading is 'and there in the land.' 'Amongst them' means 'in their connection.' 'Among all' (means) 'among the recoverer and the rest' ; 'according to their due allotments' means after giving a quarter share to the recoverer the remaining (§) should be distributed by all along with him according to their shares. 'In order' being meaningless in connection with 'recovery' and by reason of the unity of the sentence, he fills up the gap by 'in order' the first part of the verse, 'inherited.'

Mitakṣra.

क्रमादभ्यामतमिति शेषः । ४ ॥

क्रमाद् kramād, through, succession ; अभ्यागतम् abhyāgatam, come, inherited ; इति iti, this ; शेषः s-ṣah, remains, is understood.

तथा विद्यया वेदाध्ययनेनाध्यापनेन वेदार्थव्याख्यानेन वा यज्ञव्यं तदपि दायादेभ्योन् दद्यात् । अजकएव गृहीयात् । ५ ॥

तथा tathā, similarly ; विद्यया vidyayā, by learning ; वेदाध्ययनेन vedādhya-yanena, by studying the Vedas ; अध्यापनेन adhyāpāneṇa, by teaching ; वेदार्थव्याख्यानेन vedārtha-vyākhyānena, by expounding the meaning of the Vedas, वा vā, nor, यद् yad, whatever, लब्धम् labdham, obtained, तद् tad, that ; अपि api, also ; दद्यादेभ्यः dā, देबभ्यः, to the coheirs ; न no, not ; दद्यात् dedyāt, should give ; अजकः arjakah, acquirer ; एव eva, only ; गृहीयात् grihīyāt, should take.

5. He need not give up to the co-heirs, what has been gained by him through science, by reading the Scriptures or by expounding their meaning ; the acquirer shall retain such gains.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

4. and 5. He explains the forth quatrain ; he explains 'similarly' by connecting it with 'only' (eva) ; by 'science alone' ; by reason of the non-existence of any proof and being in unison with the text of other smritis he gives its three meanings. 'By reading the scripture' he means by reason or its being principal. He gives the meaning ; 'that also' ; this is the reading which is approved of. This and others, by the inherent force of the terms, viz: 'father', 'himself' and 'kinsmen' etc., relate to the earning of one of the brothers in the complete partition ; similarly the text of Nārada relating to the (earnings by the) exploits should be understood. Later on, the earnings made in this way will be, however, considered.

Mitakṣaṇa.

अत्र च पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन यतिक्षित्स्वयमर्जितमिति सर्वत्रशेषः । अतश्च पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन यन्मैत्रमर्जितं पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन यदौद्वाहिकं पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन यत्क्रमादायातमुदृतं पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन विद्यया लब्धमिति प्रत्येकमभिसंबध्यते । तथा च पितृद्रव्यविरोधेन प्रत्युपकारेण यन्मैत्रम् । आसुरादि विवाहेषु यज्ञव्ययम् । तथा पितृद्रव्यव्ययेन यत्क्रमादायातमुदृतं तथा पितृद्रव्यव्ययेन लब्धया विद्यया यज्ञव्ययं तत् सर्वं सर्वं भ्रातृसिः पित्रा च विभजनीयम् । ६ ॥

अत्र atra, here ; च cha, and ; पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन pitṛidravyāvirodhena; without detriment to the father's property ; यत्किञ्चित् yatkiñchit, whatever; स्वयम् svayam, by himself ; अर्जितम् arjitaṁ, acquired ; इति iti, this ; सर्वत्र sarvatra, everywhere ; शेषः śeṣaḥ, understood ; अतः ataḥ, hence, thus, च cha, and ; पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन pitṛidravyāvirodhena, without detriment to; the paternal estate ; यद् yad, whatever ; मैत्रम् maitram, from a friend अर्जितम् arjitaṁ, acquired ; पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन pitṛidravyāvirodhena, without; detriment to the paternal estate; यद् yad, whatever ; औद्वाहिकम् andवाहिकम्, nuptial ; पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन pitṛidravyāvirodhena, without any detriment to; the paternal property, without the father's expenses ; यत् yat, whatever ; क्रमादादायातम् kramādāyātasm, inherited property ; उद्धृतम् uddhṛitam recovered ; पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन pitṛi-dravyāvirodhena, without any detriment to; the father's property, not by the father's expenses ; विद्यया vidyayā, by; learning ; यद् yad, whatever ; लब्धम् labdham, acquired ; इति iti, so ; प्रत्येकम् pratyekam, with each member of the sentence; अभिसम्बध्यते abhisambadhyate, is connected ; तथा tathā, similarly ; च cha, and ; पितृद्रव्यविरोधेन pitṛi-dravyāvirodhena, conferred at the charge of the patrimony ; प्रत्युपकारेण pratyupakāreṇa, as the return of an obligation ; यद् yad, which ; मैत्रम् maitram, obtained from a friend ; आसुरादि विवाहेषु असुरादि-विवाहेषु, in the marriage concluded in the form termed असुरा or the like; यद् yad, whatever ; लब्धम् labdham, is obtained ; तथा tathā, similarly ; पितृद्रव्यव्ययेन pitṛi-dravyā-vyayena, by the expenditure of the father's goods; यत् yat, whatever ; क्रमायातम् kramāyātām, hereditary ; उद्धृतम् uddhṛitam, recovered; तथा tathā, similarly ; पितृद्रव्य-उपयेन pitṛi-dravyā-vyayena, at; the expense of the ancestral wealth ; लब्धयाविद्यया labdhayā-vidyayā, by; the learning gained by ; यद् yad, whatever ; लब्धम् labdham, obtained ; तत् tat, that ; सर्वम् sarvam, all ; सर्वैः sarvaiḥ, by all ; भ्रातृसिः bhṛātṛisibhāḥ, brothers ; पित्रा pitrā, by the father ; च cha, and ; विभजनीयम् vibhajanīyam, should be divided.

6. Here the phrase "any thing acquired by himself, without detriment to the father's estate", must be everywhere understood: and it is thus connected with each member of the sentence; what is obtained from a friend, without detriment to the paternal estate; what is received in marriage, without waste of the patrimony; what is redeemed, of the hereditary estate, without expenditure of ancestral property; what is gained by science without use of the father's goods. Consequently, what is obtained from a friend, as the return of an obligation conferred at the charge of the partimony; what is received at a marriage, concluded in the form termed Asura, or the like; what is recovered, of the hereditary estate, by the expenditure of the father's goods, what is earned by science, acquired at the expense of ancestral wealth; all that must be shared with the whole of the brethren and with the father.

Bâlambhatta's gloss.

6. Though the said explanation devoid of adjectives or with all adjectives is common, yet he shows it in favour of his view with the object to bear on the subject. 'Here and etc.'; 'here and' in the original text; he gives another explanation. 'Anything (kinchit) there is another reading 'only' ('evaṁ' or 'eva') The third is with a view to be in conformity with the text of Mann. He means the remaining portion after differentiating all the properties obtained from a friend etc. as laid down in the text by reason of their being not partible. 'And therefore' he gives the result on its being understood everywhere; 'consequently' the same is explained in an opposite way; or the return of the obligation caused at great hostility or to the detriment and consequently made. In the Brâhma form of marriage there is no detriment to the patrimony under the text; he therefore says; '.....from the Asura form of marriage'; 'with the father', therefore they are mentioned divisible among all. 'Must be shared'; therefore there is a relevancy of the subject of partition. He clearly explains the meaning of the sentence; 'not similarly', but what is acquired without detriment to the partimony such as gift from a friend, etc. is not partible.

Mitakṣra.

तथा पितृद्रव्याविरोधेनेत्यस्य सर्वशेषपत्वादेव पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन प्रतिग्रहलघ्यमिति विमज्जनीयम् । अस्य च सर्वशेषपत्वाभावे मैत्र मौद्राहिकमित्यादिना लघ्यम् ॥

तथा tathā, similarly, thus; पितृद्रव्याविरोधेन pitṛi-dravyā-virodhena,

without detriment to the father's estate ; इति iti, thus ; अस्य asya, this (phrase) ; सर्व-शेषत्वात् sarva-aeṣatvāt्, because of its being understood every-where ; अत्र atra, here ; पितृदण्डविरोधेन pitṛi-draव्या-virodhena, without detriment to the father's estate ; प्रतिग्रह-लब्धय् pratigraha-labdham, obtained by simple acceptance ; इति iti, so ; विभजनीयम् vibhajanīyam, should be divided ; अस्य asya, this ; च cha, and ; श्वशेरत्वाभावे sarva-ṣeṣitvā-bhāvē, if it were not understood with every member of the text ; मैत्रम् maitram, present from a friend ; औद्योगिकम् audyāhikam, a dowry received at a marriage ; इत्यादिना ityādinā, by this and the like ; लब्धय् labdhavyayam, should be obtained.

7. Thus since the phrase “without detriment to the father's estate” is in every place understood, what is obtained by simple acceptance, without waste of the patrimony, is liable to partition. But, if that were not understood with every member of the text, presents from a friend, a dowry received at a marriage, and other particular acquisitions, need not have been specified,

Balambhatta's gloss.

7. It is not only understood with every member of the text but it is understood with every thing declared impartible by the texts of other smritis by reason of the implication of the gift from friends etc. Similarly the gift from friends etc. are divisible ; so are others also. ‘Patrimony’; some (are of opinion) that it is also not (partible); in that case even on getting at the right principle as regards the gift from a friend etc. and the things (declared impartible) under the other smritis by reason of the unsettled principle as regards the acquisition by acceptance (gift), it is difficult to determine the correct principle there; it may be, therefore, said to be implied by it; he says, or on determination of the true principle in the case of the gift from a friend etc. the same principle applies with equal force. ‘Patrimony’; somewhere the reading is without ‘not’; it appears to be proper and in conformity with the mode of explanation by the commentator; there is no use in repeating the meaning of the sentence; the fact that it is understood in the succeeding one only is not independent; ‘but’ (kincha) is with the object of that meaning : the purport is already given and it is proper.

According to others the reading is ‘not thus’ (na tathā). even then, it is understood in the succeeding clause ; it means ‘not independently.’ The meaning is, just as by reason of ‘detriment to the patrimony’ being understood everywhere and being understood at the end of friendly gift etc. under the text, the friendly gift etc. obtained to the detriment of the patrimony is divisible; similarly the earnings from the acceptance of gift being other than friendly gift etc. acquired at the expense of the patrimony, are indivisible. What he means is that the fitness for divisibility arises from the earnings being made at the cost, though independently, by reason of that (to the detriment of the patrimony) being understood. It is not so, by reason of its being in conflict with what follows in the book and by reason of its not keeping pace with the natural tenour thereof.

It is to avoid the defect of *istāpatti on saying 'let it be so'; if it be said to be understood with it (every member of the text) there will be independence. He, therefore, says to strengthen the above said view for (fear of) the possibility of its being different from the friendly gift etc. under the maxim of 'Brāhmaṇa vasiṣṭha'†. On that being understood by reason of the inherent force of the word etc., whatever is earned without detriment to the patrimony is indivisible. Though it follows from the members of the sentence, yet generally like similar acquisition from the acceptance of gift, similar friendly gift etc. are proved to be indivisible; the enumeration of the same again, is useless: it is his meaning. It is not the subject of the maxim of 'Brāhmaṇa Vasiṣṭha'; it comes into operation when there is a reason but the application is elsewhere. Here in the present case there is no difference of the subject (dealt with); otherwise he doubts the applicability.

8. But, it is alleged, the enumeration of amicable gifts and similar acquisitions is pertinent, as showing that such gains are 'exempt' from partition, 'though obtained at the expense of the patrimony. Were it so, this would be inconsistent with the received practice of unerring persons, and would contradict a passage of Nārada : "He, who maintains the family of a brother studying science, shall take, be he ever so ignorant, a share of the wealth gained by science." Moreover, the definition of wealth, not partible, which is gained by learning, is so propounded by Kātyayana. "Wealth, gained through science which was acquired from a stranger while receiving a foreign maintenance, is termed acquisition through learning."

Balambhatta's gloss.

8. 'But'] ; 'also' (api) is in the sense of inclusion of the preceding ; 'exempt from partition' ; by being indivisible it is in the fifth form of declension in the sense of reason in the form of result. It means 'to support it'; the reading 'for exemption from partition (avibhajyatvāya)' does not require elucidation. 'Received practice of unerring persons' means 'not contrary to the practice sanctioned by the society of the educated people.'

When the usage (practice) is weak by reason of the text that *sruti etc are each stronger than the following ones, it is improper. The reply is in the negative by reason of not explaining the meaning. As for example, the annulment is an obstruction in the way; non-annulment is a preferable rule: under it a weak rule does not annul another weak (rule) but its operation comes into play when there is a conflict and no opportunity for its application. The conflict arises by two different rules at one place. But such is not the case here. When there is accomplishment (of an object) by non-annulment, the annulment is not proper; under this rule, the text as regards a friendly gift should be interpreted in accordance with what we say: there is, therefore, no room for non-application. In this way under the rule 'to those who are afraid of meaninglessness', the annulment is unsuited; in short if the interpretation be accepted according to what I state, it offends the customary law observed by educated men,

Not only does it offend the rules of the society but the gains of science falling under the category of the friendly gift are against the smritis also. 'In the gains of science' means a share in them; he explains it. If the brother of one who is acquiring learning supports his family, though illiterate and ignorant, by being devoid of the Vedic learning, he gets a share in the earnings made with the learning acquired by him; there is another reading, 'asuta' (sonless in place of 'āśruta', illiterate). Here by stating the reason for sharing the earnings on supporting the family (of the acquirer), sharing of the gains of science is conditional but not natural by reason of being a brother. If the object of the original text is that the wealth in the shape of science acquired anyhow is in reality indivisible, it contravenes the condition attached by Nārada. It follows that the divisibility or indivisibility thereof is not natural; but it is indivisible if acquired without detriment to the patrimony and divisible when acquired to the detriment thereof. It is contradictory in form but in conclusion it is in conformity with the reason assigned by Nārada. In the original the 'pitri' (patrimony) is upalaksana (synecdoche). If the object of Nārada is that the allotment of a share in the gains of science is natural, the condition attached thereto is meaningless. So the learning acquired in any way is not divisible in itself; otherwise on the indivisibility thereof depending on the acquisition without detriment to the patrimony, the indivisibility is proper i. e. the statement as to the division thereof is irrelevant.

By 'illiterate' it is implied that in the case of an illiterate man, there is allotment of a share, if it (learning) is acquired to the detriment of the patrimony ; in the case of a literate man, he is entitled to it by reason of possessing it and possessing learning. Kātyāyana therefore, says 'A man who is literate shall nowhere share the gains of science with the illiterate; but a literate man shall share them with those who are equally or more learned.' Vaidya means literate; it is an exception to the established truth arrived at as to indivisibility. It will be clear later on By this, the foolish (Mind's) statement that there is a contradiction between Nārada and Kātyāyana is refuted by reason of the definition of indivisibility given by Kātyāyana and the subject (thereof). The commentator has also said to the same effect, otherwise the qualifying clauses have no bearing. In the same way the commentator's conflict as to other than gains of science with Nārada etc, should be reconciled,

It lays down an extraordinary principle* in connection with the divided brother. But there is a rule that the friendly gifts are always imparable and in the established truth the particulars have been specified as exceptions ; so there is no conflict 'Similarly learning'] 'foreign' means by eating the cooked rice etc of persons other than the father; 'foreign' other than the father: so the earnings gained from learning acquired without detriment to the patrimony from a different person are gains of science, but not others and as such they are indivisible. Any other acquisition is, therefore, not a gain of science and is divisible. It means that the conflict by reason of the intention of Kātyāyana with the meaning is obvious. Therefore even without the conflict with Nārada's text by the conflict with Katyayana's text, the impossibility of the meaning and the absence of sense on that (without detriment to the patrimony) being not understood, the defect of the meaninglessness is well established.

Balambhatta's gloss.

9. He points out another defect, 'thus'] 'acceptance'; by reason of 'without detriment to the patrimony', any thing obtained without detriment to the patrimony under the previous rule as acceptance of gift made for invisible purpose, charity and donation, even if earned without any detriment to the patrimony, becomes impartible; this is contrary to the practice of the elders. The friendly gifts, the subject of all smritis acquired with or without detriment to the patrimony, being twofold, the divisibility of the acceptance of gift (pure and simple) is, therefore, in conformity with the practice (custom). The substance is that there is nowhere prohibition laid down by the smritis as to this, like the earnings made by officiating as a priest or teaching.

पतदेव स्पष्टीकृतं मनुना । (अ० ६ श्लो० २०८) अनुपग्नन् पितृद्रव्यं धर्मेण यदुपार्जयेत् । दायादेभ्योन तद्यादिव्या लभ्यनेव चेति । १० ॥

पतद् etad, this; एव eva, very, indeed; स्पष्टीकृतम् spaṣṭi kritam, is made evident, मनुना manunā, by Manu: अनुपग्नन् anupaghnan, without ruining, without using, पितृद्रव्यम् pitrī-dravyam, father's wealth; धर्मेण śramena, by his labour; यद् yad, whatever; उपार्जयेत् uparjayet, would earn; दायादेभ्यः dāyādēbhyah, to the coparceners, न na, not; तद् tad, that, दयात् dadyāt, should give; विद्यया vidyayā, by means of learning; लभ्यम् labdham, obtained, एव eva, indeed; च cha, and; इति iti, thus.

10. This (condition, that the acquisition be without detriment to the patrimony,) is made evident by Manu: "What a brother has acquired by his labour, without using patrimony, he need not give up to the co-heirs, nor what has been gained by science".

धर्मेण सेवया युद्धादिना । ११ ॥

धर्मेण śramena, by labour; सेवया sevayā, by service; युद्धादिना yuddhādinā, by war and the like.

11. By labour. By science, war, or the like.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

10 and 11. 'This'] means the friendly gift etc. earned without any detriment to the patrimony ; 'without injury' means 'without using' : here the meaning of preceding part of the stanza is clear. By change of declension in 'without injury', it comes to this that a person who does not use the patrimony in both the acquisitions made by his learning and by other means mentioned previously shall not share them with his co-sharers ; from this, it follows that what is earned without detriment to the patrimony in the shape of loss of the father's money, by means of learning or labour is indivisible : when such is the case with the wealth acquired by learning which falls under the category of the friendly gifts etc., a fortiori the same applies to the friendly gift by implication (upalaksana).

In Manu (IX-208) 'whatever is obtained by one's effort shall not be given without his will'. The reading of the last part of the verse is to the effect that whatever is earned with labour being desirable as for example friendly gift, shall not be divisible among brothers if he (the acquirer) is unwilling to do so. This reading of Medhatithi and Kalpataru is not proper by reason of giving rise to the defect of the conflict with many smritis ; 'labdam tanna', the later reading is still more improper : or it may relate to the ancestral property. Having thus stated the remainder of the brothers' shares 'without injury', as said, should be understood ; 'etc' conveys agriculture etc.' By the two terms 'without detriment to the patrimony' etc, the earnings of a brother as the friendly gifts etc. shall not be shared by others ; for the word 'father' includes other co-sharers. This shows that they are not earnings of the father and others. This practice (custom) is based on brotherly affection or personal skill ; or seen elsewhere similarly, it is founded on it.

In 'whatever is on the father' (IX-204) the meaning of Manu is this. From the text of Manu, 'he should protect the sons (of the father) like the father' IX-108, the younger brothers have a right in the property of the elder like that of the father and son, with this difference that in the paternal property even the illiterate have a share therein but in the elder brother's acquisition, only the literate brothers are entitled to it. It appears so from the phrases such as 'on the death of the father' 'elder brother', 'of the younger brothers', and 'protectors of learnings', (IX-204). It is, therefore, refuted that whatever earned jointly becomes the property of those who are other than joint (i. e. separate) as said previously, by reason of the uselessness of 'whatever'.

ननु nanu, not indeed, is it not; पितृद्रव्यविरोधेन pitṛi-dravyavirodhena, without detriment to the father's property; यद् yad, what; मैत्रादिलद्धम् maitrādi-laddham, obtained as a present from a friend, and similar presents; द्रव्यम् dravyam, wealth; तद् tad, that; अविभाज्यम् avibhājyam; should not be divided; इति iti, so; न वक्तव्यम् na vaktavyam, it should not be said; विभाग-प्राप्ति-अभावात् vibhāga prāpti-abhāvāt, since there is no ground for the supposition of a partition; यद् yad, which; येन yena, by whom; लद्धम् laddham, acquired; तत् tat, that; तस्य tasya, belongs to that person (the acquirer); एव ova, indeed, only; न na, not; अन्यस्य anyasya, of any other person; हनि iti, so, this; प्रसिद्धतरम् prasiddha-taram, is well-known; प्राप्तिपूर्वकः prāptipūrvakah implying the possible supposition of the contrary; च cha, and; प्रतिषेधः pratishedhah, the denial.

12. Is it not unnecessary to declare that effects obtained as presents from friends, and other similar acquisitions made without using the patrimony, are exempt from partition: since there was no ground for supposing a partition of them? That what is acquired, belongs to the acquirer, and to no. other person, is well known: but a denial implies the possible supposition of the contrary.

12. No, it is not proper; in the ancestral and paternal property on the son's having a proprietary right from the birth and on his having no such right in the earnings of his brother, it is common-place knowledge that whatever a brother gets as a friendly gift etc. is his (earning), does not form part of the portable property and is not divisible. He, therefore, says with a view to show the irrelevancy of the prohibition relating to it. "Is.....patrimony"] ; he gives a reason for the absence of a rule (for partition); 'that', because etc: the meaning is that there is no proprietary right (in the earning) of another. He assigns another reason for the absence of the rule; 'having'; 'and' (cha) is in the sense of 'because',

अत्र atra, here ; कश्चित् kaśchit, some body ; इत्यम् ittham, thns ; प्राप्तिम् prāptim; grounds for supposing a partition ; आह शा, states ; यत्कश्चित् yat kiñchit, whatever ; पितरि pitari, if the father ; प्रेते prete, be dead ; धनम् dhanam, wealth ; ज्येष्ठः jyeṣṭhaḥ, the eldest ; अधिगच्छति adhi gachchati, obtains ; भागः bhagāḥ, a share ; यवीयसाम् yaviyasām, of the younger ones ; तत्र tatra, there ; यदि yadi, if ; विद्यानुशालिनः vidyāśau, ślinah, such as have duly cultivated science ; इति iti, so ; ज्येष्ठः jyeṣṭhaḥ, the eldest ; वा vā, or ; कनिष्ठः kaniṣṭhaḥ, the youngest ; वा vā, or ; मध्यमः madhyamah, the middle one ; वा vā, or ; पितरिप्रेते अप्रतेवा pitari prete vā, whether the father be dead or not dead ; यवीयसाम् yavī yasām, of the younger ones ; वर्षीयसाम् varṣiyasām, of the older ones ; च cha, and ; इति iti, so ; व्याख्यानेन vyākhyānena, by explanation, by interpreting ; पितरि-सतिअसति pitari sati asati whether the father be alive or not; च cha, and ; मैत्रादीनाम् maitradinām, of the persent from a friend and similar other presents ; विभागत्वम् vibhāgyatvam, being liable to partition ; प्राप्तम् prāptam, being supposed ; प्रतिविध्यते prativedh-yate, is denied ; इति iti, so.

13. Here a certain writer thus states grounds for supposing a partition. By interpreting the text, "After the death of the father, if the eldest brother, acquire any wealth, a share of that belongs to the younger brothers : provided they have duly cultivated science" ; in this manner, if the eldest, youngest, or middlemost, acquire property before or after the death of the father, a share shall accrue to the rest, whether younger or elder ; grounds do exist for supposing friendly presents and the like to be liable to partition, whether or not the father be living : that is accordingly denied.

Balambhatta's gloss.

13. In order to find fault with the view of one who holds that even the affectionate gifts etc. are partible, he gives his view. 'Here some one'] ; he cites the text of Manu which favours partition ; 'whatever'] ; 'acquire' obtain ; 'there', in the wealth ; 'provided], if youngest, 'cultivated science' means 'patron of learning or learn'd men', there is another reading 'follower of learning'. From the four quatrain it follows that if they are illiterate, they earnings shall then be not divided,

So says Goultama (XXV-III-28.) "A literate shall not share his earnings with the illiterate (brothers) willingly.". Nārada also says

"A literate person shall not allot a share of his wealth willingly to the illiterate (brothers) provided he has acquired it without using the paternal money".

Kātyayāna has already been cited. By explaining this text, he says that they all point to the divisibility of the friendly gifts etc ; 'or the eldest' ; the term 'eldest' includes all the three; the term 'youngest' includes all the elder brothers. 'After the death' [even before the death, so two periods are fixed. If any brother other than the eldest obtains wealth anyhow, he shall have to allot a share therefrom to other brothers either before or after the father's death provided they are literate; in this sense, the friendly gifts etc. are, of course, divisible. (This rule) is prohibited by 'the paternal money' (the last proviso).

14. The argument is erroneous ; since there is not here, a denial of what might be supposed ; but the text is a recital of that which was demonstratively true : for most texts, cited under this head, are mere recitals of that which is not notorious to the world.

Balambhatta's gloss.

14. The original is an exception to the imparibility of the friendly gifts etc. established from the old custom but not in the nature of prohibition, so that there may be a necessity of the rule. Keeping this purport in view, he by removing the doubt refutes that view. 'The argument is erroneous,'] 'here' in the matter of the affectionate gift, it means not only here but elsewhere also, by the first 'eva' (only) the distinction is made with the rule of the Scripture and by the second 'eva' (only), the distinction is made with the prohibition. He says with a view to state otherwise some where ; 'generally'.

15. Or you may be satisfied with considering it as an exception to what is suggested by another passage; "All the brethren shall be equal sharers of that which is acquired by them in concert" and it is therefore, a mere error to deduce the suggestion from an indefinite import of the word "eldest" in the text before cited (§13). That passage must be interpreted as an exception to the general doctrine, deduced from texts concerning friendly gifts and the rest, that they are exempt from partition, both before the father's death and after his demise.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

15. Let it be a prohibition ; the same result is obtained from other texts (also), but not by the above said mode (alone) : he says so on the authority of the maxim of 'तुदा तु दुजनः' (let a wicked man be satisfied)*. 'Or'; he cites a text from Brīhaspati; 'by all in concert', it is plural to include all. He, therefore, says, 'all'; 'there', in the wealth; here is also no proof; so he says; 'therefore' by reason of the result arising from thy (opponent's) obstinacy. 'Eldest etc.'; he means as there is no reason for inappropriateness the authority (proof) is clear. He says the same; 'error'; what will be the result of the established principle; so he says; 'therefore' means by reason of the possibility of thy (opponent's) above-said meaning. 'Of the father', death is understood; it is to distinguish it from indivisibility; 'of the above cited', of the affectionate gift; by 'it' is meant 'by this'. On the death of the father, the younger brothers get shares in the earnings made by the elder brother from the friendly gifts etc. provided they are literate; it is what he means. So if the elder brother earns wealth by learning etc. acquired without detriment to the patrimony, the younger brothers get shares therein provided they are engaged in acquiring knowledge, so say Kalpataru and Medhatithi. So also it should be understood to be an exception to the above said-rule laid down by Kātyāyana.

17. Clothes, which have been worn, must not be divided. What is used by each person, belongs exclusively to him ; and what had been worn by the father, must be given by brethren parting after the father's decease, to the person who partakes of food at his obsequies : as directed by Brashaspati ; "The clothes and ornaments, the bed and similar furniture, appertaining to the father, as well as his vehicle and the like, should be given, after perfuming them with fragrant drugs and wreaths of flowers, to the person who partakes of the funeral repast." But new clothes are subject to distribution.

Balambhatta's gloss

17. He explains 'clothes' etc in order; 'which have been worn' etc.], in the original text, the singular is used to indicate the same species; by this, the unity of clothes, vehicle, water is meant; the clothes should be of equal price not very precious; it refutes the view of Medhatithi and Kalpataru by reason of the qualifying clause to the object in view. 'Worn clothes and ornaments' from Kātyāyana makes it common to both. With this object in view, he says; 'of the worn only' by this a distinction is made with the unworn. It is in connection with the sons; 'what'; it is also well known. He says in connection with the father; 'father', after father's death; 'after'; by this, it is suggested that if partition took place during his life time, the father shall take them as his share. 'Parting', under 'optionally of the रूप in the nominative'* (Panini, II-3-71) is in the genitive case in the nominative sense. 'That etc. of the father' is connected with 'all that'; 'etc.' includes other paraphernalia. It is the right of the person who partakes of the funeral repast in the worship. 'The priest who partakes of the funeral repast' is in singular by reason of its applying to a class; it applies to the whole priestly class as represented by him. He gives the result of the explanation; 'new.'

But the father's must be disposed of as directed in regard to his clothes. If the horses or the like be numerous, they must be distributed among co-heirs who live by the sale of them. If they cannot be divided, the number being unequal, they belong to the eldest brother; as ordained by Manu ; "let them never divide a goat or sheep, or a single beast with uncloven hoofs : a single goat or sheep belongs to the first-born."

Bālambhatta's gloss.

18. The synonyms of 'patra' (vehicle) are वाहन, गान, युग्म, पत्र, धौरण according Amara Sinha (II-8-53); similarly patra means both conveyance and leaf (Amar III-3-179) ; he supports it by quoting from the dictionary. 'Carriage'] ; 'or the like', conveyances etc. like the clothes should be given to 'the priest who partakes of the funeral repast.' He gives a special case; 'of the horses', animals; it is in the 6th form of declension in the sense of the nominative case as before ; when they are many, they should be distributed amongst them all. 'Of the first born'] it means that it falls to him as his share ; here the unequal share is to make up the entirety but not for the unevenness. Thus by giving one to him if the number is even, in order to make up the total of the shares, they should be so allotted by them. When there is an odd number by reason of the indivisibility thereof equally among all and by being not capable of conversion into money on account of the prohibition of sale, the shares should be equally made and that which is over and above there in the shape of a horse etc., should be allotted to the eldest alone. If that is not practicable, the whole should go to the eldest. For example, the horses are four but the sons are three or five; in this case there is a glaring disparity. He means that if it be accepted, there will be a conflict with the texts of many smritis; the same rule applies elsewhere. He cites an authority in support of indivisibility. 'A goat or a sheep'] It is dwanda compound to indicate 'a single of it'; 'divide' allot; he assigns a reason: 'a goat'], therefore etc. 'Patra' means any money entered in a document; "money entered in a deed and set apart for a charitable purpose, water, females and hereditary corrodies." अलङ्कारः: alaṅkāraḥ, ornaments; अपि api, too; यः yah, which; येन yena, by whom; धृतः dhṛitah, was worn; सः saḥ, that; तस्य tasya, his; एव eva, indeed; अधृतः adhṛitah, which is not used, not worn; साधारणः sādhāraṇah, is common; विभाज्यःएव vibhājyah eva, must be divided; पत्यौजीवति patyau jivati, while the husband is living; यः yah, which; स्त्रीभिः stribhīḥ, by women or wives; अलङ्कारः: alaṅkāraḥ, ornaments; धृतः dhṛitah, used; भवेत् bhavet, would be: न na, not; तम् tam, that; भजेरन् bhajeran, should divide; दायादाः dāyadāḥ, heirs; भजमानाः bhajamānāḥ if they divide; पतन्ति patanti, they fall, are degraded from their tribe; इति iti, so; अलङ्कारः: alaṅkāraḥ, an ornament; धृतः dhṛitah; worn, used; भवेत्, bhavet, if it would be; इति iti, so, thns; विशेषेणोपादानात् viśeṣena-upādānāt, by the use of this epithet, by the condition specified; अधृतानाम् adhṛitānām, those that are unused; विभाज्यत्वम् vibhājyatvam, liability of being divided; गम्यते gamyate, is seen.

19. The ornaments worn by each person are exclusively his. But what has not been used, is common and liable to partition. "Such ornaments, as are worn by women during the life of their husband, and the heirs of the husband shall not divide among themelves; they, who do so, are degraded from their tribe. It appears from the condition here specified ("such ornaments as are worn") that those, which are not worn, may be divided.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

19. In the original it is, as usual, in neuter; he says with an object; 'ornament'] ; 'worn'] ; here everywhere 'bhrita etc.' is another reading; the meaning is the same. 'The unworn' is explained; 'is divisible'] . vibhajya is an incorrect reading; although under "तरत्, इयसुन् in comparison of two and division" (P. V. 3. 57),* by nipata it is correct only in the ablative case, but nowhere else. It may be asked similarly by dropping वयत् obtained under "generally कृत् and ल्प्यत् affixes" (P. III. 3-113)† how can bibhajya be formed? The reply is that it is correct by reason of its ending in a vowel under 'after vowel, वयत्' (P. III. 1. 97)‡ There is no difference of meaning; by reason of laying down the prohibited, a root form of the verb is made causative; so under 'If a root ending in वय in the state devoid of वय being accusative, becomes nominative in the sense of non-meditation' (1.3-67)§ (it is proper) 'by reason of the support given by Harita. But nipatas and other obstructions are not proper by reason of 'कु' being unavoidable in 'nyat' and the absence of the support thereof. By this, the statement of Haridutta to the effect that the correct use of the term of 'vibhajya' in the smritis is doubtful, is refuted.

He cites Mann; 'in the husband' and 'by the women' are figures of synecdoche; therefore '...each person, is exclusively his' should be understood not against the preceding part of the book. 'iti' mean '...here'; there is an authority for the special rule; 'ornament'] ; by this 'worn and similarly situated at the time of partition should not be allotted to shares to the sons', but she should put it on as a share of her husband. It follows as a matter of invisible inference that what a wife has put on during the life-time of her husband, shall be indivisible after his death.

* See for further elucidation at P. 961 of vol I of Panini.

† See at P. 524 Ibid.

‡ See at P. 385 Ibid,

§ See at P. P. 149 of vol I of Panini.

By this, the indivisibility thereof for all times is refuted; there is on the other hand degradation on appropriating it out of avarice for its beauty. By saying 'while living' there is nothing wrong in appropriation after death by another; the statement of Yama is set aside.

कृतान्नं तण्डुलमोदकादि तदप्यविभाज्य यथासंभवं भोक्तव्यम् । २० ॥

कृतान्नम् kṛitānnam, prepared food; तण्डुल tandula, boiled rice; मोदकादि modakādi, sweetmeats etc.; तद् tad, that; अपि api, too; अविभाज्यम् avibhājyam, not to be divided; यथासंभवम् yathā sambhavam, according to circumstances; भोक्तव्यम् bhoktavyam, is to be used, consumed.

20. Prepared food, as boiled rice, sweet cakes, and the like, must be similarly exempted from partition. Such food is to be consumed according to circumstances.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

20. 'Prepared food', here is no karmadhāraya by reason of the word 'krita' being useless, but it means 'made from eatable stuff' like 'rājadanta etc.' The word "anna" (eatable), is a compound word and means anything fit for it. 'Boiled rice and sweet cakes' mean the sweetmeat balls made thererof; 'and the like', cakes etc.; 'according', but etc.; similarly in the following.

उदकं तूदकाधारः कूपादिः तच्च विषमं मूल्यद्वारेण न विभाज्यं पर्यवेणोप-

उदकम् udakam, water; तु tu but; उदकाधारः udakādhāraḥ, a reservoir of water; कूपादिः kūpādīḥ, wells etc.; तच्च tachcha, and that, विषमम् viṣamam, unequal, (to the allotment of shares); मूल्यद्वारेण mūlyā-dvārena, by means of the value; पर्यवेण paryavēṇa by turns; उपभोक्तव्यम् upabhoktavyam, should be used.

21. Water, or a reservoir of it, as a well or the like, being unequal (to the allotment of shares,) must not be distributed by means of the value; but is to be used (by the co-heirs) by turns.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

21. 'Unequal'] by this, the division is suggested in equal allotment;

similarly in the following also ; for the said reason, he, lays down the mode of use ; 'value' similarly in the following also.

स्त्रियः striyah; woman ; च cha, and ; दासः dasyah, women slaves ; विषमाः viṣamāḥ, unequal (to the number of shares) न na, not ; मूल्यद्वारेण mūlyā-dvāreṇa, by means of value ; विभाज्याः vibhājyāḥ, should not be distributed; पर्यायेण par्यāyena, in turns; कर्म karma, work कारयितव्याः kārayitavyāḥ, should be made to work ; अवरुद्धः avaruddhāḥ, kept in concubinage ; तु tu, but ; पित्रा pitrā, by the father ; स्वैरिण्याद्याः svairinyādyāḥ, adulteresses and others ; समाः samāḥ, equal (to the shares) ; अपि api, even though ; पुत्रैः putraih, by the sons ; न na, not ; विभाज्याः vibhājyāḥ, be divided ; स्त्रीषु strīṣu, in the case of women ; संयुक्तासु samyuktāsu, that were connected ; अविभागः avibhāgah, no partition ; इति iti, so ; गौतम-स्मरणात् gantamasmaranāt, because of the text of Gantama.

22. The women or female slaves, being unequal (in number, to the shares) must not be divided by the value, but should be employed in labour (for the co-heirs) alternately. But women (adulteresses or others) kept in concubinage by the father, must not be shared by the sons, though equal in number : for the text of Gautama forbids it. "No partition is allowed in the case of women connected (with the father or with one of the co-heirs)."

Bālambhalla's gloss.

22. By reason of mentioning 'slaves' out of fitness, he states a special rule suggesting the result. 'Women kept in concubinage' means kept by the father ; he defines them, 'adulteresses' ; by 'api' the unequal is also included. He gives an authority in support of even their equal number. 'Women connected' means 'enjoyed' or 'kept' ; similarly the other reading ; it means that they should be maintained like mothers. By the prohibition of the divisibility of the kept women, the married females are a fortiori excluded ; by this, the description thereof like the female slaves given by Yama etc. and the application of it to others according to others are set aside ; because both are included by reason of ample authorities. It is (a rule) of equal application.

योगः: yogaḥ, yoga, च cha, and ; क्षेमः: kṣemāḥ, kṣemā; योगक्षेमम्: yoga kṣemam, the conjunctive word yoga kṣemam; योगशब्देन: yoga śabdena, by the word yoga; अलब्ध-लाभ-कारणम्: alabdhā labbhā kāraṇam, the cause of obtaining something not already obtained श्रौतस्मार्तग्निसार्थम्: śrauta-smārta-agni-sādhyam, to be performed with fire consecrated according to the Vedas and the law; इष्टम्: īṣṭam, sacrificial; कर्म: karma, act; लक्ष्यते: lakṣyate, is denoted; क्षेमशब्देन: kṣemā-śabdena, by the word kṣemā; लब्ध-परिक्षणहेतुभूतम्: labdha-parirakṣṇa hetubhūtam, which becomes the means of conservation of what has been obtained; बहिर्वेदिदान: bahirvededāna, giving of alms elsewhere than the altar; तडागारामतिर्माणादि: tadā-gārāmanirmāṇāli, the making of a pool or a garden or the like; पूर्तम्: pūrtam, auspicious; कर्म: karma, acts; लक्ष्यते: lakṣyate, is denoted; तदुभयम्: tad-ubhayam, both those; पैतृकम्: paitṛikam, appertaining to the father; अपि: api, though; पितृद्रव्यविरोधाजितम्: pitṛi-dravya-virodh-ājitaṁ, accomplished at the charge of the patrimony; अपि: api, 'though'; अविभाज्यम्: avibhājyam, must not be distributed; यथा: yatḥā, as; अहं: āha, declares; लोगात्मिः: langākṣīḥ, Langākṣī; क्षेमम्: kṣemam, kṣemam; पूर्वम्: pūrtam, conservatory; योगम्: yogam, yoga; इष्टम्: īṣṭam, sacrificial; इति: iti; तोः: āhūḥ, have named; तत्त्वदर्शिनः: tatva-darśināḥ, the learned, the philosophers, the knowers of truth; अविभाज्ये: avibhājye, indivisible; च: cha, and; ते: te, they both; प्रोक्ते: prokte, are pronounced; शयनासनम्: śayanaśnam, bed and chair; एव: eva, also; च: cha, and.

23. The term yoga kṣemā is a conjunctive compound resolvable into yoga and kṣemā. By the word yoga is signified a cause of obtaining something not already obtained: that is, a sacrificial act to be performed with fire, consecrated according to the Veda and the law. By the term kṣemā is denoted an auspicious act which becomes the means of conservation of what has been obtained; such as the making of a pool or a garden, or the giving of alms elsewhere than at the altar. Both these, though appertaining to the father, or though accomplished at the charge of the patrimony are indivisible, as Laugakṣi declares, "The learned, have named a conservatory act kṣema, and a sacrificial one yoga; both are pronounced indivisible: and so are the bed and the chair."

Balambhatta's gloss.

23. 'Kṣema'] ; the word 'kṣema' is non-feminine according to Amara (1-4-26) It is a dvanda compound to indicate collection; sacrificial acts ('śṭam') of that name; digging of tank ('pūrtam') of that name; they are mentioned generally. 'Appertaining to the father'], by api, the 'ancestral' is also included; he says generally by reason of its being understood also with the other not understood. 'At the charge of the patrimony'; under 'api' (though) 'without detriment to the patrimony' is included. There is an authority in support of the general proposition; 'declares', by this the conclusion that in connection with the friendly gift, it is also a qualifying clause of it or it equally applies to it with a similar reasoning, is set aside by reason of its annulment generally.

योगक्षेमशब्देन yogakṣema-sabdena, by the word yoga kṣema; योगक्षेमकारिणः yogakṣema-hāriṇah, those who effect sacrificial and conservatory acts; राजमन्त्रि-पुरोहितादयः rājamantri-purohītādayah, the king's counsellors, the stipendiary priests and the others; उच्यन्ते uchyante, are meant; हृति iti, so; केचित् kechit, some; छत्र-चामर-श्लोपानत्रभृतयः chhatra-chāmara-ślastra-upānat-prabhṛitayah, parasols (umbrellas), cowtails, weapons, shoes and similar things; उच्यन्ते uchyante, are meant; इति iti, so; अन्ये anye, some others,

24. Some hold, that by the compound term yoga-kṣema, those who effect sacrificial and conservatory acts, (yoga and kṣema) are intended, as the king's counsellors, the stipendiary priests, and the rest. Others say, weapons, cowtails, parasols, shoes, and similar things, are meant.

Balambhatta's gloss

24 He now proceeds to give the opinion of Medhātithi and Kal-patam ; 'yoga'] ; he gives another view ; 'parasol'] . According to alt., the profit arising therefrom even if unequal should be divided. Brihaspati says. "The profit arising to the possessor of 'yoga' and 'kṣema' is to be divided equally" ; by reason of possessing 'yoga' and 'kṣema.'

25. The common way, or road of ingress and egress to and from the house, garden, or the like, is also indivisible.

Bālambhatta' gloss

25. He says that in the word 'common way', there is घट् affix in the sense of instrumentality under 'And after consonants '(P. III. 3. 121)*

'House'] ; having stated the indivisibility of the road of ingress and egress from the house, garden or the like, it follows that the house, garden or the like are divisible ; but he condemns it as being contrary to other smritis.

utpanna, born of a Brahmana father ; क्षत्रियादि kṣatriyādi, by women of the kṣatriya (the military) and other inferior classes ; उत्तरिष्यम् putra viṣayam, in reference to the sons ; न na, not ; प्रतिग्रहाभ् pratigrahaḥ-bhāḥ, land obtained by acceptance ; देया deyā, is to be given ; क्षत्रियादिसुताय kṣatriyādi-sutāya, to a son born of a kṣatriya or other inferior wife ; वै vai, surely ; यथपि yadyapi, even, though ; एषाम् eṣām, to these, or their ; फिता pitā, father ; दद्यात् dadyāt, would give ; मृते mṛite, after he (the father) is dead ; विप्रासुतः viprā-sutah, the son of a Brāhmaṇi ; हरेत् haret, should take away ; इति iti, thus ; स्मरणात् smaraṇāt, because it is ordained.

26. The exclusion of land from partition, as stated by Usanas, ('Sacrificial gains, land, written documents, prepared food, water, and women, are indivisible among kinsmen even to the thousandth degree ;') bears reference to sons of Brāhmaṇa by women of the military and other inferior tribes : for it is ordained (by Vrihaspati) "Land, obtained by acceptance of donation, must not be given to the son of a kṣatriya or other wife of inferior tribe : even though his father give it to him, the son of the Brāhmaṇi may resume it, when his father is dead."

Balambhatta's gloss.

26. ['As'] Vyāsa also follows the same order; Prajāpati also says that 'sites of the house can not be divided.' By this, the discussion in the above said four has been shown ; he sets it aside ; 'that'] here, 'and the other' includes a vaiśya tribe only but not a sādha as will be shown later on. 'He cites from Brihaspati ; 'na prati'] ; the result of the qualifying clause will appear later on ; this by reason of the inherent power of the word relates to the partition made at the option of the father. Therefore in all partitions made at the instance of the sons in the paternal property, its absence is self-evident. He states about the ancestral property ; 'here land' therefore, means all landed property and includes agricultural land (holding) by reason of using 'land' only and making a distinction between a gift of a house and that of land ; here ancestral house is not meant. Brihaspati therefore, says, "He who is a son of a woman of a Brāhmaṇa caste shall inherit the land given as a Brāhmaṇa donation ; but all who are twice born are entitled to succeed to the house property and the ancestral holding." 'Brāhmaṇa donation' means gift. So the original text of Madana Pārijāta stated previously should be considered improper. It may be said that even by not reconciling the conflict with Vyāsa, the conflict with Prajāpati remains intact by reason of the special prohibition as regards the self-acquired house property other than obtained by charitable gift, in pursuance of the text of Brihaspati. In pursuance of the text of Prajapati in the text of Manu, the terms 'yoga and kṣema' have been probably explained by Medhātithi as meaning house site, but that refers to a case where it is without the consent of the father. So—

'In the house property and agricultural land (holding) the grand sons and the father are equally entitled ; but in the paternal ones the sons have no right to demand partition without the consent of the father.' Vyāsa. The statement of Kalpataru to the effect that 'kṣetra (holding) always means house site', is erroneous. Kātyāyana, therefore, says, 'let the existing house, land and quadrupeds be distributed.' By the difference between them the separation is made ; it should be understood that even in the text of Vyāsa it is made.

28. What is obtained through the father's favour, will be subsequently declared exempt from partition. The supposition, that auy thing, acquired by transgressing restrictions regarding the mode of acquisition, is indivisible, has been already refuted..

Bālambhatta's gloss.

28. When the original text-writer commenced exempting from partition by saying 'without detriment to the patrimony,' he did not mention all assets; in order to remove this defect in the course of 'partition' he came to remember that which follows. 'Through the father's favour', means that also; the original text-writer says 'by the parents etc.' first Nārada text has also laid down the same thing; it must be understood as pertaining to the partition at the instance of the sons. Here the impartibility (exemption from partition), has been explained by the commentator by positive and negative precepts. The positive rule consists in describing the nature of impartibility and the negative rule (prohibition) consists in the refutation of partibility. In this state, though said here, yet useful in the following, he comes to remember it. 'Restriction.'] means, for a Brahmana of acceptance of gift etc.; 'already' means, the objection that arose in the discussion of the partible property by the propounder of the established truth; 'refuted' prohibited.

पित्र्ये pitrye, of the paternal ; द्रव्ये dravye, estate ; तु tu, but ; पुत्राणाम् putrāṇām, among sons ; विभागः vibhāgaḥ, distribution ; दर्शितः darśitah, is shown ; इदानीम् idānīm, now ; पैतामहे paitāmahe, concerning grand-father's estate ; पौत्राणाम् paotrāṇām, among grandsons ; विभागः vibhāgaḥ, in the matter of distribution ; विशेषम् viśeṣam, a special rule ; आह आha, propounds ; अनेकपितृकाणाम् aneka pitṛikāṇām, among grandsons by different fathers ; तु tu, but ; पितृतः pitṛitah, according to the fathers ; भागकल्पना bhāgkalpanā, the allotment of shares.

1. The distribution of the paternal estate among sons has been shown ; the author next propounds a special rule concerning the division of the grandfather's effects by grandsons;

"Among grandsons by different fathers, the allotment of shares is according to the fathers."

Bālambhatta's gloss

1 He explains the relevancy of the succeeding. 'Paternal estate' means somehow his own property only ; 'among sons' among them only ; similarly in the following ; 'of the grandfather's eff cts' in his only ; 'concerning the division' means by reason of the accrual of the proprietary right by birth alone. 'By different fathers' i.e the sons belonging to the different fathers, or the sons of different fathers ; the meaning is that the grandfather is one who has got many sons related to each other as brothers ; the sons of the latter are therefore sons of different fathers. The different reading is 'whose fathers are dead' , 'the sons by different fathers' is an incorrect reading.

2. Although grandsons have by birth a right in the grandfather's estate, equally with sons ; still the distribution of the grandfather's property must be adjusted through their father, and not with reference to themselves. The meaning here expressed is this : if unseparated brothers die, leaving male issue ; and the number of sons be unequal, one having two sons, another three, and a third four ; the two receive a single share in right of their father, the other three take one share appertaining to their father, and the remaining four similarly obtain one share due to their father. So, if some of the sons be living and some have died leaving male issue ; the same method should be observed : the surviving sons take their own allotments, and the sons of their deceased brothers receive the shares of their own fathers respectively. Such is the adjustment prescribed by the text.

Bālambhatta's gloss.

2, He explains it fully along with objections ; 'although'] ; he says by reason of the ending in the instrumental case the affix is tasi which applies in all declensions. Through their father only] 'only' is in the sense of 'but' ; the meaning is that the text is restrictive ; he further gives the reverse (as contrast) ; 'not with reference to themselves' not per head (per capita). He gives the result ; 'this'] 'unseparate], is for distinction ; 'there' among brothers. In order to remedy the defect, he applies the said principle elsewhere ; so, 'living', in existence or while alive, derived from / 'dhriṇ' to remain ; Kātyāyana has said so; "On the death of the unseparated son, his son is entitled to his share so that he may carry on his livelihood if he has not been provided for. He gets the share of his father from the uncle or his son-a share to which other brothers are equitably and justly entitled or he gets it from his son so that there may be satisfaction." He says 'prescribed by the text' otherwise there will be meaninglessness; so it is a restrictive rule. This is the meaning.

Kalpataru thinks that it includes the sons begotten on one woman by many. Vishnu in the course of the explanation says. "Of those who are of different fathers, the share is per stirpes; he gets the share of his father but not of any other."

Brihaspati therefore, says, " If the 'aurasa' and 'ksetraja' sons are the inheritors of one father, they get the share of the father but of no other."

Here the term 'ksetraja' does not mean the son as defined, since he is entitled to another share to be mentioned hereafter, but every illegitimate son. "If two who are born from two fathers but one woman, claim the property, they get the property of their respective fathers but not of the other" Manu 9-191.

अधुना adhunâ, now; विभक्ते vibhakte, if separate; पितरि pitari, be the father; अविद्यमानभ्रातृके avidyamânabhrâtrike, if he has no brothers; वा vâ, or; पौत्रस्य pautrasya, of the grandson; पैतामहे paitâmahe, paitamahe, in the grand fathers'; द्रव्ये dravye, wealth; विभागः vibhâgah, share; न na, not अस्ति asti, there is; अधियमाणे adhriyamâne, if he be deceased; पितरि pitari, if the father; पितृतः pitrtaḥ, through the father, in right of the father; भागकल्पना bhâga-kalpanâ, the allotment of shares; इति iti, so; उक्ततवात् uktatvat, it being directed; भवतु bhavatn, let it be; वा vâ, or; स्वार्जितवत् svârjitavat, like a distribution of his own acquisitions. पितुः pituh, of the father; इच्छा ichchâ, according to the pleasure; एव eva, only, indeed; इति iti, so; आशङ्कितः ásankitah, doubting, to obviate this doubt; आह ाha, the author says; भूः bhûh, land; या yâ, which; पितामहोपात्ता pitamahopâttâ, acquired by the grand-father: निवन्धः nibandhah, corrodः ; द्रव्यम् dravyam, chattels ; एव eva, also ; च cha, and ; तत्र tatra, in that, in all these, स्यात् syāt, should be ; सदृशम् sadṛśam, the same ; स्वाम्यम् sāmyam, ownership ; पितुः pituḥ, of the father ; पुत्रस्य putrasya, of the son ; च cha, and ; एव eva, indeed, also ; एव hi, for.

3. A rice field or other ground. A corrodः. So many leaves receivable from a plantation of betle pepper, or so many nuts from an orchard of areca, Chattel, Gold, silver, or other movables.

Balambhatta's gloss

3. From 'sons of different fathers' but not from other, it follows that a grandson gets the property through his father but not himself (per sterpe but not per capita); there too by reason of the right coming to an end on the death of the unseparated father on account of the non-creation of the right by partition and by reason of the obstruction of the proprietary right. So the right of the grandson is also like the obstructed heritage of the brothers; in this view what is said above is erroneous. Further in such a state, (e. g.) the father is alive and is separate from his father or by reason of being an only son of his father in the absence of other brothers lives with him unseparate. In the former case, by reason of being separate, he does not get a share because the father is separate and there is obstruction to inheritance by his existence, the grandson does not get a share in his grandfather's property. In the second case also, though his father gets the property by being undivided but he does not get it by reason of his existence. The result is that a grandson has never a share in the grandfather's property while his father is alive. In order to reply to the objection, he gives the following passage, 'Now' the connection is, when the objection is raised, 'separate' is in contrast. The 'grandson' stands for ('includes') two grandsons many grandsons. In both cases he gives reasons; 'not in existence' means 'on death'; if the reading is 'in existence' it is connected with the previous; in 'not father' is in the contrast; in his absence; he means that here in both cases, the father exists.

No, it is not proper because having said that the proprietary right accrues on birth, but does not depend on any other cause, the right to partition is proper in such a case; if that is so then prescribing the right to partition to accrue on the death of the father, it is well established that his right depends on him while he is alive. As the father appears to be principal, the partition 'depends on the will of the father'. There he gets double share as in the self-acquisitions; according to the text of Nārada the father's share is double. So he says 'or admitting', 'partition' comes as an ellipsis; 'but' is understood subsequently. 'According to the pleasure of the father', and according to the pleasure of the father, may be understood ; there by 'iti' he gives it as suggesting an illustration in the case of 'bhavan' being the reading it is the unity of a sentence.

भूः शालिक्त्रादिका । निवाधएकस्य पर्णभारकस्ययेन्ति पर्णानि । तथा एकस्य कमुकफत्तभारकस्ययेन्ति कमुकफत्तातीत्याद्युक्तलक्षः । द्रव्यं सुवर्णरजतादि । ४ ॥

भूः bhūḥ, land ; शालिक्त्रादिका śālikṣetradikā, a rice field or the like ; निवाधः nibandhah, corrodः, (meour) ; एकस्य ekasya, of one ; पर्णभारकस्य parṇabhārakasya, of the plantation of a betle-pepper ; इयन्ति iyanti, so many, पर्णिष्ठी parṇāni, leaves (to be received) ; तथा tathā, similarly ; पूकस्य ekasya, of one ; कमुक-फल-भारकस्य kramuka-phala-bhārakasya, of an orchard of areca ; इयन्ति iyanti, so many ; कमुकरङ्गानि kramuka-phalāni, areca nuts ; इत्यादि ityādi, this and the like ; उक्तलक्षणः ukta-lakṣaṇaḥ; whose characteristics are spoken to be ; द्रव्यम् dravyam, chattels ; सुवर्ण-रज-ग्रादि suvarṇa-rajata-ādi, gold, silver and other movables.

4. If the father, be alive, and separate from the grandfather, or if he have no brothers, a partition of the grandfather's estate with the grandson would not take place ; since it has been directed, that shares shall be allotted, in right of the father, if he be deceased : or, admitting partition, to take place, it would be made according to the pleasure of the father, like a distribution of his own acquisitions : to obviate this doubt the author says. "For the ownership of the father and the son is the same in land, which was acquired by the grandfather, or in a corrodः, or in chattels (which belonged to him)

Bilambhatta's gloss.

4. He gives the accepted meaning by virtue of the inherent power of the words. 'Rice field'] ; and other, barley field in order to distinguish it from the building site etc. the subject relating to the building site will be made clear later on. Whatever is fixed by counting of leaves etc. is corrodः which is a means of livelihood ; royal grant of mines receivable permanently ; he gives its description. 'Of one' ; where there is a collection of leaves ; it is a compound word : similarly in the following one. That there are so many betel leaves or betel nuts in a particular betel grove or a betel nut grove is known to an expert therein but to no other by the approximate counting or ascertaining thereof, it is fixed. Whatever is so fixed by the grandfather, in order to show connection with the following, he says.

यत् Yat, which ; पितामहेन pitāmahena, by the grand-father ; प्रतिग्रह-विजयादिना pratigraha-vijayā-adiñā, by means of acceptance, conquest or through similar channels ; लब्धम् labdham, acquired ; तत्र tatra in such property ; पितुः pituḥ, of the father ; पुत्रस्य putrasya, of the son ; च cha, and ;
स्वाम्यम् svamyam, the ownership ; लोकप्रसिद्धं loka-prasiddham, is notorious ;
इति iti, so ; कृत्वा kṛtvā, thinking, doing ; विभागः vibhāgah, partition ; अस्ति asti, there is, हि hi, for (means) यस्मात् yasmāt, since, तत् tat, that right ; सदृशम् śadriśam, equal (means) समानम् samānam, alike ; तस्माद् tasmasād, therofore ; ना nā, not, neither, पितुः pituḥ, of the father ; इच्छया icchhayā, according to the pleasure एव eva, indeed ; विभागः vibhāgah, partition ;
न अपि na-api, nor, not also ; पितुः pituḥ, the father's ; भागद्वयः bhāgadvayam double share.

5. In such property, which was acquired by the paternal grandfather, through acceptance of gifts, or by conquest or other means, (as commerce, agriculture or service,) the ownership of father and son is notorious and therefore partition does take place. For, or because, the right is equal, or alike, therefore, partition is not restricted to be made by the father's choice nor has he a double share.

Bālambhalta's gloss.

5. 'Whatever by the grand father' he now says over and above the rules ; 'through acceptance' 'and other', acceptance of income from commerce and service of the twice-born. After setting forth the three things under the first half of the stanza he now fully explains the remaining half with the split of a sentence and filling up the ellipsis ; 'thoro', in all the three ; he gives the meaning as previously ; 'does take place' being connected with the preceding passage means 'has a right.' In order to be in conformity with the reading and of both according to kalpataru etc., he says 'for or because' ; 'equal' equal only by reason of the connection with the following ; he says the rest like the preceding ; therefore 'there is no partition at the option', is a better reading ; by this, the equal partition is suggested.

Brihaspati also says. In the immovable and movable property acquired by the grand father, the son and the father have been declared to have equal right.

Mitakshara.

अतः पितृतोभागकल्पनेत्येतत्स्वाम्ये समेऽपि वाचनिकम् । ६ ॥

अतः atah, hence ; पितृतः pitṛitah, according to the father's ; भाग-कल्पना bhāga-kalpanā, the allotment of shares ; इति iti, so, thus ; एतत् etat, this (text) स्वाम्ये svāmye the right ; समे same, equal ; अपि api, even though ; वाचनिकम् vāchanikam, text.

6. Hence also it is ordained by the preceding text, that "the allotment of shares shall be according to the father's" although the right be equal.

Bālambhatta's gloss

6. In this state, to remove the futility which is shown by the first part and its contradiction, he strengthens the said scriptural quotation. Hence] ; the meaning is because the equal proprietary right of the father and the son therein is well known, therefore.....ordained by the preceding text] . it is so ordained when the father is dead but not when he is alive ; the reading 'of those whose father is dead' is, therefore, preferable ; it is said previously also.

Mitakshara.

विभागं चेत्पिता कुर्यादित्येतत्स्वार्जितविषयं । तथा द्वावशौ प्रतिपद्येत विभजनात्मनः पितृत्येतदपि स्वार्जितविषयं । जीवतोरस्वतन्त्रः स्याज्जग्यापि समन्वित इत्येतदपि पारतन्त्रय मातापित्रजितद्रूपविषयं । तथा अनीशारतेहि जीवतोरस्येतदपि । ७ ॥

विभागम् vibhāgam, the partition ; चेत् chet, if ; पिता pitā, the father ; कुर्यात् kuryāt, would do ; इति एतत् iti etat, thus this ; स्वार्जितविषयम् sva-arjita-viṣayam, is as regards the property acquired by the father himself ; तथा tathā, so ; द्वौ dvau, two ; अशौ aṁśau, shares ; प्रतिपद्येत prati-padyeta, would reserve ; विभजन् vibhajan, making a partition ; आत्मनः ātmanah, for himself ; पिता pitā, the father ; इति-एतद् iti etad, thus, this ; अपि api, too ; स्वार्जित विषयम् sva-arjita viṣayam, is such as regards the distribution of his own acquisitions ; जीवतोः jīvatoḥ, while both are living ; अस्वतन्त्रः asvatantrah, not free, dependent ; स्यात् syāt, should be must be, जरया jarayā, by old age ; अपि api, even though ; समन्वितः samanvitah, accompanied by, arrived at (old age) इति-तद् iti etad, thus this ; अपि api, too ; पारतन्त्रम् pāratantryam, dependence ; माता-पितृजित-द्रव्य-विषयम् mātā-pitrārjita-dravya viṣayam, must relate to effects acquired by the father or mother ; तथा tathā, similarly ; अनीशः anīśah, powerless, having no power, ते ti, they ; हि hi, for or truly, जीवतोः jīvatoḥ, while both (the parents) are living ; इति तद् iti-etad, thus, this ; अपि api, too.

7. The first text, "When the father makes a partition, 'etc'" (Seet 2 and 1) relates to property acquired by the father himself. So does that which ordains a double share: "Let the father, making a partition, reserve two shares for himself" The dependee of sons, as affirmed in the following passage, "while both parents live, the control remains, even though they have arrived at old age, must relate to effects acquired by the father or mother. This other passage, "They have not power over it (the paternal estate) while their parents live" must be referred to the same subject.

Bālamhātta's gloss.

7. He removes the contradiction from other text that arises from the second part. 'When the father makes a partition'] ; it is also explained previously. He removes the contradiction that arises from the third part with the other text not explained previously ; 'so'] he cites Nārada ; 'two shares' ; reservation is the taking or keeping in accordance with the rule. 'Of himself' it may be either 6th or 5th form of declension. The meaning is that this unequal partition happens by reason of the absence of any special customary law. Similarly the unequal partition under the text of Vasiṣṭha stated above should be understood. So it is established that the person earning shall get two shares in his self-acquisitions in case of total partition. Same' he cites two views reconciling the conflict with other texts in this way, while both parents live] the mother is also included. The result is the same as said as regards the ancestral property by reason of the original text pertaining to the paternal acquisitions.

तथा च सरजस्कायां मातरि सस्पृहे च पितरि विभागमनिवृत्यपि पुत्रेन्वया

पैतामहद्रव्यविभागो भवति । ८ ॥

तथा tathā, similarly ; च cha, and ; सरजस्कायाम् sarajaskāyām, being capable of producing more sons. मातरि mātarī, mother ; सस्पृहे saspṛīhe, retaining worldly affections ; च cha and ; पितरि pitari, the father ; विभागम् vibhāgam, partition ; अनिच्छति anichchhati, not deserving ; अपि api, though ; अपि पुत्रेच्छया putrochchayā, at the pleasure of the sons ; पैतामहद्रव्यविभागः paitāmaha-dravya-vibhāgah, the partition of the grandfather's estate ; भवति bhavati, does take place.

8. Thus, while the mother is capable of bearing more sons, and the father retains his worldly affections and does not desire partition, a distribution of the grandfather's estate does nevertheless take place by the will of the son,

Bālambhatta's gloss.

8. He gives the special rule ; 'thus' means when their proprietary right is equal. He gives the special rule arising from the absence of the three periods of partition during the lifetime of the father 'capable of bearing more sons' ; 'by even' (api), all the three reasons are joined together ; by the will of the son', by it only ; the will plays the principal part.

Mitdkṣarā.

तथा विभक्तेन पित्रा पैतामहे द्रव्ये दीयमाने विक्रीयमाणे वा पौत्रस्य निषेधेऽप्य विकारः । पित्राजिंतेतु न निषधायिकारः । तत्परतन्त्रत्वात् । अनुमतिस्तु कर्तव्य ॥८॥

तथा tathā, similarly, like-wise ; अविभक्तेन avibhaktena, by the unseparated ; पित्रा pitrā, father ; पैतामहे paitāmahe, with the grandfather's द्रव्ये dravye estate ; दीयमाने diyamāne, is being given ; विक्रीयमाणे vikriyamāṇe, is being sold ; वा vā or ; पौत्रस्य pautrasya, of the grandson, the grandson has ; निषेधे niṣedhe, of prohibition ; अपि api, also ; अविकारः adhikārah, the right ; विवर्जिते pitrarjite, if it be acquired by the father ; तु tu, but ; न na, no ; निषेध विकारः niṣ-dhādhikārah, right of prohibition ; तत्परतन्त्रत्वात् tat-para-tantra tvāt, because he is dependent (the son) on him (the father) ; अनुमतिः anumatiḥ, acquiescence ; tu, but. कर्तव्य kartavya, must be made.

9. So likewise, the grandson has a right of prohibition if his unseparated father is making a donation, or a sale, of effects inherited from the grandfather : but he has no right of interference, if the effects were acquired by the father on the contrary, he must acquiesce, because he is dependent.

Bālambhatta's gloss

9. He therefore, gives another special rule; 'so', similarly; by the unseparated' is in contradistinction because on separation the proprietary right being extinguished, there is no right (to prohibit alienation by this the explanation by Medhātithi and others that the self-acquisition, are by means of learning and heroic exploits is reputed. The lost ancestral property recovered by the father with his ability and whatever is obtained by learning and heroic exploit is the property of the father"; by api (even) the partition is also included; 'should be given' by the son.

Mitakṣarā

तथाहि । पैतृके पैतामहे च स्वाम्यं यद्यपि जन्मनैव तथापि पैतृके पित्रिपर तन्त्रत्वात् पितुः स्वाजक्त्वेन प्राधान्यात् पित्रा विनियुज्यवाने स्वाजिते द्रव्ये पुत्रेणानुमतिः कर्तव्यः । पैतामहे तु द्वयोः स्वाम्यमविशिष्ट मिति नियेवाधिकारोऽप्यस्तीति विशेषः । १० ॥

कर्तव्या kartavyā, must be made; तथाहि tathāhi, consequently; पैतृके paitṛike, in the paternal; पैतामहे paitāmahe, in the grandfather; च cha, and, स्वाम्यम् svāmyam, right; यद्यपि yadyapi, although; जन्मना janmanā, by birth; एव eva, only; तथापि tathāpi, still, yet; पैतृके paitṛike, in the paternal; पितृपरतन्त्रत्वात् pitṛi-paratautratravāt, because of the dependence of one's father; पितुः pituḥ, the father's; स्वाजक्त्वेन svārjakatven, by right of his being the acquirer; प्राधान्यात् prādhānyāt, because of the predominance of (the father); पित्रा pitṛā, by the father; विनियुज्यमाने viniyujyamane, while it is being disposed of; स्वाजिते svārjite, acquired by himself; द्रव्ये dravye, the wealth; पुत्रेण putreṇa, by the son; अनुमतिः anumatiḥ, acquiescence, kartavyā, should be made; पैतामहे paitāmahe, in the grandfather's; तु tu, but; द्वयोः dvayoh, of both; स्वाम्यम् svāmyam, there is the right; अविशिष्टम् avivisṭam, indiscriminately; इति iti, hence, therefore; नियेवाधिकारः niyedhādhihikārah, the right of prohibition; अपि api, also, too; अस्ति asti, there is; इति iti, this, is the; विशेषः viśeṣah, specificity.

10. Consequently the difference is this: although he have a right by birth in his father's and in his grandfather's property; still, since he is dependent on his father in regard to the paternal estate, and since the father has a predominant interest as it was acquired by himself, the son must acquiesce in the father's disposal of his own acquired property : but, since both have indiscriminately a right in the grandfather's estate, the son has a power of interdiction (if the father be dissipating the property).

Balambhatta's gloss

10. He develops the last said with a reason ; as for instance] ; by birth' 'the same' is understood ; father' of the son etc., ; here he says by reason of another' not earning anything. 'Both'] a mother has therefore no share in the ancestral property for want of proprietary right and authority. It should be understood that it is proper that the grandsons have unobstructed heritage as said previously.
